HE IS WILLING TO RISK LIFE

COX REQUESTED HIS HELP

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The hopes of managers of the Democratic national campaign that President Wilson would make some speeches in behalf of Cox and Roosevelt have disappeared. A veto on the proposal has been given by those close to the President.

In this connection it became known today that the President's physical condition was not as satisfactory as it had been recently, when his improvement became so pronounced that his associates and friends felt justified in letting the country know that the danger point in his long illness had virtually been passed.

The President, however, has not suffered any serious setback. He is able to preside at Cabinet meetings and to take motor rides frequently. He has seen many visitors lately and nothing is known to indicate that he will abandon the official activity which he resumed when his condition appeared to justify it.

At the same time, it is gathered, the President's gradual improvement has been somewhat retarded, and any undue excitement, such as his appearance on the stump, might and probably would have serious results.

As far as could be ascertained today the question of his active participation in the Democratic speechmaking campaign has not been laid before the President personally. It was said that he knew nothing of the plans of those who were anxious to have him go before the people again as an advocate of the League of Nations and the policies of his administration.

Considered Willing to Risk Life.

That the President would be willing to take any chances if he could be persuaded that his personal appearance in the campaign would mean a victory for the League principle is generally understood by those acquainted with his attitude. Some of those close to the President have said that, even if he knew that a round of speechmaking would mean the sacrifice of his life, he would be willing to make the sacrifice for the sake of saving the League.

One of the plans that seem to have been under consideration by Democratic campaign managers contemplated having the President make eight speeches in as many large cities, each speech to be devoted exclusively to the League of Nations. Of this proposal it was said that, while it might be necessary for the President to be seated during the delivery of the speeches and, while his voice would not carry any great distance, his very appearance before the electorate would give an impetus to League sentiment that would help stem the tide of opposition which the Democratic management is seeking to overcome.

It is not going too far to say that some of those connected with Governor Cox's campaign now believe that hundreds of thousands of votes would be gained for the Democratic national ticket if the President made a personal appeal "from the stump" in behalf of the League.

Cox Asked Him to Take Part.

This attitude on the part of men who are among the most ardent advocates of Governor Cox's election marks a surprising reversal of their prior position. It has been bemoaned by many active Democratic politicians that the greatest obstacle to success this year with which they had to contend was widespread unpopularity of the Democratic National Administration, or, put in another way, a widespread desire among the electorate for a change in Government at Washington. They have feared that Governor Cox's chances would be injured by having a too close association in the minds of voters with President Wilson.

The Republican campaign managers have stressed Governor Cox's visit to the White House last July and his announcement of the harmony that existed between the views of the President and his own. It has been obvious that the Republicans believe that the more it is emphasized that the Democratic candidate for President is in accord with the policies of President Wilson the less will be his chance of winning the election.

At the same time Governor Cox and others prominent in the Democratic cause have felt that with the Wilson Administration on trial the President should have a place of prominence in the campaign. They were particularly anxious that he, as the chief exponent of the League of Nations, should answer the attacks directed against it. To that end Governor Cox requested the President to take a part in the political contest within the limits of his physical ability, and the President indicated that he would comply with the Governor's desires.

The first phase of the President's activities in this respect has been the course of Secretary Tumulty in issuing statements to the press on various phases of the League issue, the understanding being that the statements were

Taft Says Our Constitution Will Weather All Storms

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 29.—Speaking on the guarantees provided in the Constitution of the United States for the liberty of its citizens and the protection of their property, former President William H. Taft at a luncheon of the Canadian Club today expressed firm faith that it is built to weather all storms and will survive the present era of unrest.

He saw in the Constitution, he declared, a guarantee of future progress and a guarantee of the extension and perpetuation of Christian civilization.

WRANGEL CAPTURES 20,000 BOLSHEVIKI

POLES MARCHING ON PINSK

SEBASTOPOL, Sept. 27. — General Wrangl, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, has made prisoners of nearly 20,000 Bolsheviki north of Alexandrovsk.

With the aid of the Ukranian General Makhno, it is reported that Wrangel controls the famous Donetz coal basin.

Wrangel will attempt to carry on a Winter campaign. It is asserted that he has obtained a guarantee of $1,000,000 with which he is purchasing needed supplies, including shoes, overcoats and blankets.

It is said that a Turkish munitions plant is being established for Wrangel outside of Stamboul.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 28.—The troops of General Wrangel, anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, are continuing to pursue the Bolsheviki along the railroad east of the Dnieper beyond Alexandrovsk, according to the communique issued today by General Wrangel's staff.

"North of Alexandrovsk we have captured thirty-three locomotives in good condition, 1,000 cars, ten machine guns and 1,000 prisoners," the statement says.

The officers of the Russian staff have made public a proclamation inviting their colleagues now serving with the Bolsheviki to join General Wrangel.

Reports of an important anti-Bolshevist movement in the neighborhood of Kharkov, 150 miles north of Alexandrovsk, have reached here. General Makhno, with the aid of local insurgents is said to have attacked Bolshevist positions to the south of Kharkov.

WARSAW, Sept. 29.—The official statement on fighting operations, issued just before last midnight, says that in the north the Polish troops have reached the Shohara River.

"In the region of Grodno the enemy is retreating," the statement adds. "Our detachments advancing in the direction of Pinsk have occupied Chomsk, Drohiczyn and Ivanovo, where they captured the staffs of two Soviet divisions of infantry, six machine guns, a locomotive and 150 cars.

"East of Rovno our cavalry corps threw back the enemy on the right bank of the Horyn, occupied Kozeb and took six guns and sixteen machine guns.

"In a battle near Zaslav (southeast of Rovno) on Sept. 24, our First Brigade of cavalry took 2,000 prisoners, thirty-two machine guns and three cannon.

"Ukrainian troops operating east of the Zbruch River occupied, with our aid, Ploskiov and Staro Konstantinov, taking 3,000 prisoners, four armored trains, many supply trains and war material."

LONDON, Sept. 29.—A wireless dispatch from Moscow today says that Poland has received large supplies from the Allies through Danzig.

England, the message declares, sent seven steamers loaded with munitions and three tanks, and twelve small vessels with provisions, while the United States sent six ships with volunteers. From France two ships arrived with more than 1,000 infantrymen and fifteen tanks, the message says.

PALMER ORDERS U.S. INQUIRY INTO BUILDING PRICES

CITY CALLS A CONFERENCE

LANDLORDS TO FIGHT LAWS

Developments in the housing situation yesterday included:

An investigation into an alleged price-fixing combination of building material manufacturers ordered by A. Mitchell Palmer, U. S. Attorney General.

Municipal action to bring down building material prices at a conference called by Frank Mann, Tenement House Commissioner, at the suggestion of Mayor Hylan. The meeting will be held tomorrow.

Decision of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing to begin its inquiry into alleged profiteering in the prices of building material in a few days. In this connection it was reported that Samuel Untermyer would be appointed special counsel to the committee to examine the building material manufacturers with a view to presenting the facts to Francis G. Caffey, U. S. Attorney for the Federal District of New York, and to the Federal Grand Jury.

A condition of confusion in the moving van situation because of the failure of van owners to move tenants from Sept. 1 to the 24 owing to the van teamsters' strike. It was said the moving situation affected 150,000 tenants. Van owners are booking two weeks in advance, and there is a great influx of unlicensed moving men from out of town to "scoop the cream" of the business.

Announcement by Arthur J. W. Hilly, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, that leases signed since April 1 might be contested on the ground that they were negotiated under "duress" and an appeal to the court to fix a reasonable rent. Decision by a group of Bronx tenants to avail themselves of this opportunity of attempting to have the laws applied retroactively.

Palmer Asks Siegel for Facts.

The Federal investigation into the alleged price-fixing combination of building material manufacturers became known when Congressman Isaac Siegel of New York made public a telegram from Mr. Palmer asking him to submit the facts to United States Attorney Caffey. Mr. Siegel will call on Colonel Caffey today. At the same time it was learned that facts in the possession of Attorney General Newton also would be submitted to Colonel Caffey for action.

"There seems to be no doubt that a combination fixing the prices of building materials is functioning," said Mr. Siegel, "and a Federal investigation and action by the Grand Jury ought to put a stop to it."

Mayor Hylan wrote to Commissioner Mann to call a conference of building material men and to ask them point-blank what reductions they were willing to make in the price of materials. The Mayor said it was up to the material interests in the East to follow the reported action of their confreres in the West in reducing the price of materials.

Directly he received the letter Commissioner Mann sent out invitations to a list of 200 material men asking them to meet him in his office tomorrow afternoon.

The Real Estate Board received certified copies of the new rent laws, and preparations were at once begun to test their constitutionality. Officials of the board hold that the laws deprive the landlord of his property for two years and that this is unconstitutional.

Business Swamps Van Owners.

Charles Morris, President of the Van Owners' Association, said the van men had more business than they could handle. They were unable to move tenants according to contract from Sept. 1 to 24, part of the busiest time of the year, he said, because of the van teamsters' walkout. He said the van owners were not accepting furniture until they

HUNTINGTON, W. V., Sept. 29.—(On Board Senator Harding's Special Train.)—A wooden guard timber was all that kept Senator Harding's private car from plunging from an eighty-foot trestle into Little Mill Creek at Millwood, W. Va., when the car was derailed and lurched along the ties this forenoon.

Senator and Mrs. Harding and the guests in their car were shaken up as the derailed rear trucks rattled along the ties for 900 feet before the train stopped, but no one was injured.

The Senator made light of the accident and took occasion at the next stop, speaking to several hundred people at Mason City, to draw from it a lesson in international affairs, likening the guard timber to the Constitution and the "saving action of the Senate."

Railroad men said that it was only a miracle that a frail wooden beam could hold in place an uncontrolled sixty-ton car swaying from side to side over the waters of the creek.

"Nobody hurt. That's what you get for right livin'," said George Gaffney, porter of the Senator's car, to Mr. Harding.

Tracing the marks on the ties made by flanges of the derailed wheels, railroad men found a strip torn by the truck from the wooden guard rail on the edge of the trestle. At the Millwood station they found a broken switch. A dragging arch bar had broken the frog, derailing the truck.

The nominee's party was transferred to another car and the journey was continued to Mason City, the next scheduled stop.

Last Foot of Roosevelt Road To be Laid Near Chicago Today

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—From the well at Sagamore Hill, Long Island, where Colonel Roosevelt obtained his drinking water, has been brought the liquid ingredient for the final batch of cement that will complete the new highway which bears the great American's name. Two bottles of it were received today by Colonel R. R. McCormick.

The cement that it will moisten will be applied by Governor Lowden to the last foot of the Roosevelt Road between Chicago and Wheaton at the dedication exercises on Saturday.

SINN FEINERS FIGHT AT PILGRIM RALLY

INTRUDERS HUSTLED OUT

Sentiments of concord between Great Britain and the United States, expressed at Carnegie Hall last night by representatives of both countries at the Tercentenary Celebration of the Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers, were interrupted by a band of Irish men and women who resented the remarks of the speakers. There was a free-for-all fight on the parquet floor between the anti-British demonstrators and ushers and members of the audience. The entire house was in an uproar for a few minutes while the interrupters were shouting "down with England" and other anti-British sentiments.

Finally, when it appeared that the audience was about to leave its chairs, Frederick Gunther of the Community Service, who directed the musical program, called on the band to play "The Star-Spangled Banner." The Sinn Feiners stopped their shouting and joined in the anthem, after which they were hustled out on the sidewalk by the police. On the street they unfurled banners and the women picketed the audience as it passed out after the meeting.

No Arrests Are Made.

Sergeant McCoy of the West Forty-seventh Street Station and half a dozen patrolmen kept the pickets moving, but no arrests were made. British naval officers passing out of the hall were greeted with a round of epithets from the pickets. The latter afterward admitted that they entered the hall to heckle Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, who was scheduled to speak but did not appear.

Scores of distinguished men and women of Great Britain and the United States were on the platform and in the boxes when the anti-British and pro-Irish demonstration occurred. On the platform were Lord and Lady Rathcreedan, Raoul Dandurand, President of the Canadian Senate; H. St. George Tucker, ex-President of the American Bar Association; H. S. Perris, Secretary of the Sulgrave Institution of England, under whose auspices, together with that of the Sulgrave Institution of the United States, the meeting was held.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, denounced the disturbers as no real friends of the free speech for which they claimed to stand. He was called on to speak after the disturbance subsided.

Alton B. Parker, Chancellor of the Sulgrave Institution, presided.

The first disturbance arose in the west side of the gallery when a banner was unfurled bearing the words: "Mr. Colby, they flattered Benedict Arnold, too. Did you ever hear of Jane McRae? She did not live in Balbriggan."

Banner Quickly Torn Down.

The banner was torn down by an usher and the two women who had carried it left the hall. Gertrude Corliss told newspaper men that a dozen of the American women pickets had obtained admission to the hall in order to make a demonstration calling on America to enforce her war aims. Miss Corliss and Mae McCarthy, who carried another banner, left the hall at the request of the management. In the meantime the audience sang a verse of "America" and one of "God Save the King." The remaining pickets in the gallery attempted a noisy protest when the children sang the words of the British anthem.

Shortly afterward two women on the opposite side of the gallery unfurled a banner in black lettering, which read: "The invisible flag of America is the Union Jack." As ushers started for the bearers of the banner they fled and the banner dropped to the parquet floor.

The program continued and then Mary Keena and Margaret Dundon, sitting in the centre of the balcony, draped another banner over the rail. This one said: "Bainbridge Colby, England flatters." Ushers grabbed the banner, but did not disturb the two women, who sat listening to the speeches and fanning themselves. They told reporters they picketed the steamship piers when the visiting Pilgrims arrived from England to take part in the tercentenary celebration.

"True Americans" Parade.

The final and noisiest disturbance of the evening occurred when a group of young men, most of them speaking with a rich Irish brogue and proclaiming themselves "true Americans," started an impromptu parade and harangue on the west aisle of the orchestra floor. They carried several banners. One read: "The English Paid the Indians Five

LORD GREY URGES IRISH SETTLEMENT ON DOMINION BASIS

PLUNKETT IN A NEW MOVE

PRESENT BILL GOING AHEAD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Viscount Grey of Fallodon has addressed the following message to the editor of The Westminster Gazette, who authorizes its quotation in full in THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"The government of Ireland has never been such a reproach and discredit to British statesmanship as it is today. It has been unable to punish or prevent the constant murder of those who serve it; in parts of Ireland its authority has apparently ceased and has been superseded by Sinn Fein courts, from which alone can any redress be obtained for ordinary crime or wrongdoing, and some, if not all, of the once Unionist minority in Nationalist Ireland, hopeless of protection from the British Government, are now advocating Dominion home rule or looking to an agreement with the Sinn Fein.

"The British Administration, in fact, exhibits the helplessness of an extremely feeble Government, while incurring all the odium of one that rules by force. Ireland is more discontented than ever, and there is no prospect of settlement or improvement. To this we have come after centuries of British rule, and it would be well for every one, whether he has been a Home Ruler or a Unionist, to look for the cause with a fresh mind.

Blames Irish Divisions.

"The permanent underlying cause of a failure so prolonged and persistent as that in Ireland is not to be found in the shortcomings of individual Governments, not even in those of the present Government. Faulty as all Governments may be, and as many British Governments in Ireland certainly have been, the Irish question would have been solved before now but for one thing, the difference between Irishmen themselves, that is, between Ulster or a part of Ulster and the rest of Ireland.

"The lesson of past years is that this difference is inflamed, and not composed, by British proposals for the government of Ireland. The present Home Rule bill now before Parliament is no exception. There is much to be said in the abstract for the lines on which it was drawn. They could easily be expanded into dominion home rule for a united Ireland, but apparently no one wants the bill. No one accepts it as a solution, and Irishmen refuse to put it into operation.

"We must therefore look to some other policy for relief. Nothing that is in the nature of a bargain between the British Government and one part of Ireland has any chance of success. If the Sinn Fein accepts it, Ulster will denounce it. If Ulster accepts it the Sinn Fein will reject it.

"The only prospect for the future peace and good government in Ireland is that the Irish should draw up their own scheme. This is the point Lord Hugh Cecil made very clearly a few weeks ago, but his proposal had, I think, a fatal defect. It stopped short of one thing essential to make the Irishmen resolve their own problem. They will never do this except under the pressure of a real sense of responsibility.

"This is what they have never yet had, for it has always been understood that as long as Irishmen differed, Great Britain would go on governing or proposing plans for the government of Ireland. As long as this is so the Pan-Irish Convention or Constituent Assembly will either differ and break up in internal discord or propose something which they know we cannot agree to. Probably it will do both these things and the present intolerable state of Ireland will continue indefinitely.

Offers "Practicable Policy."

"The only practicable policy that offers any prospect of success seems to me to have three cardinal points:

"1. A definite announcement that for these two islands of Great Britain and Ireland there can be only one foreign policy, one army and one navy, and that we cannot stand separation in these matters any more than the North could stand the separation of the South in the United States.

"2. With this exception Irishmen must be as free as the people of the great self-governing dominions to settle for themselves how their country is to be governed.

"3. To give time for them to come to agreement with each other and to draw up their own scheme, the British Government will continue to perform, as best it can, the function of government in Ireland for a period not to exceed two years. But at the end of that period, or sooner if Ireland is ready, it will withdraw, arranging itself, if need be, fair terms for retiring the constabulary and others who have served it, and responsibility for the Irish Government will then be on Irishmen themselves.

"In no other way can we bring home to Irishmen that sense of responsibility of which we have for centuries deprived or relieved them, the lack of which is, I

INDICT TWO GAMBLERS IN BASEBALL PLOT; MEN NAMED BY WILLIAMS IN CONFESSION; INQUIRY HERE TO GUARD THE 1920 SERIES

McGraw Tells of Dropping Suspected Players; Zimmerman Denies Bribe Offer to Kauff

CHICAGO, Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, appeared before the Grand Jury today. He was requested to return Tuesday and bring Fred Toney, New York pitcher, and "Bennie" Kauff, outfielder.

McGraw is said to have told the jury that he dropped Hal Chase from his club after President Heydler had told him Lee Magee had confessed that Chase bribed him to throw games. He said he had heard of many other gambling activities of Chase's before the Magee case.

Zimmerman was dropped from the New York team, McGraw is said to have told the jury, because information had come to the New York manager that the third baseman offered Benny Kauff $500 to help throw games.

"I believe Kauff was innocent," said McGraw, "but I got rid of Chase and Zimmerman, even though I knew it would seriously injure my team, because I didn't want such men on the club."

McGraw also is said to have told the jury that Toney told him he had been offered $200 by Zimmerman to lose a game deliberately.

It is said that the jury subpoenaed Toney and Kauff to obtain further evidence concerning Zimmerman and Chase.

McGraw denied that gambling or game throwing had anything to do with the sudden release of Kauff last Summer to an International League club.

He said Jean Dubuc, former Detroit pitcher, now with Toledo, who has been subpoenaed, went around with Chase and Zimmerman a great deal and might know something of their activities.

"Heinie" Zimmerman last night angrily denied that he had offered "Bennie" Kauff $500 to help "throw" games last season.

"No such thing ever happened," Zimmerman told a NEW YORK TIMES reporter at his home, 492 East 167th Street, the Bronx. "I guess they are trying to push me, Chase and Magee to the wall and make goats of us."

Zimmerman denied also the assertion that he was dropped from the club because of "fixed" games. He declared that McGraw had sent him a contract to sign last Spring, but that he had sent it back because there was a cut in salary and also because of differences with McGraw. His present status, he said, was that of a player under suspension because of his failure to report last Spring at San Antonio after he had rejected the contract.

QUESTION BROOKLYN BEFORE THE SERIES

EVERY PLAYER TO BE HEARD

Members of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, winners of the season's National League pennant and contenders in the world's series, have been summoned to appear before District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn today and tomorrow to tell all they know of reports that the same gamblers' clique which is accused of having "fixed" the 1919 series had made plans to "throw" the coming world's series to the Cleveland Indians.

Mr. Lewis said that the information on which he had started the investigation was "vague," but he believed that the time to sift the charges was now, before the series, instead of afterward.

"I feel that in view of these ugly rumors the people of Brooklyn are entitled to have this situation cleared up at once so that there may be no cloud over the world's series, which starts next Tuesday," he declared.

Every member of the Brooklyn team will be questioned by Mr. Lewis under an arrangement made with Charles H. Ebbets, President of the Brooklyn Baseball Club. Mr. Ebbets promised the full co-operation of the club managers in the inquiry and expressed confidence that the charges would be proved to be false. Yesterday was an off day for the Brooklyn players, so that Mr. Ebbets was unable to reach all of his men, but he promised that those who did not appear today would call on Mr. Lewis at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

Seek Data From Chicago.

The Brooklyn prosecutor yesterday wired Maclay Heyne, State Attorney in Chicago, for any information which he might have in substantiation of the charges against the Brooklyn team. The telegram said:

"The New York Evening Sun of Sept. 28, 1920, states:

"'Information which has been gathered by officials tended to indicate that the same clique of gamblers which is alleged to have fixed the 1919 series has made plans to have Brooklyn throw the coming series to the Cleveland Indians.'

"I intend to initiate an investigation at once. Will you let me know if you have any information in substantiation of the article above quoted?

"Harry E. Lewis, District Attorney, Kings County, Brooklyn, N. Y."

Mr. Hoyne, who has been away from Chicago for ten days on his vacation, said last night at the Waldorf that Mr. Lewis's message had been relayed to him from Chicago. When he was asked whether he had any information involving the Brooklyn club, he said:

"There was absolutely no information turned up during the investigation in Chicago which related to the 1920 series, nor was there anything involving the Brooklyn players. The first news I had of such reports was when I received Mr. Lewis's message today by wire."

A CLASH IN HIS OFFICE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Disruption of the legal machinery of Cook County which may check its operations in the $100,000 baseball scandal was threatened tonight following a long distance telephone conversation between George T. Kenney, Secretary to Maclay Hoyne, the State's Attorney, and his chief in New York. Hoyne announced that no indictments have been returned, that an indictment is not an indictment under the law until returned in court, and that he has left orders not to conclude the investigation until he returns to Chicago with information which he has gathered in New York and elsewhere. He did not go into details, but expressed doubt that any crime, as legally defined, has been committed within the jurisdiction of the courts of Cook County.

This attitude on the part of Mr. Hoyne resulted in the discovery of warfare among factions in the State's Attorney's Office following the recent primary, shown by the dismissal of Lieutenant Thomas Sheehan, chief of the Hoyne detective force, and Chief Garrity's refusal to send him to his station until formally requested to do so by Hoyne.

The fact was further disclosed that the ten indictments to date have been mere "announcements" that the Grand Jury has voted to indict and that Hoyne has ordered his assistants not to close the investigation until he returns from the East.

Maclay Hoyne, Prosecutor of Cook County, Illinois, whose office started the investigation into the charges that the 1919 world's series was fixed, declared here last night that he was uncertain as to whether any crime had been committed. He explained also that no indictments had been returned, although voted, and that the Grand Jury acted despite his request that they defer action until he returned to Chicago.

Mr. Hoyne was found last night by a NEW YORK TIMES reporter at the Waldorf, where he had been spending a vacation. He left Chicago on Sept. 18 and, he said, although he had been in constant touch with his office, he had known nothing of the Grand Jury's action until he saw the newspapers yesterday.

"I have spent months looking into this matter," said Mr. Hoyne. "Some time ago I stated that my office would investigate the matter to the bottom and I have attempted to carry out this promise. I wired my office four days ago not to finish the investigation until I had returned, because I had information gathered in New York and elsewhere. I also requested the Grand Jury to take no action until I had returned.

"I don't know anything about all the publicity that this affair is getting now, but I do know that it is uncertain whether there is any crime. Furthermore no indictments have been returned.

WILLIAMS TELLS OF BRIBERY

FELSCH ALSO GOT $5,000

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Continuing its investigation into the baseball gambling scandal, the Cook County Grand Jury today voted two indictments in addition to those returned yesterday against the eight White Sox players. These ten indictments have been voted but not yet returned to the court. This will be done when the jury reports next week.

The new indictments were announced as having been voted against Joseph ("Sport") Sullivan of Boston and a man who so far has been identified solely as "Brown." Whoever Brown may be, the report here is that he is a New York gambler. With these indictments voted and $25,000 of the $100,000 corruption fund with which New York gamblers bribed members of the White Sox team to "throw" the games in the world's series of 1919, accounted for, the Grand Jury late this afternoon turned its attention to tracing the missing $75,000. It also delved into charges of shady practices in the National League.

The feature of the day, however, was the confession of Claude ("Lefty") Williams, White Sox pitcher who, after making a sworn statement to Alfred S. Austrian, attorney for Charles A. Comiskey, appeared before the Grand Jurors and made a clean breast of his relations with the deal. With much emotion he told that he got $10,000 and gave $5,000 to Joe Jackson as the latter's share.

Oscar ("Happy") Felsch, White Sox centre fielder, in a confession which had not reached the jurors, admitted that he also received $5,000.

With the appearance of John F. Heydler, President of the National League, before the jury late in the afternoon, the way was opened for a wide inquiry into games of peculiar aspect in the National League. He told facts about the Zimmerman, Magee and Hal Chase cases. Records of the National Commission were asked for, it was said, and will be handed to the jury within a few days.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, also was called before the inquisitors. He told the reasons for the sudden departure of Heinie Zimmerman from the Giants and corroborated President Heydler in facts concerning Magee and Hal Chase.

Text of Williams's Confession.

Williams's statement went to jurors after he had conferred in chambers with Judge Charles A. McDonald, Chief Justice of the Criminal Court, who is directing the Grand Jury investigation. He was accompanied by Alfred Austrian, attorney for the White Sox management, and Assistant State's Attorney Replogle was present. The gamblers named by him—Sullivan and Brown—are said to be agents of a New York gambler, and associates of Abe Attell, named as the "chief of fixers."

The Warner Hotel meeting described by Williams leaves no doubt as to whether the conspiracy will come within the jurisdiction of the courts of Cook County, according to the State's Attorney. If any part of the conspiracy was concocted in the county the courts here will have jurisdiction, it was said.

My name is Claude Williams. I am the same Claude Williams who has lately been a member of the Chicago American League Baseball Club. I am making this statement of my own free will and volition.

Q.—I want you to mention the names and the gamblers, and the places, and the times, and every one you talked to about the whole subject. A.—This situation was first brought up to me in New York. Mr. Gandil called me to one side, out in front of the Hotel Ansonia, and asked me if anybody had approached me about the world's series, and I said, "Just what do you mean?" He says, "That the series be fixed; if they were fixed, what would you do about it? Would you take an active part, or what?" I say, "I am in no position to say right now. I will give you my answer later, after thinking it over."

After coming back to Chicago I was called down to the Warner Hotel, where the eight members that are named—not eight; I will take that back; I will name them for you: Eddie Cicotte, Chick Gandil, Buck Weaver, and Happy Felsch, and two fellows introduced to us as Brown and Sullivan.

Q.—They were the gamblers? A.—They were supposed to be the gamblers.

Q.—What names were those? A.—Brown and Sullivan. Supposed to be the gamblers, or fellows that were fixing it for the gamblers—one of the two; they didn't say which.

Thought He'd Get $10,000.

Q.—Sullivan was from Boston, wasn't he? A.—They didn't say. They said they were from New York; they introduced them as Brown and Sullivan from New York.

Q.—And you would know them if you saw them? A.—I would, sure; I would know them. They wanted us to throw the series to Cincinnati for $5,000.

Q.—Apiece? A.—Apiece, yes. And I said it wasn't enough: that wasn't enough money to fool with, and I was informed that whether or not I took any action the games would be fixed.

Q.—Who informed you of that? A.—Chick Gandil.

Q.—Right then and there? A.—No, not right then and there; just after that, just as I got in the hall. So I told them anything they did would be agreeable to me, if it was going to be done anyway; that I had no money—I might as well get what I could. I haven't seen those gamblers from that day till this. We were supposed to get—Gandil told me that we were supposed to get—what was it? I was supposed to get $10,000 after the second game, when we got back to Chicago, and I did not get this until after the fourth game, and he then said that the gamblers had called it off, and I figured then that there was a double-cross some place, and on the second trip to Cincinnati Cicotte and I had a conference. I told him we were double-crossed and I was going out to win if there was any possible chance. Cicotte said he was the same way. Gandil informed me in Cincinnati that Bill Burns and Abe Attell were fixing where we would get $100,000, making $20,000 more. That I never received.

Q.—You had a meeting in Cincinnati with the ball players. Where was that? A.—That was in the hotel.

Q.—Who was there? A.—In Chick Gandil's room. We never had a meeting. We just went up there; we just dropped in one at a time. There was Buck Weaver, Eddie Cicotte, Chick Gandil, Happy Felsch and myself.

Q.—Was Weaver there? A.—Yes.

Q.—And what conversation did you have there? A.—We asked him when he was going to get the $100,000 that Burns and Attell was supposed to give us. He says, "They are supposed to give me $20,000 or $30,000 after each game," which if they gave him I know nothing of at all.

Q.—When did he say you would get some money? A.—He didn't say; he didn't make any statement. I was supposed at first to get so much—get $10,000—after the second game. I didn't receive it until after the fourth game.

Gave $5,000 to Jackson, He Says.

Q.—And how much did you receive after the fourth game? A.—$10,000.

Q.—Did you keep the ten? A.—I did not.

Q.—How much did you keep? A.—I kept $5,000 of it.

Q.—$5,000 was for you and $5,000 for Jackson? A.—That was what I was instructed.

Q.—At this first meeting at the Warner Hotel, when these two gamblers were present, who else was present? A.—Nobody only the ball players I have mentioned.

Q.—You have mentioned them, have you? A.—I have mentioned the ball players.

Q.—After the series you were to have gotten $10,000 or $20,000? A.—In all, I was supposed to get $20,000 and Jackson to get $20,000.

Q.—All you got was five? A.—All I got was five. I got $10,000 and I gave Jackson part of that; I gave him half of that.

Q.—Did you ever ask Gandil, or any one else? A. (Interrupting)—I never even talked to Gandil from that day to this.

Q.—Did you talk to any of the other ball players? A.—I never talked to a one.

Q.—About it? A.—Not a thing.

Q.—Did any of the other ball players talk to you about it? A.—They have never mentioned it to me.

Q.—Do you know how much Weaver got? A.—I could not say.

Q.—Did he tell you how much he got? A.—He never did.

Q.—Or Felsch? A.—None of the boys ever told me a word of what they got—whether they got a penny or not.

Q.—Now, is that all you know about the whole thing? A.—That is all I know. I went to Gandil's room; I haven't said that to you; I say Gandil's room—it must have been; he was there. There was the money laying—or two packages, two envelopes, laying there, and he says, "There is your dough." I picked it up and went down to a taxicab and went right back to the hotel, where I went in and threw a half of it on the bed. Some of the folks was in the bathroom or in the bedroom—I won't say which. We had a big suite there. But I went in the other room and I said, "There is supposed to be half of it."

Q.—Now, Mr. Williams, the $10,000 you got was in two separate envelopes? A.—Yes.

Q.—Five thousand in each envelope? A.—Five thousand in each envelope.

Q.—Did you know what games the Sox were to lose for all this money they were getting? A.—Why, they were supposed to lose the first two to Cincinnati, and I never did hear whether they were to lose or win the one with Kerr.

Q.—So that you knew that half of that was to go to Jackson? A.—Yes.

Q.—Gandil told you so, didn't he? A.—Yes, Sir; Gandil told me 'There is five for yourself and five for Jackson and the rest of it has been called for.'

Q.—And that was after the fourth game? A.—That was after the fourth game.

Q.—In Chicago. A.—In Chicago.

Q.—Now, did any one ever speak to you about any more money after any other game? A.—They never said a word to me. Nobody asked me about money or any other game, at all.

Felsch Got $5,000.

That the eight Sox players indicted by the Grand Jury derived little enjoyment from their ill gained wealth was testified to today by "Happy" Felsch, one of the men involved.

"If you say anything about me, don't make it an alibi," was Felsch's attitude. "The beans are spilled, and I think I'm through with baseball. But I'm standing the gaff. I got my $5,000 and I suppose the others got theirs, too. I'm as guilty as the rest of the boys—we were all in it.

"I wish I'd kept out of it—I guess we all feel that way now. We've been feeling that way all Summer, too. All that stuff about us pulling games this year, though, is foolishness. We tried to be square this year. We felt all along that we were going to be caught. I'm glad it's out, in a way.

"Cicotte told the truth in his story. We don't blame him. The Grand Jury had it on us and there wasn't any use in holding out. I would have spilled it myself, but I didn't want to lead the procession. My coin was put in my locker at the club. I don't know who put it there. We were double-crossed on it—it was to have been an even split. I thought Gandil was the fixer, but I wasn't sure—I have heard since it was Attell.

"I got into the deal when I found out the others were in it anyhow—I'd have been $5,000 out if I'd stayed out. Not that that's any excuse. It happened that I didn't have any chances to throw any of the games. Whether I would have carried out my part in the deal if I had the chance I don't know. The coin looked good to us—I suppose I would have done the same as the rest.

"The whole deal seemed so easy when we fell for it—we were expert ball players, and it would have been a snap for us to get away with it, they said. We fell. But you can't get away with it all the time—because while you can fool others you can't fool yourself.

"I got $5,000. I would have gotten that much on the level if the Sox had won. I'm out of baseball—thrown out because I was crooked. Have I gained anything?

"What am I going to do? I don't know—go to hell, I guess.

"We've sold ourselves and our jobs—the only jobs we knew anything about. We've gotten in return only a few dollars—while a lot of gamblers have gotten rich. Looks like the joke's on us, don't it?"

While the impression seems to prevail that the players were double-crossed by the gamblers, the Grand Jurors are said to evince a lively interest in finding out how much money actually reached the players. So far only $25,000 is accounted for as received by certain players, but is known that others have been named as having received money; how much is not known.

The Chicago Cubs management is expected to be asked for all the information available regarding gambling on games in which they have figured where the results have seemed to run directly contrary to what was expected.

President Heydler admitted that he had been asked about Ivan Olson, the Brooklyn shortstop, and Johnny Rawlings, the Philadelphia second baseman, both of whom are said to have been winners to the extent of $2,000 on the last world's series.

"I have no evidence regarding either of these players," said Heydler, on leaving the Grand Jury room. "I was first told about Olson by Ban Johnson, President of the American League. My investigation showed that Olson bet on the series, but I could find nothing, even after investigation, to show that he had any information showing that the games were 'fixed.' I found nothing against Rawlings."

Regarding the cases of Magee and Chase, he said:

"The case of Magee, who was thrown out of baseball, is a matter of court record in Cincinnati. We have proof of Chase's guilt."

Heydler was sharp in his denial that information had reached him that attempts had been made to "fix" the approaching world's series. He was informed that Eastern advices were that District Attorney Lewis of Kings County had begun a probe of reports that gamblers had attempted to bribe the Brooklyn Nationals to "throw" the world's series.

"Any one who would suggest that the world's series has been 'fixed' ought to be shot," he said.

Heydler started tonight for New York after agreeing to return to appear again before the Grand Jury after the world's series is ended if his presence is desired.

He also gave information regarding the charges made by Rube Benton, the New York Giants pitcher, who testified that Buck Herzog, Cub second baseman, had offered him $800 to "throw" a game. Herzog has countered with the charge that Benton won $3,800 on the 1919 world's series on a tip that the games were "fixed."

Cold Stops Practice.

Cold weather kept the loyal squadron of White Sox from practicing at Comiskey Park today in preparation for their closing games of the American League season in St. Louis this week. It was so chilly that Manager Gleason did not even venture out to superintend the tryout which he had scheduled for the makeshift team with which he is expected to complete the schedule.

The players were all on hand but did not don their uniforms on account of the cold, contenting themselves with discussing jubilantly the confessions of their teammates, which confirmed their belief that the world's pennant of last Fall was not won on its merits.

George Weaver was the only one of the players under indictment who had the courage to appear at Comiskey Park. He came to seek an interview with the owner of the South Side team in the hope of exonerating himself. He was permitted to see Comiskey, but at the end of his visit left the ball park with his head down and declined all requests for a statement as to the result of his conference.

Comiskey, after twenty-four hours in which to recover from the shock of the confessions of Cicotte and Jackson, appeared to be more like himself than on the day before, although stricken with sorrow over the disclosures of crookedness in the ranks of his players. The offer of the New York American League Club to lend any or all of its players to Comiskey for the remainder of the season did not meet with as much favor as the suggestion from Harry Frazee of Boston, that each of the American League Club owners contribute a player to the Chicago Club for next year.

Manager Gleason will take the team to St. Louis tomorrow and give it a night's rest before beginning the final series, consisting of three games against the Browns Friday, Saturday and Sunday. By winning all three the Sox can nose themselves into the world's series in case Detroit takes three out of four games from the Indians.

The Sox pilot will use Jourdan on first, Eddie Collins on second, McClellan at short and Murphy at third, with John Collins, Leibold and Strunk in the outfield. The pitching staff will consist of Faber, Kerr, Wilkinson and Hodge, with Schalk doing the catching, unless he is incapacitated.

Heydler Says Magee Confessed.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—John A. Heydler's testimony before the Grand Jury today was largely the interview he gave to newspaper men Sunday night telling of his private investigation; how Comiskey had told him a year ago he suspected some of the White Sox players and how he and William Veeck, President of the Chicago Cubs, had obtained a confession from Lee Magee.

"One incident in Magee's case is amusing," said Heydler, "for while I think he tried to throw this game he really helped win it.

"In July, 1918, Magee was playing second for Cincinnati against Boston. He came to bat with two out and hit an easy grounder which took a bad bounce and he was safe. He was ordered to steal second and ambled down. When half way to second, he stopped, but Art Wilson made a wild throw and Magee had to go on to third. He might have scored with the tying run, I think, if he had tried, but he didn't. Then, Roush knocked a home run. Magee had to come in with the tying run and Roush's run of course, won the game."

Heydler is said to have told the jury that Magee confessed to him and Veeck that he took part in the throwing of several games.

"It isn't true, is it, Joe?"

"Yes, boys, I'm afraid it is," Jackson replied.

According to an official in the State's Attorney's office the names of two brothers in Des Moines have been brought before the jury. They are said to have placed large bets on the world's series and to have been tipped that it was "fixed."

Further indictments against gamblers may be expected within a day or two, it was said. The jury will not consider baseball at its session tomorrow, but probably will resume the investigation the next day.

"Throwing" of the 1919 world's series cost the players bribed and their innocent teammates as well, an opportunity to win $1,952.65, the difference between their loser's shares of $3,254.36 and the $5,207.01 paid each victorious Red.

Eight players were bribed, according to Cicotte and Jackson, the sums paid them ranging from $5,000 to $10,000. Every one of the eight, it is said, was getting a salary in excess of $5,000 a year and some as high as $10,000 or more. Cicotte testified his salary, which he lost when President Charles A. Comiskey suspended him, was $10,000, just the amount of the bribe he admitted taking. Jackson, who got $5,000 of the gamblers' money, is said to have received a salary in excess of $10,000 a year.

Comiskey was the heaviest financial loser in the transaction, however. He estimated today that seven of the eight players, excluding Gandil, who is not with the team this year, had a cash value of $230,000.

INNOCENT WHITE SOX MEET.

Players Hold Dinner—"We'll Win Pennant," Says Gleason.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—The White Sox players who were not implicated in the baseball scandal held a celebration at a dinner tonight.

"We've known something was wrong for a long time, but we felt we had to keep silent because we were fighting for the pennant," said Eddie Collins. "Now it's all over and we're the happiest bunch in the world."

Besides Collins, Eddie Murphy, Amos Strunk, "Nemo" Leibold and John Collins were present. "Red" Faber and Ray Schalk, unable to attend, telephoned during the dinner to express their happiness over the "clearing of the atmosphere."

"We're going to win the pennant and then the world's series, in spite of this," "Kid" Gleason, manager of the White Sox said tonight.

"The thing has come to a head and I'm glad of it," he added. "I've been working on this affair with Mr. Comiskey for a long time, and it has kept me under a tremendous strain. The evidence we were able to give the jury today evidently was sufficient, and I'm mighty happy that it's all cleared up. The men on my team now are real men and real ball players, and we're going to win the pennant and then the world's series, in spite of this scandal."

When Comiskey reached his office just before noon, he found enough letters and telegrams waiting for him to fill two good sized barrels. Baseball officials, players and "fans" from all parts of the country telegraphed their sympathy and congratulated the Old Roman on the manner in which he had cleared his team of the accused players.

"It's been tough, but I feel better this morning," Comiskey remarked after reading some of the messages. "I am glad the worst is over," he added. "The boys who are left are clean; they have never sold a ball game, and they never will."

Comiskey, Gleason and Harry Brabiner, club secretary, began working out a new batting order today, assigning the reserve men to fill the seven vacant places in the regular lineup.

GANDIL IN TEXAS HOSPITAL.

Is Recovering from Appendicitis Operation—Refuses Statement.

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 29.—"Chick" Gandil, former White Sox ball player, indicted as one of the ringleaders in the plot to throw the 1919 series, today was at a hospital in Lufkin, Texas, recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

No one was permitted to see Gandil, but he issued this statement through his physician:

"There is absolutely nothing I care to say regarding charges made and I shall not attempt to make a statement of any kind until my physicians have informed me that my condition will warrant me returning to active work."

Gandil is a former Lufkin resident. He was operated on yesterday.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29.—"Chick" Gandil came here last Winter and bought a home. Later, he went to St. Anthony, Idaho, to manage a ball team, but returned, saying his health was better in California. He played baseball at Bakersfield and elsewhere this season. A week ago he sold his home and started with Mrs. Gandil by automobile for the announced destination of New Orleans.

GOT TIP IN PITTSBURGH.

Gamblers There Followed Lead of Philadelphia Visitors.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29.—A prominent gambler here, speaking of the baseball scandal tonight, said:

"The first intimation that we had last year that there was any suspicion in regard to the games between the White Sox and the Reds was the visit here of two Philadelphia men, one by the name of Gilchrist, I believe, who placed bets amounting to $5,000 for the first two games, taking Cincinnati for their end. As the White Sox at that time were the favorites in the betting this aroused suspicion here, and a great many of the betting fraternity placed their money the same way, and of course won out handsomely. However, I am sure, that no one here did any fixing of players or knew anything about it."

District Attorney Harry A. Rowand said tonight that he stood ready to assist in any Grand Jury investigation that may be started in Pittsburgh to ascertain all the facts regarding the baseball scandal, so far as it refers to this district.

The Cincinnati Reds play here tomorrow, and Mr. Rowand said that if any one could give information to him alleging any "fixing" done here he would make any players or gamblers that he could round up appear before the Grand Jury now sitting here. Nothing has been done, however, in the way of bringing the case to the attention of the authorities in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County.

Honus Wagner, for more than a decade star shortstop of the Pittsburgh National League Club, and twice a player in world's championship games, was stunned when told of the indictment and suspension of eight Chicago American players, and expressed the hope that it was the primary step in the safeguarding of the "Grand Old Game" from professional gamblers.

"I am for the thing that will bring about conditions that mean the rescue of baseball from the fate that has befallen wrestling, boxing and horse racing," said Honus. "There should be quick retribution for every player who has allowed himself to be 'reached' while the tempters of the players should be railroaded along with Cicotte and others of the White Sox who have betrayed their employers and fellow players. Knowing ball players as I do, it is hard for me to believe that there will be any crookedness in the forthcoming games for the world's championship, because my personal acquaintance with nearly all of the boys who are to play in them assures me that their integrity is too high to allow them to be 'fixed' by anybody or any clique."

TAX AGENTS ON TRAIL.

Ask if Players Reported Alleged Bribe Money.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Should an investigation disclose that the Chicago White Sox players who received money for "throwing" the 1919 world series failed to make a tax return to the Internal Revenue Bureau on these funds prosecutions will be instituted, it was said today by George B. Newton, Deputy Commissioner of the income tax unit of the bureau.

Mr. Newton said his office would make use of the information brought to light by the inquiry now being conducted at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Eliot Evans, Assistant Collector of Internal Revenue, today began an investigation to determine if Eddie Cicotte and Joe Jackson had reported the alleged bribes in their income tax returns. Cicotte, it is said, received $10,000 salary, and has admitted, it is alleged, taking a $10,000 bribe. The income tax on the second $10,000 would be $1,400, and in case it was not paid the penalty for failure would be $700, making a total of $2,100.

CINCINNATI MAY PROSECUTE.

Grand Jury to Investigate Acts of Indicted Players.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 29.—"There is sure to be a local investigation of the baseball scandal," Louis Capelle, County Prosecutor, said today. "You may rest assured the new Grand Jury, which will soon be formed, will go to the very bottom of this subject."

"The laws of Ohio," said Mr. Capelle, "do not follow those of Illinois, where the 'fixing' of ball games becomes a conspiracy, the penalties for which are severe." He indicated that he would instruct the Grand Jury to indict local "fixers" under the State law, which specifies that "whoever aids, abets or procures another to commit an offense may be punished as if he were the principal." The offense charged will not be conspiracy, but gambling, which carries a ten-day, $10 minimum penalty, and a six months, $100 maximum penalty.

Under this law, the Prosecutor said, every person who gambled, whether he had any part in the "fixing of games or not, could be prosecuted. This included the man whose money was lost, the man who guaranteed the ball players their money and the ball players themselves.

Mr. Capelle asserted that he had absolute confidence in the integrity of Cincinnati Baseball Club officials and Cincinnati players. The new Grand Jury will probably be drawn tomorrow and may contain the names of several women.

Manager Moran and all the Red players, without exception, declare that at the time of the world's series last year, and until now, they had no idea other than that they were winning on the level. They say that at no time was any intimation conveyed to them that any crooked work was being done.

August Herrmann, President of the Reds, was asked what, under the circumstances now laid bare, the club was going to do about the pennant it won last year.

"Will you surrender the pennant or do you still consider your claim to victory beyond dispute?" Mr. Herrmann was asked. He replied:

"I have never given such a ridiculous question any thought. We won the National League pennant fairly and squarely, and had to beat a team or two to do it that were stronger than the White Sox playing at their best and on the level. We could not hand the pennant back to the Sox simply because they did not try to win it, and, what is more, we believe firmly that we would have beaten them had every man on Comiskey's team played the string out and on the level."

CRITICISED BY "POP" ANSON.

Special to The New York Times.

SAGINAW, Mich., Sept. 29.—"Pop" Anson, the veteran of the early days of baseball, playing here in vaudeville, today charged Presidents Ban Johnson of the American League and John Heydler, of the National League, with being "weak-kneed" in their investigation of charges of "fixing" ball games.

"I think Johnson and Heydler have been weak kneed in this matter," said Anson. "They should have found out about these things themselves and cleaned up the game without waiting for a Grand Jury to do it. A practical blacklist was established against Hal Chase, Lee Magee and Heine Zimmerman, and they have been kept out of the pastime, yet nothing was done to clean up the game. I am sure that Comiskey has been absolutely square in the matter.

"I think, though, this thing will have a beneficial effect on the game. It will clean things up and satisfy the people that baseball is really on the square."

It may be true that indictments have been voted. There may be an indictment against you, but indictments are not made public until they are returned. In this case apparently there is not as yet any official charge against any one.

"You may be certain that if there is any evidence of a crime it will be vigorously prosecuted. I am going back to Chicago on Friday and will take with me the information that I have gathered in this and other cities. The evidence which I received here is largely corroborative."

Mr. Hoyne said that in Illinois procedure there were only two courses of action open to a Grand Jury—either to vote an indictment or not to vote one. If an indictment is voted, he said, it was usually returned immediately.

Mr. Hoyne declined to enter into any discussion of the Illinois laws relating to the baseball cases until he had returned to Chicago and had had an opportunity to go over the evidence. His knowledge of the case, based on his investigation up to the time he left Chicago ten days ago and subsequent communications with his office, inclines him to the opinion that the only crime under which any one involved may be prosecuted is that of gambling or conspiracy to gamble, a misdemeanor in Illinois. Under this theory the ball players conspired with professional gamblers to permit the gamblers to lay wagers on the world's series games of 1919, thereby defrauding the public. The penalty for such an offense is a small fine or a jail term not to exceed six months, although the penalty for general conspiracy runs as high as ten years' imprisonment.

To convict the players under the provisions referred to, would, it was said, require evidence that the players had actually taken part in the gambling.

Mr. Hoyne, after a long distance telephone talk with his office last night, seemed doubtful whether indictments for general conspiracy would hold. He admitted further that there was a possibility that no indictments would hold. If the indictments, as voted are not returned before Mr. Hoyne gets back to Chicago he may attempt to hold them back, if, after examining the evidence, he concludes that the indictments would be thrown out of court.

immediately that he would suspend at once any players on the Brooklyn Club who was concerned in any rumors. Mr. Lewis made it understood, however, that there was no evidence against any individual and that the object of the investigation was as much in the interest of the players as in the public interest. He believed, however, that the nature of the charges made an inquiry imperative.

Mr. Lewis indicated that he intended to prosecute vigorously any one involved as a result of the inquiry, whether he be a player or a gambler. It was said that both players and gamblers could be charged, under the criminal code, with conspiracy to do an illegal thing.

"The Brooklyn Baseball Club," said Mr. Ebbets, "will do everything in its power to facilitate an investigation by the District Attorney's office. We have absolute confidence in our players and are certain that any charges which are being made will be proved absolutely false. I have notified District Attorney Lewis that I will have all of the players report to him."

Zach Wheat, Captain of the Brooklyn team, expressed surprise when he was told last night that the members of the team were to be questioned by District Attorney Lewis with reference to reports that the Dodgers had been approached in an attempt to "fix" the world's series.

"Of course, there is absolutely no truth in the whole thing," said Wheat. "No one ever approached me and it would not be good for him if he had. I am sure that none of the other players has been approached. If anybody has any doubts about the game we will play they had better come out and see us perform. Perhaps we will be beaten in the series, but we will play the best game that we can.

"Even the hint that there is anything wrong is bound to affect the fielding of the men. We have always played clean ball and were in there fighting up to the finish this season."

The Brooklyn team will meet the Giants this afternoon at the Polo Grounds. Some of the players, those whom Mr. Ebbets was able to reach yesterday by telephone, will see District Attorney Lewis before the game, and it is believed that the owners will instruct Manager Wilbert Robinson to send as many pitchers and substitutes as he can spare during the game to see the prosecutor during the afternoon. The others will meet Mr. Lewis tomorrow.

LORD GREY URGES IRISH SETTLEMENT

believe, the deepest underlying cause of Irish troubles, of Irish disunion, and of the failure of every attempt hitherto made to find a solution of the Irish problem."

Calls it the Only Solution.

In an editorial The Westminster Gazette says:

"Viscount Grey's right to speak on the subject will be questioned by none of his countrymen. He has been a member of two Liberal Administrations which staked their fortunes on an attempt to give Home Rule to Ireland. He knows from personal experience what the consequences of British failure to govern Ireland are, both in Europe and in America. He is in a position, so far as any Englishman can be, to take a detached and disinterested view.

"He has given the editor of The Westminster Gazette a free hand in the choice of the moment to publish this communication, and in the editor's judgment there could be no moment more opportune than the present.

"It is not less effective because it was written before the recent reprisals gave even a sharper edge to the controversy. After the events of last week serious people in both countries are more than ever convinced of the need of a new departure which shall radically change the attitude of the British to the Irish and the Irish to the British.

"The value of Lord Grey's communication is that it is in this sense constructive and positive."

Believing Lord Grey to be right, and that in the situation now reached no lesser measure than he suggests will serve, the newspaper proceeds:

"If the present demoralization continues we may even reach the point when the immediate evacuation of the British forces comes to be demanded as the sole means of saving our good name and rescuing the country from an intolerable vendetta. No one who reads the official apology for the present events which appears today in the Daily Chronicle can be in the least reassured. That reveals only too plainly the steps by which the disordered country may slip into authorized anarchy, the murder campaign of the extremists being answered by the indiscriminate violence of the police, and the immunity of one being pleaded as an excuse for not disciplining the other.

"The Sinn Fein murders are atrocious, but it is admitted that the guilty are comparatively few and the wild justice of the 'black and tan' revenge falls indiscriminately on the innocent and the guilty. We cannot go further along this path without destroying our good name and earning the condemnation which we ourselves have passed upon those who practiced terrorism, whether Prussians or Bolsheviki. The Irish can do no worse disservice to the British than to drag them down to these levels."

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Sir Horace Plunkett, advocate of Dominion Home Rule for Ireland, has re-entered the Irish controversy. He issued an appeal to the Sinn Feiners today asking them to abandon the Republican idea and accept his policy as the only solution of the Irish problem.

"Cease Murders, Reprisals Will Stop."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Daily Chronicle gives what it understands is a fair representation of the Government's attitude towards reprisals in Ireland. The provocations, in the Government's view, have been far greater than has been realized by the British public, the newspaper says, adding: "During the last few months nearly 100 policemen have been foully murdered by secret assassins. Their wives are widowed and their children orphaned, and the most ingenious devices of the latest murder clubs of the Far West have been imported into Ireland, the victims sometimes being slain by shots fired from an inside pocket.

"No warning of any kind is given and it is impossible to collect evidence because the public is terrorized and possible witnesses go in danger of their lives.

"Because of this lack of evidence policemen very often have to stand by and see the murderers of their comrades moving at liberty and unpunished. This undoubtedly has proved a very great strain on the discipline and forbearance of this splendid force. While this is known to the Government, a great many of these facts, and especially the extent of the 'Red terror' that prevails in Ireland, have been concealed from the British public by the deliberate and systematic interference of telegraph operators holding Sinn Fein views. With telegraphic communication between Ireland and England in their hands, these means often have been used to slur over the brutality of the murder campaign on the side of the extreme Republican Party, for the Government does not accuse the moderate Sinn Feiners of participation in those murders.

"The same means—tampering with telegraphic communication—are now being employed to spread through the United Kingdom exaggerated accounts of the reprisals, and it is most vital that the British public should keep cool over these attempts to deceive them. They should not believe everything they read, but should wait for verification before accepting all the accounts of misconduct of the Irish police.

"It is the intention of the Government to check these reprisals by such disciplinary measures as are best fitted to the situation, but the authorities refuse to apply the strict letter of the civil law to acts committed in hot blood and under extreme provocation of seeing their comrades murdered, as, for instance, when Inspector Burke and his brother were both cruelly shot in a restaurant at Balbriggan while celebrating the recent promotion of Inspector Burke. But although they refuse to hang policemen while other criminals go at large, they will take steps and summary methods to repress these excesses.

"At the same time they desire to point out that the best way to stop reprisals would be for the murderers to cease murdering. There have been no cases of police attacks without previous provocation, and if the provocation ceases reprisals will therefore, by the nature of things, cease too. The offenders have been chiefly the younger policemen recently recruited, and often freshly arrived from England, and it is more difficult to restrict the anger of these younger men. That is only because the discipline of the older men is under better control and not because of any bad feeling between Englishmen and Irishmen, for the murdered policemen are generally Irishmen.

"It is the present intention of the Government to go forward with the home rule proposals in the hope that they may prove a centre ground upon which moderate Irish opinions may coalesce. The Government has no intention of adopting any desperate new policy such as that of retiring to the coast of Ireland and retaining only the ports. The authorities firmly believe that the cause of the United Kingdom can be saved by adherence to a sane and steady policy of order and reform."

SINN FEINERS CONDUCT FUNERALS IN BELFAST

'Republican Army' Parades Openly in Cortege, While British Troops Line Thoroughfares.

BELFAST, Sept. 29.—Fred Blair, who was wounded during the rioting here last night, died today.

The Lord Mayor has informed the promoters of the Irish Atrocities Commission that conditions in Belfast preclude his acceptance of the commission's invitation to go to Dublin and give testimony regarding the situation.

Last night's rioting, in which two civilians were shot dead and a number of persons wounded, began when a number of men in Falls Road, the Nationalist quarter, commenced firing down Townsend Street in the direction of Shankhill Road, the Orange quarter, simultaneously extinguishing the street lamps.

Troops quickly arrived and occupied the end of Falls Road, whereupon the men fired a volley at them. The soldiers returned the fire, killing two civilians and wounding many others, some seriously.

Later a curfew patrol was fired upon at Falls Road. The patrol replied, but the results are unknown.

The three men killed in reprisals over the week-end rioting, John Gaynor, Edward Troddens and John McFadden, were buried today, and in spite of the recent order prohibiting the marching of members of proclaimed political organizations, there was a large turnout of Irish volunteers. Five hundred volunteers followed the coffins of Gaynor and Troddens, but none were in the procession which escorted the body of McFadden to the cemetery. Relatives of McFadden deny that he was a Sinn Feiner.

Falls Road traverses a Sinn Fein community and lies only a few hundred yards from Shankhill Road, a strong Unionist thoroughfare which roughly parallels it. North Adams Street, connecting the two roads, is the site of a foundry employing a large number of Unionists. This street was kept clear by troops, which faced Falls Road, which was congested with people at that point. Troddens's home being nearby. Every post along the street sheltered a soldier, who was lying flat on the sidewalk, rifle in hand. At the other end of the street could be seen a crowd of Unionists watching the throngs on Falls Road.

The coffins of Gaynor and Troddens were draped with Republican flags, which the troops allowed to remain until the procession reached the cemetery, where the cortége was stopped and the removal of the flags was ordered. Care also was taken by the military to prevent Volunteers from firing a salute at the grave.

Mallow Town Burns All Night.

CORK, Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—The town of Mallow, County Meath, set afire yesterday in reprisal for a Sinn Fein raid on the military barracks there, was still burning this morning.

The Cork fire brigade was summoned to Mallow at 1:30 o'clock this morning, but owing to the curfew law it was unable to respond until after 3 o'clock. Meanwhile the flames made great headway.

The townspeople yesterday afternoon, fearing reprisals for the raid on the barracks, took all possible precautions. Many of them left town, and shops and residences were heavily shuttered. The reprisals began at midnight, and as the flames swept through the town the inhabitants who had remained at home rushed into the streets or the neighboring fields.

LONDONDERRY, Sept. 29.—A shipyard worker, proceeding along the leading thoroughfare of the city, was shot and wounded today. His assailants escaped. A crowd which collected was dispersed by the military.

A police patrol at Drimoleague, near Skibbereen, was attacked last night. A sergeant of the patrol was seriously wounded.

WARN TOWN OF DROGHEDA.

Placards Say Five Will Die for Any Policeman Killed.

DUBLIN, Sept. 29.—Notices have been posted in Drogheda bearing the following warning:

"Drogheda, beware! If in this vicinity a policeman is shot five of the leading Sinn Feiners will be shot. It is not coercion. It is an eye for an eye.

"We are not 'drink-maddened savages,' as we have been described in Dublin 'rags.' We are not for loot. We are inoffensive to women. We are as humane as other Christians, but we have restrained ourselves too long.

"Are we to lie down while our comrades are being shot in cold blood by the corner boys and ragamuffins of Ireland? We say 'Never!' and all the inquiries in the world won't halt our desire for revenge. In case of the shooting of police we will lay low every house that smell of the Sinn Fein, and remember Balbriggan."

MACSWINEY SINKS GRADUALLY.

But Daily Change Is Almost Imperceptible, an Official Says.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The bulletin on Lord Mayor MacSwiney issued by the Irish Self-Determination League tonight says that his condition is little changed. He seems somewhat easier and obtained some sleep.

In its morning bulletin the league said that MacSwiney had a very bad night at Brixton Prison and was looking very drawn this morning. He was very weak, the bulletin stated, but otherwise there was little change in his condition.

In his report to the Home Office, the physician at Brixton Prison stated that MacSwiney had a restful night and was in bright spirits this morning.

"For some days," said an official, "the change from day to day in Lord Mayor MacSwiney has been so slight that it has been almost imperceptible, but his emaciated face and weakening voice tell the tale of gradual deterioration."

This was the forty-eighth day of the Lord Mayor's hunger strike.

Pounds a Scalp in 1777. They Give Booze to the Black and Tans in 1920." Another attacked Sir Lowther Grant.

Several husky men in the audience nearest the pickets started for them. So did the lone patrolman who was in the hall. The Irishmen were joined by some of the women pickets. In the mêlée that followed clothes were torn and faces pummeled. "I'm a member of the American Legion," shouted one young man. "Where do they get off to sing 'God Save the King?'" "Sure," joined in another. "We are pro-Americans and this meeting is pro-British."

"Hurrah for De Valera!" yelled an Irishman just as an American officer's fist landed on his jaw. "We don't want no limeys!" shouted another as he caught sight of several British naval officers coming down the steps leading to the parquet floor. There was a storm of hisses from all over the hall and cries of "Put them out!" The men and women pickets fought and struggled with the ushers and spectators.

By this time spectators all over the hall were on their feet and began edging toward the knot of struggling men and women, who were cursing, yelling and pushing. It was then that Mr. Gunther ordered the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." The pickets were shoved into the street, where they again unrolled their banners and walked up and down until the audience dispersed.

The men denied to reporters that they acted in concert with the women and declared they did not belong to any Irish organization. Among the women pickets were Elizabeth Keena, Sophia Shields, Margaret Stack and Catherine O'Brennan.

In her address Lady Rathcreedan declared that agitation directed in this country against England was indulged in by people who did not matter in the least.

Parker Rebukes Trouble Makers.

Mr. Parker said that, while Sinn Feiners were fond of sending communications to the British Government, the latter acted sensibly in disregarding the complaints because they knew they emanated from politicians in this country who sought votes by this process. He declared also that the meeting was one which Sinn Feiners, as well as pro-Germans, did not like, but, despite their dislike, the movement for a British-American accord would grow until the two countries found each other in an affectionate embrace for all time.

The other speakers were Mr. Dandurand and Dr. A. J. Barnouw, representing Holland at the celebration.

Among those present were Vice Admiral H. P. Jones, U. S. S. Utah; Brig. Gen. Oliver Bridgman, Rear Admiral Simpson, U. S. S. Columbia; Major Lorillard Spencer, Robert Grier Cooke, Louis Annin Ames, Arnold W. Brunner, Stanley M. Isaacs, Dr. George F. Kunz and George Gordon Battle.

Representatives also occupied boxes from the American Mayflower Council, New York Historical Society; Junior Naval Reserve and Order of Founders and Patriots in America. Members of the Consulate staffs of Great Britain, France, Italy and Holland were also present.

Mr. Depew at Luncheon.

The foreign delegates to the Mayflower celebration were guests of the American branch of the Pilgrims yesterday at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton. Chauncey M. Depew presided and the speakers included Sir Arthur Shipley, Vice Chancellor of Cambridge University; Raoul Dandurand and Dr. W. H. de Beaufort, Chargé d'Affaires of the Netherlands.

"There is one feature of the Pilgrim development very little noticed," said Mr. Depew, "but of tremendous significance when communism is trying so hard to capture the world. These open-minded Pilgrims gave it a fair trial. They had the finest opportunity ever offered to put it into practice. There was a whole continent before them and absolute freedom of action. But in this community of goods and of property, with no individual rights, their colony was starving in the midst of plenty.

"They discovered that the basic principle of human effort and success is the incentive to the individual to own and enjoy for himself and his posterity whatever his genius, his ability, his industry and his thrift acquired. With communism abolished and this principle inaugurated we have the settlement and the development of the American Continent with its cities, its villages, its factories and its farms, its system of transportation and its inter-allied industries, the most prosperous and powerful nation on the globe."

Speaking of Conservation—Consider the Cow

AS THE world's population grows, and the liviable areas become more congested, conservation of our food resources becomes a very serious problem.

Did you ever think what the cow does for the cause of food conservation? Just this: Year after year, during her life as a milker, she takes food material that you cannot eat and converts it into the best and only complete food in the world; milk.

And while doing this, she produces your beef supply and replenishes the herds of milk makers.

Milk is the only food for which there is no substitute Yet it is the cheapest.

A cow gives more for the money invested in her than any helper man employs. Most of what she consumes would otherwise be absolute waste. Efficient organization makes her product immediately available for food.

COX RAPS HARDING ON HECKLER ARREST

Calls It Curbing of Free Speech and Contrasts His Own Answering of Questions.

LAYS IT TO 'OLIGARCHY'

Asks Crowds in Missouri and Kansas What Senators Will Do if They Gain Control.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 29.—Governor James M. Cox in his speeches in Missouri and Kansas today coupled his charge that Democratic newspapers had been brought by reactionary Republican interests with the arrest of Edward A. Ryan, a lawyer in Baltimore, after Ryan had interrupted Senator Harding to ask a question. Governor Cox asserted that these circumstances were symptomatic of the nation-wide effort of the Senate group to seize control of the Government and work their will against the best interests of the people.

In addresses at St. Joseph, Mo., Atchison and Valley Falls, Kan., during the day and Topeka tonight Governor Cox asked the voters to "stop, look and listen" before they cast their ballots and give consideration to the consequences which might result from such a concentration of power in the hands of a few who, Cox charged, had no use for progressiveism and humanity in the direction of the nation's affairs.

"It is high time," said Governor Cox, "that the prudent thinking citizen aroused himself to his duty. Four years of reactionary government will bring them more than public regret."

In leading up to this peroration Governor Cox tonight discussed the arrest of Ryan at length, asserting that it was a blow at free assemblage and speech, typical of what might be expected by the people once the "candidate of the Senate oligarchy" was in power.

The Governor added the comment:

"The forces of reaction have practiced Russianized methods in this country in the past, but it is a dangerous time now to try it."

Then, turning to the question of newspapers, Governor Cox said:

"There is no doubt but what the Republican National Committee in the last few years has conducted a systematic plan, either in purchasing or assisting in purchasing outright, Democratic newspapers and suspending them or having them absorbed by reactionary publications. In the State of South Dakota I am advised that there is not a Democratic daily. In one of the Western States it is said that the transfer of sixteen newspaper properties has occurred in the last year and a half.

"Once the press was controlled, high-handed methods were adopted and then the reaction came. Socialistic newspapers sprung up in many sections. It only proved again the theory that one extreme leads to another."

Points to Baltimore Incident.

Again the Governor invited his hearers to question him, saying:

"You won't be put in jail if you do. If all the persons who have asked me questions on this Western trip were incarcerated you would not have room for them in your State penitentiary.

"Everywhere I have gone on this trip I have asked the audiences questions and I have permitted any man or woman to ask me any kind of a question that suggested itself to them. What a contrast a few days ago in the City of Baltimore! A citizen of the United States, an attorney at law named Ryan, arose in his place and exercising his right as an American citizen, asked the candidate of the Senatorial oligarchy where he stood on the subject of the League of Nations. The Senatorial candidate replied that he had not expected a discourtesy when he came to Maryland. The next morning that citizen found himself in jail because he had asked a Presidential candidate a question. I notice in the papers this morning that there is a hasty attempt to disavow responsibility.

"But I cite in contrast to that, that in my first speech in the State of Minnesota an Irishman asked me a question. He asked me how I stood on the Irish question, and a policeman started to put him out. I stopped it by saying that we were in America and not in Russia, and that I believed in free speech and in the right of assembly.

"Now, men and women, this is not a trifling circumstance. If the Senatorial oligarchy, which has been running that body, and which now attempts to annex the Presidency of the United States, won't answer a question now, what sort of an arbitrary spirit might be expected after March 4 if the people give to the Senatorial oligarchy the control not only of the Senate but the Presidency as well? It is an index to what we might expect.

"I ask you men and women, who are disposed to be careful and prudent and even conservative in your mental processes, as you stand confronted with the greatest responsibilities that any electoral body has ever been confronted with—I ask you to reflect upon this; this is an index to the arbitrary use of power that we might expect unless it is halted, unless it is averted by the prudent exercise of caution by the great body of American voters."

Talks to Germans in Audience.

Governor Cox made his first address in St. Joseph, where a crowd filled the auditorium for the opening of the State campaign. There Governor Cox took up the question of Germany's admission to the League of Nations.

"Let me pause just long enough," he said, "to make a statement in the State where you have many people through whose veins flow the blood of their German ancestors. They suffered during this war, thousands and thousands of them. Loyal as any of our people, thousands of them suffered because of their name and they suffered because a minority of Junkers made the whole race and blood appear to be unworthy in the eyes of our people.

"I had a great sympathy for them, but I am opposed to a separate peace with Germany. It would be dishonorable, it would be dishonest, it would be perfidious.

"I am in favor of Germany coming into the League. I am in favor of every nation in the world, when she meets the conditions that are imposed, coming into the League. This is a new order. The bitterness of the past must be forgotten and we must establish the League and bring every nation in the world into it and subject them all to the conditions which it imposes."

Governor Cox also repeated his promise that he would bring to the attention of the League of Nations the question of Ireland, and he added:

"If Ireland becomes an independent governmental entity, she will thank God on bended knee for Article X. of the League of Nations. Yes, I mean Article X., for although Article XI. provides for bringing the Irish question to the attention of the League, Article X. prevents external aggression and international burglary."

He again referred to the letter which he has stated that Senator Harding wrote to Senator Johnson, pledging himself to "scrap" the League in return for Johnson's support.

"It is as clearly a part of the literature of the campaign as the speech of acceptance made by either candidate," said Governor Cox. "I want that letter made public. I do not want anything going on behind the scenes."

For Land Grants Before Bonus.

Governor Cox was asked at Atchison and Topeka about his attitude on a bonus for ex-service men. Senator Capper, Republican, is a strong advocate of bonuses. Governor Cox said that he favored, instead, a systematic reclamation system which would give soldiers homes.

"I believe," said Governor Cox, "that we should stop maintaining large armaments and that we should reclaim lands and give to the soldier boys something of substance, give every one of them an opportunity to have a home and a farm of his own, which is worth a good deal more to any one of them than is a bonus. That is my plan for the present."

A man in the audience at Atchison said that when President Wilson came home from Europe with the League covenant he said that it might be necessary to use force to make the League effective. Governor Cox replied that he did not believe that physical force would be necessary. He added:

"If moral strength cannot control the civilization of the world, then the civilization of the world is not going to exist. But we are going to make the trial.

"I can see as the great compensation of the war that it gives to the people of this generation the opportunity to give to the men, women and children of the coming generations a guarantee against the tragedies of war. I have faith in the people and I have faith in God. I believe that moral influence will be sufficient."

ROOSEVELT ANSWERS HARDING ON TARIFF

Defines Democratic Attitude and Denounces Protective Policy Favored by the Senator.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 29.—Greeted tonight by an enthusiastic crowd which packed the Auditorium here, in which Senator Harding had spoken a few hours before, Franklin D. Roosevelt bitterly attacked the labor record and tariff policy of the Republican candidate, and again charged him to "state plainly and definitely his attitude on the League of Nations."

Referring to Senator Harding's remarks on the tariff here last night, Mr. Roosevelt declared, amid great applause, that "if Senator Harding's tariff policy should prevail it would serve only to create a greater concentration of wealth in the hands of the few and to start the now declining cost of living of the average citizen once more on the up grade."

"I wish that Senator Harding would speak every day and every night," Mr. Roosevelt said "His every address emphasizes the true shallowness of the Republican campaign. For instance, last night here in this city he tried once more to revamp the tariff question. He spent his time talking about the dangers to our industries of having a Democratic President or a Democratic Congress during the next four years, while he carefully avoided all references to the fact that under a Democratic President this nation has not suffered in its industries from the competition of foreign countries, but that the country, on the other hand, has enjoyed the most remarkable period of prosperity in its history.

"The tariff question in this country is a scientific question and one which, by the common consent of the great mass of voters, has been taken out of politics and placed on the scientific basis to which it belongs. The tariff must, of course, be changed from time to time, and should be handled by a non-political, scientific body such as the present Tariff Commission, constituted several years ago with the assistance of purely patriotic members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, both Republicans and Democrats.

"Here is the fundamental difference between Senator Harding's tariff stand and that of Governor Cox. Both are equally in favor of preventing any injury to honest American industry by cheap foreign labor, but Governor Cox and I are firmly convinced that this must be done for the good of the nation by non-partisan experts.

"Senator Harding believes it must be accomplished by a reversion to the discredited methods of the past, by which certain highly favored political manufacturing interests were given such high protection that it constituted more than a complete monopoly in their own special lines of productions. Many of the products thus given a special privilege were products which enter into the cost of living of the average American citizen. This special privilege enabled the special interests controlling them to place the price of their article at any figure they chose, thereby forcing the consuming public to pay out of their products abnormal profits—constituting what we would call today profiteers of the most shameless kind."

Large crowds greeted Mr. Roosevelt in virtually every town through which he passed, the largest being at Morgantown, Clarksburg, Mannington and Fairmont.

The party will leave Wheeling early tomorrow for Charleston, crossing over into Ohio at Marietta for an address. After the Charleston meeting he will make a two-day campaign in Kentucky.

VIERECK RETORTS TO COX.

Says Germans He Represents Put America First.

In answer to Governor Cox's reference to him in his speech Tuesday at Sioux Falls, S. D., George Sylvester Viereck sent this telegram to the Democratic candidate yesterday:

"Why do you misrepresent me by quoting maliciously garbled statements, insulting alike to my intelligence and my Americanism? In your speech of Sept. 28 at Sioux Falls you are reported as saying: 'You have been reading George Viereck's stuff, haven't you? He said he was going to deliver 6,000,000 votes to Senator Harding because Senator Harding favors a German-American alliance.' I am guilty of no such egregious twaddle. I did say, and reiterate, that 6,000,000 Americans of German descent—and more—will vote for Senator Harding because their love for America and their regard for the Constitution compel them to repudiate any candidate who indorses 'Him Who Kept Us Out of War' and his British-made League of Nations. Unable to believe a candidate for high office guilty of deliberate falsification, I look forward to your retraction.

"In the course of your speech, and in other utterances, you make an unabashed bid for the German-American vote by pointing out that membership in the League of Nations will be beneficial to Germany. Senator Harding's appeal to the foreign born is based on purely American grounds. Your appeal to Americans of German descent is based on 'Deutschland über Alles.' As an American of German descent I resent, both on behalf of myself and my associates, the insidious insinuation against our patriotism implied in your argument.

"My message to Senator Harding of Sept. 24 places on record, beyond doubt or cavil, the fact that the German Government favors the League of Nations, and that Americans of German descent oppose this contraption for the insurance of allied imperialism, not because, but in spite of, their sympathy with their kinsmen across the seas. They denounce the League of Nations and reject your blandishments, because, in accordance with their oath of allegiance, they put America first."

Walker to Open Campaign Here.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 29.—The campaign of Lieut. Gov. Harry C. Walker of Binghamton, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, will be opened in New York Monday afternoon with a reception at the Hotel Commodore, tendered by several women who are members of his Campaign Committee. The same evening Mr. Walker will be chief guest at a reception at the National Democratic Club. The rest of the week will be devoted to addressing meetings in New York City and vicinity.

Maine Republican Committee Spent $42,206.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 29.—The expenditures of the Republican State Committee in the State campaign were $42,206, or $348 less than the receipts, according to a statement filed by the Treasurer with the Secretary of State. The Republican National Committee contributed $25,000, Guy P. Gannett, National Committeeman for Maine, $1,500, and Senators Fernald and Hale $1,000 each.

HARDING CONDEMNS 'PORK BARREL' BILLS

ATTACKS "ONE MAN" RULE

Senator Answers Cox on "America First" Slogan and Raps Wilson's Panama Canal Policy.

ASHLAND, Ky., Sept. 29.—Senator Harding made short speeches in a half dozen West Virginia towns on his way from Wheeling to Ashland, where he addressed a big meeting.

Americanism, representative Government and governmental economy featured the nominee's speeches, and he also touched on most of the other issues of the campaign. In his address here he condemned "pork barrel" river and harbor legislation and asked for a more efficient development of the nation's inland waterways. In one of the two speeches he made at Parkersburg, W. Va., he replied to Governor Cox's comparison of the slogans "America First" and "Deutschland über Alles," and, speaking to a crowd at the railway station at Mason City, W. Va., after his private car had been wrecked, he compared his abandoned car to the American car of State.

A shout of approval came during his Parkersburg speech, when, in referring to Governor Cox's discussion of the "America first" slogan in South Dakota last night, the Senator said:

"I note by the morning paper that some one has taken up that slogan and tried to compare it with that used by the Germans during the war. Somehow or other the comparison has appealed to me. And I noted in a colloquy between the Democratic nominee and a citizen of German origin that it was attempted to make the slogan 'America First' appeal as one of selfishness and an ultimate menace for us in our relations with the rest of the world. I do not know that I can pronounce correctly the well-known slogan of the Germans, 'Deutschland Ueber Alles,' but this meant, as I understand, that they were thinking of Germany first.

"And I beg to remind my countrymen that under the spirit of forty years' practice in Germany under that slogan, Germany became industrially the most eminent, educationally the most influential, progressively the most notable, well-known in the accomplishment of art, and most conspicuous in widened commerce of any people in the world.

"You know what rended it all. Only the orrogance and autocracy of one man, who turned the influence and popularity of a great people into the one tragic spectacle of all history. And so I take the lesson from Germany, and I warn you, my countrymen, let us not have one-man dictatorship in the United States."

Beginning with the declaration that environment turned his thoughts to inland waterway transportation and its part in the country's development, Senator Harding turned early in his prepared speech in Ashland to his conception of the Presidency, saying:

"I cannot express myself too strongly against one-man government, with an untrammeled, centralized power. I am against the spirit of encroachment or assumption which may lead one of the greatest departments of our Government under the Constitution to invade or assume the functions of another."

The Senator quoted Washington's warnings against consolidating the powers of all departments in one, this creating a real despotism, and against any change by usurpation, and expressed his belief in the caution Washington uttered in his anxiety for the future of the Republic.

"When I am elected there is going to be that regard and respect for Congress which the Constitution contemplates, and Congress must in turn respect the rights and obligations of the Executive. But I mean to do more than co-ordinate and co-operate with Congress. I am going to consult and converse with the men and women of America. One must know the aspirations, the conscience, the convictions of our people before attempting to voice them. I would rather trust the great undercurrent of American thought and conviction than the fellow with the greatest propagandist program ever inaugurated. We may trust the deliberate judgment of our people on affairs at home or affairs abroad, and I mean to learn that judgment.

"There is official leadership in the Presidency, an inseparable thing which neither modesty nor inclination may change. But I think a President will be safe who takes the people into his confidence and gives them his confidence. It will be poor service indeed to have the executive office a source of mere theories, however high-sounding they may be, and a Government propaganda must be only for the Government, never for the party or persons in power.

"I believe most heartily in the Chief Executive counciling and advising with the men and women who are conspicuous in American leadership. I believe in expert advice in solving problems which require it. I believe in more than one line to the sounding board of deliberate public opinion. I believe in the Vice President being made the second citizen in the republic, in fact as well as in name. I believe in the great Ship of State sailing with a skilled crew, as well as a Captain, and I am in favor of sailing orders originating in the United States."

Discussing waterways, Senator Harding told of the disbursement of hundreds of millions by the Government in their improvement and declared his belief that if the money had been wisely used it would have borne fruit a hundredfold.

"I am not criticising any one political party," he continued. "The sins of omission and commission are chargeable to each of the great parties. We drifted to the 'pork barrel' process of appropriation and inefficient endeavor under either party, and we have expended in unspeakable waste. Worse still, we grew unmindful of the value of our waterways—we turned to railways for speed and more convenient delivery. We even blundered to the extent of urging the waterways as rivals of the rail routes, when we ought to have been thinking of efficiency of service and effective co-operation.

The Senator declared his purpose to put an end to the "practice of favoring appropriations," and pointed to the Ohio River as an example of the appropriation of many millions by Congress only to see a discouraging decrease of tonnage.

"It must not be our thought to supersede the modern railway," Senator Harding added. "On the contrary, we want our railways builded up to highest efficiency. But we want the waterways serving the people with the railways, and up-to-date provision made for transshipment of cargoes. We can at least supplement the rail service—it will guarantee the relief from congestion, which is an ever-growing menace, and add to that service to the producing world which is of proper concern to the Government and highest interest to all the people."

The Senator rapped the Wilson Administration for its insistence, "at the suggestion of a foreign power," that American ships must pay tolls on the Panama Canal. In his failure to abrogate certain commercial treaties, he added, President Wilson again had "listened to a voice from abroad."

IRONTON, Ohio, Sept. 29.—In his speech here this evening Senator Harding restated his position on the League of Nations, saying he desired to clear up all doubt in the minds of those who seemed to think that "I do not know just where I stand on the issue, or that there is any inconsistency between my present attitude and my attitude in the Senate.

"I know one thing very definitely. The Democratic nominee, who says he is in perfect accord with the present President, wants America to go into the League of Nations negotiated at Versailles. I say to you I am not in favor of going in. I hope there is no mistake about that.

"I am frank to say I do not know precisely what sort of an association of nations we will negotiate, because our powers of negotiation are several months in advance. I do know that I favor an international court, and I favor a new world relationship, but I do not favor creating a super-government of the world."

HARDING MISLEADS, RETORTS HOUSTON

DEBT REDUCED, NOT RAISED

Secretary Says Harding Spreads False Statements and Is Ignorant of the Facts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—David F. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury, issued tonight a statement in reply to the criticisms of the Treasury made by Senator Harding in speeches in Baltimore and Wheeling, W. Va. The Secretary comments that Senator Harding evidently "knows little of the subject" and he expresses surprise that Senator Harding, while a candidate for the Presidency, should deal so lightly "with the Government's financial problems" and "become a party to the circulation of such false and misleading statements."

The Secretary's answer to Harding's assertions is as follows:

"I have noticed Senator Harding's remarks in Baltimore and in Wheeling on the operations of the Treasury and on the fiscal policies of the Government. It is obvious that the Senator himself knows little of the subject and that he is being badly advised by people who do not take the trouble to ascertain the facts or are willing to misrepresent them for partisan purposes.

"It is astounding to me that any citizen of the United States, least of all a candidate for the Presidency, should deal so lightly with the exceedingly sensitive and important financial and credit operations of his Government and become a party to the circulation of such false and misleading statements. I find it particularly difficult to understand the Senator's misstatements, since the facts have been frequently announced in summary form by the Treasury and are even available in detail from day to day in the daily Treasury statements published by the Treasury.

"Senator Harding is quoted as saying at the outset with respect to the public debt that 'the most recent suggestion for increasing this burden of debt is that the Secretary of the Treasury contemplates putting out a new loan in a series of notes aggregating about $400,000,000.' The Senator evidently refers to my circular letter of Sept. 7, 1920, to the banks and trust companies of the country.

"I assume that the Senator has reference, when he speaks of a 'new loan,' to the offering of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, dated Sept. 15. That offering is not in contemplation; it has been successfully sold.

Debt Went Down, Not Up.

"If the Senator had taken the pains to ascertain the facts, as publicly announced, he would know that the offering was closed on Sept. 15, almost two weeks before his address at Wheeling, and that the public debt, instead of being increased by the operations of the Treasury in connection with the Sept. 15 offering of Treasury certificates and quarterly tax payment, was substantially reduced, inasmuch as approximately $650,000,000 of maturing certificates were retired at the same time that some $450,000,000 of new certificates were issued.

"In fact, on the basis of the published daily Treasury statements the gross debt of the United States on Sept. 25 amounted to $24,101,235,110.91, as against $24,299,321,467.07 on June 30, 1920, or a decrease during the current fiscal year of $198,086,356.16 instead of the increase alleged by Senator Harding, while the floating debt (loan and tax certificates unmatured) on Sept. 25 amounted to $2,352,029,500, as against $2,485,552,500 on June 30, 1920, or a decrease of $133,523,000 instead of the increase alleged by Senator Harding.

"I may add that if the Senator had made a frank quotation from my letter of Sept. 7 he need not have fallen into the errors made in his address, for in that letter I expressly called attention to the fact that as a result of the Sept. 15 operations the Treasury expected that the relatively slight increases of $25,000,000 in the gross debt and $85,648,500 in the floating debt, which occurred between June 30 and Aug. 31, 1920, as the result chiefly of heavy railroad payments, would be more than overcome by the end of September and that by Sept. 30 both gross debt and floating debt would be materially reduced below the amounts outstanding on June 30. The figures above given for Sept. 25 indicate that the Treasury's expectations in this respect will be amply fulfilled.

"As frequently pointed out by the Treasury and as universally understood in the business and financial world, it is inevitable that since the large income and profits tax payments are made in four quarterly installments, there will be more or less substantial fluctuations in both gross debt and floating debt in the eight odd months in which no large taxes are payable, and it has been the history of the large tax payment periods for at least the past year that the increases in the debt in the intervals between the payments have been more than overcome each time by the decreases effected as the result of the quarterly tax payment.

Declares Some Statements Untrue.

"Senator Harding's statements that the public debt of the United States is constantly increasing are not only untrue but are peculiarly lacking in frankness, for he bases the statement upon a $25,000,000 increase in the two months of July and August, 1920, omitting to state the fact that in the year from Aug. 31, 1919, when the public debt reached its peak at $26,596,701,848.01, to Aug. 31, 1920, there had been a decrease in the gross public debt of $2,272,029,524.22 and a decrease in the floating debt of $1,367,024,000. Since Aug. 31, 1920, the public debt has been further decreased as already indicated.

"Senator Harding makes a further incomplete quotation from my letter of Sept. 7, and states that during July and August the current expenditures of the Government exceeded current receipts by the sum of $125,305,710.63. He concludes that the Government faces a current deficit at this rate amounting to a billion dollars a year. The Senator omitted to quote, however, the remainder of the paragraph which gave these figures and went on to state that the current deficit for the first two months of the fiscal year is due chiefly to actual cash payments in the amount of some $130,000,000 made necessary by the provisions of the Transportation act, 1920 (the Esch-Cummins act), in connection with the return of the railroads to private control.

"My letter of Sept. 7 also expressly called attention to the fact that the Treasury expected the first quarter of the fiscal year, ending Sept. 30, 1920, to show a surplus. The Senator preferred to direct attention to a supposed deficit, studiously omitted to state the fact that the published daily Treasury statements through Sept. 25 already indicate that the Treasury's prediction will be amply fulfilled, and that from the beginning of the fiscal year to that date there has been an excess of ordinary receipts over ordinary disbursements (that is to say, a surplus and not a deficit), amounting to $325,916,431.38.

"Before speaking so lightly of the national finances the Senator should have remembered that it is impossible to obtain a true picture of the Government's financial position by picking out two odd months, such as July and August, and that a true picture can be obtained only by quarters. The Treasury has frequently called attention to this condition, and it is generally understood by well-informed observers.

Charges Ignorance of Conditions.

"The Senator's remarks as to the issuance of Treasury certificates, bearing interest at 5¾ and 6 per cent., and the effects of such issues on business and money conditions, are based upon a misunderstanding of the elementary principles underlying the Government's current financing. He states, for example, that by offering certificates at these rates the Government is 'drawing out of the banks of the country large sums which would otherwise serve to supply the insistent needs of industry.'

"That statement betrays complete ignorance of the situation to which my letter of Sept. 7 called attention, namely, that largely as the result of the issuance of treasury certificates at rates of interest, attractive to investors, treasury certificates are being increasingly absorbed by investors and taken out of the hands of the banks. In fact on Aug. 27, 1920, the 818 reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve system (which are believed to control about 40 per cent. of the commercial banking resources of the country and to have subscribed in the first instance for about 75 per cent. of the treasury certificates then outstanding) held only about $430,000,000 of treasury certificates, although there were outstanding on that date about $2,571,000,000 of loan and tax certificates. On the same date, notwithstanding the preferential rates of discount maintained by the Federal Reserve banks, there were less than $350,000,000 of treasury certificates pledged with the Federal Reserve banks to secure loans.

"Senator Harding is also in error when he states that the effect of the interest rates paid by the Government on treasury certificates is to 'drive higher and higher the interest rates on industrial and business loans and thereby to increase the cost of doing business and consequently the cost of living.'

"Senator Harding's further statement that 'the Administration went into the World War without any workable plan of finance. It came out of the war without such a plan' seems to be but another example of a partisan attempt to deprive the American people of their legitimate pride in financing the war—an achievement without parallel in the financial history of this or any other country, in this or any other war.

"I should further remind the Senator that the President, and Senator Glass and I repeatedly brought to the attention of the Sixty-sixth Congress the necessity of revision of the tax laws and presented definite and workable plans for such revision, urging immediate action. The Republican Party has seemed to indorse these proposals in every respect save one, namely, the plea for immediate action; that party, for example, recognized the importance and feasibility of many of the tax revisions, which I suggested to the Congress in March, 1920, to the extent of adopting them in almost the same words (though without giving credit) in its national platform, in spite of the fact that it had been impossible to obtain any action by the Republican Congress looking toward tax revision.

"After a careful reading of Senator Harding's Wheeling address, I confess I am forced to the conclusion that the Senator's chief difficulty is that he has forgotten that the United States was engaged in the war and has successfully financed the unparalleled burdens thrust upon it by the war and conditions growing out of the war."

LABOR CHIEFS SPURN EUROPEAN METHODS

Gompers and Woll Unite in Condemning British Labor Party Policy.

DENOUNCE SOVIET VIOLENCE

Assail Plea to Use Mass Action for Barring War Material Transport.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Statements by Samuel Gompers, President, and Matthew Woll, Vice President of the American Federation of Labor, in the current issue of The American Federationist characterize the pleas of the International Federation of Trade Unions to prevent war by refusing to participate in enterprises aiding war as "appeals to revolutionary violence."

The policy of the British Labor Party and its methods are thought by the officials of the American Federation of Labor to place the British workers in "an archistic hostility to all Governments without discrimination."

The statement declares:

"The American Federation of Labor is diametrically opposed both to the methods advocated by the Oudegeest international labor manifesto and to its object. The Montreal convention reaffirmed the objection of American labor to all forms of revolutionary violence and to reaction which might be interpreted as assistance to the Soviets."

In a review of the labor situation the chief criticism made of the International Federation of Trades Unions, which met at Amsterdam in August, is that the International Federation issued a statement "of purely socialist character, even including the phrase: 'Down with reaction. Up with Socialism,' and calling for a May 1 demonstration which amounted to a one-day strike for socialism."

The statement says that since the Montreal convention "matters have taken a turn for the worse." Another assertion is that the Amsterdam executive "has issued throughout the world and sent to the American Federation of Labor," a declaration calling for international revolutionary measures by labor in aid of the soviet in the war against Poland.

"The Chairman of the British Labor Party, claiming to speak for the British trade union labor movement," the statement also says, "has sent a cablegram along similar lines and apparently calling for similar action. The contents of these messages are thoroughly revolutionary and obviously animated with a desire to use the most extreme measures for strengthening the hold of Soviet power in Russia and enabling it to extend its influence and to dominate neighboring countries."

The International condemns foreign intervention in the case of Poland. "Against this intervention and assistance," the manifesto states, "the International Federation of Trades Unions calls upon all workers to demonstrate and to act. Applying these principles and in view of the aggressive action of Poland against the Russian revolution, the International Federation of Trades Unions demands that all militarist attacks shall cease immediately and that guarantees shall be forthcoming against any new aggression. Not a train carrying munitions must be worked; not a ship loaded with war materials must be allowed to leave harbor; not a single soldier must be transported. The International Federation of Trades Unions calls upon all national trade union centres to prepare, if necessary, for mass action by means of a general strike. The production of war materials must cease in all countries."

The following extract is given from a cablegram received a short time ago from England:

"Greatest, most united conference. British trade union labor movement, meeting London today, hailed with satisfaction Russian Government's declaration in favor of complete Polish independence and, realizing gravity international situation, pledged itself to resist every military and naval intervention against Soviet Government. Act swiftly, loyally, courageously. Sweep away secret diplomacy."

In reply the American labor writers take this position:

"We are living in the Republic of the United States of America, a country by no means perfect (on the contrary, it has many defects), in which all too frequently injustice is done. But it is a republic based upon the principles of freedom, justice and universal suffrage. Our men and our women are not likely to throw these rights and principles into the scrap heap for the dictatorship of Moscow's Lenin and Trotzky.

"The harangues of the Soviets in Russia, the appeals of Oudegeest and the demand of Adamson (Chairman of the British Labor Party) will fall on deaf ears of the American organized labor movement. Mr. Adamson in his cablegram has urged us to 'act swiftly, loyally, courageously.' These have been the attributes of the men and women in the labor movement of America, but in addition to being courageous and loyal we also have the characteristics of intelligence and understanding, and we have no intention of bidding farewell to our reasons and good judgment."

assured themselves that the apartment into which the tenant was supposed to move was vacant. Where this precaution is not taken, he said, great confusion arises because the new lessee of an apartment may find himself homeless if the old tenant has not moved out. As thousands of tenants have received stays from the courts, while others are protected in their present homes by the new laws, the van owners are taking this action for self-protection.

According to the Van Owners' Association about 2,000 vehicles transporting furniture are in use daily and are insufficient to handle the rush. It was said the van men would be busy until nearly the end of October. The members of the association are charging $10 to $12 an hour for a van and four men, but it was reported that unlicensed van men were exacting all the traffic could bear, in some cases $15, $20 and $25 an hour.

Several days ago the association sent out a circular to its members asking those who were without full time work to telephone headquarters. Not a van owner called to ask for work, according to Mr. Morris.

W. F. Kehoe, of the Van Teamsters' Union, Local 273, denied the assertion of the van owners concerning the number of vans in service and said that not one-tenth of the vans owned by association members were in operation. He resented the use of policemen on the vans and said he would complain to the Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York and vicinity at its meeting on Friday.

"Policemen are supposed to be neutral in a strike, but they have intimidated our men," he said. Of the 2,200 men in the union, he said, only twelve had gone back to work for the association. Twelve association members and 450 independents had signed the union agreement."

Touring cars, open trucks, pushcarts and all possible conveyances have been called into use to convey household goods. The owner of a touring car was seen on Eighth Avenue in the afternoon sitting astride a load of furniture while his wife drove the car.

"Five trips ought to make it," he said. "This beats the moving van game all hollow."

That the people of the city might take immediate advantage of the law giving the legislative body of a city power to exempt from local taxation new buildings for dwelling purposes, Henry L. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, has prepared a resolution to be presented to the Board of Estimate tomorrow. The resolution asks the Board of Aldermen, as the legislative body of the city, to enact without delay an ordinance putting this act into immediate operation and calling on the Corporation Counsel to prepare such an ordinance.

Tenants Hold Mass Meeting.

Following a mass meeting which lasted all Tuesday night, 400 tenants of houses owned by Kleban Leader, Inc., 1,560 Wilkins Avenue, announced that they would engage counsel in an attempt, under the new laws, to annul leases which become effective on Oct. 1 and which they had to sign last August.

The realty organization is said to own seventy houses in the Bronx. The tenants complained that they were forced to pay $15 and $16 a room because they were unable to find new apartments.

One of the new laws, providing that a landlord might obtain an apartment for his own use and evict the tenant, failed to apply to John McManus, who sought to evict Harry Baroch from the premises at 1,828 Arthur Avenue. It appeared from the testimony before Justice Harry Robitzek in the Second District Court in the Bronx that McManus ordered Baroch to move last August, but did not sell the house until last week. The court, in refusing to evict Baroch, said the landlord was "anticipating somewhat" when he asked the tenant to move months before he sold the place. Most of the rent cases in the courts were dismissed or withdrawn by the landlords.

Addressing the Kiwanis Club at luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin, United States Senator Calder said the Government made a great mistake in 1918 when, through its banks, it discouraged the building industry. He pointed out that the Treasury Department issued an order to the Federal Reserve Banks to cease making building loans.

Suggests Governmental Aid.

Senator Calder, comparing the cost of building four years ago with the present cost, said that a $10,000 house in 1916 would cost $25,000 today. Part of the abnormal increase went to labor, which was receiving 100 per cent. more pay and was 25 per cent. less efficient. He pointed out that building material had increased 150 per cent., fuel had doubled in cost and transportation had increased appreciably.

"The only relief in sight is some sort of a governmental system for aiding the building of homes, but I will not agree to this except as a last resort," he said. "For two years one-third more houses were torn down than constructed in New York. The population has increased by 50,000. Houses built for ten families are being occupied by twenty. There is no prospect of the lowering of wages, but we may instill into the minds of those who labor that they are a part of the machinery that is causing this situation. If we can get the laborer to do a day's work for his pay, and if we can bring down the cost of materials by cutting out some of our excess taxes, we will be doing the world some good. The reason for our profiteering is the fact that we have so many taxes that the seller and everybody whose hands the article goes through puts a tax on the article and adds a little bit more."

Menace to Health, Says Copeland.

Health Commissioner Copeland told Senator Calder's committee in a meeting at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street that housing conditions in the city were both immoral and a menace to the residents. He said it was the duty of the Government to provide homes for the people, whereupon Senator Walter E. Edge, a member of the committee, declared he was opposed to Government ownership as far as housing was concerned.

Commissioner Copeland submitted a written report of a survey into housing conditions made by the Health Department which disclosed that many families were "doubling up" in apartments meant for but one family and that in some cases three families were living in one apartment because they were unable to afford the high rents. In one square block, he said, 10,000 persons were housed, while 500,000 persons lived in a square mile, a condition that was a menace to the community.

Nearly 1,000 persons attended two meetings, one in Public School 52 at Academy Street and Broadway and the other at Public School 132, 182d Street and Wadsworth Avenue, held last night by the Anti-Rent Profiteering Association of the 22d Assembly District Republican Club. Officers of the club and a volunteer corps of lawyers explained the new rent laws and answered tenants' questions.

The shortage of houses in Westchester County has again reached an acute stage and October may find many families homeless. To relieve the situation practically all the cottagers at Rye and Oakland Beaches will remain there until Nov. 1 and Summer hotels at Lake Mahopac and other parts of the county will remain open until the middle of November. Mayor Elmer L. Kincaid of Mount Vernon reports that housing conditions in that city are worse than last Spring.

In Scarsdale the village trustees have hired a big country house, where they have housed all the school teachers of the town.

GEORGE F. PEABODY MATCHES PRESIDENT

Gives $500. to League of Nations Campaign—Smaller Contributions Announced.

George Foster Peabody was listed yesterday as a donor of $500 to the Democratic National Committee's "Match the President" fund to carry on its League of Nations campaign. Several smaller contributions were announced, among them Mrs. Allen Wardwell, Lawrence, L. I., $50; Marshall Keller, Scranton, Pa., $10; Elinor K. Chamberlayne, Stamford, Conn., $10; Mrs. William Herbert, New York City, $5; Floyd Barrick, Jersey City, $10; "A Believer in the League of Nations," Freeport, L. I., $5.

Democratic League propaganda is beginning to tell in the West, according to Representative Frank E. Doremus of Michigan, manager of the campaign in Western States. He was a visitor at Democratic National Committee Headquarters.

"The political situation in the Middle West, from a Democratic point of view, is looking better every day," he said. "There is not a State west of the Mississippi River that can be regarded as safely Republican. The West is Progressive and the people unwilling to turn the management of national affairs over to the Lodges and Penroses and their standpat cohorts.

"Reports from Illinois, Iowa and Michigan are glowing. People of these States are enthusiastic supporters of the League of Nations. The Des Moines Register and Leader, a strong Republican newspaper, has come out strong for the League. The most prominent clergyman of the Congregationalist Church in that State has resigned his pastorate to devote all his time to the election of Governor Cox and the ratification of the League covenant.

"Governor Cox has made a profound impression wherever he has gone and the Western States will be found in the Democratic column in November."

Confirmation of Governor Cox's statement concerning a Republican conspiracy of silence against him was received by Wilbur W. Marsh, Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, in a telegram from A. A. Jones, United States Senator from New Mexico. He wired:

"The editor of the Albuquerque Journal (supporting Harding) stated in a box editorial that he had been requested by the two representatives of the Republican National Committee who have been preceding Governor Cox on his Western tour to give little publicity to anything that Governor Cox had to say."

It was announced by Senator Pat Harrison, head of the Speakers' Bureau, that Governor Cox would address a meeting at Madison Square Garden on Oct. 23. It was learned also that the Democrats have an option on the Garden for Saturday, Oct. 30, the closing day of the campaign. The Governor will speak in Buffalo on Oct. 18 and in Indianapolis on Oct. 28.

Franklin D. Roosevelt will spend the final week of the campaign in this State.

Name Woman for Secretary of State.

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 29.—Miss Katherine Doran of Detroit was nominated for Secretary of State by the Democratic State Convention here today. Resolutions urging abolition of the State Police and elimination of private insurance companies in connection with the workmen's compensation law were advocated. Woodbridge N. Ferris, former Governor and candidate for that office this year, addressed the convention.

NEW POLISH LINE PROPOSED BY REDS

mitted to Polish delegates suggestions for the boundary line between Poland and States adjoining to the east. At many points it is some distance east of the line fixed for Poland's eastern frontier at the Versailles Conference, and touches the latter line for but a short distance in the neighborhood of Brest-Litovsk.

Beginning at the north, the line would start at the frontier of Lithuania and White Russia, which is located at the confluence of the Svislocz and Niemen Rivers. It would then run slightly to the southwest, passing through Svislocz, Rudnja, Belovezh, Kamenetz-Litovsk, Brest-Litovsk, and there turning straight south and passing through Pistcha, Ludomil, Vladimir-Volhynski and Dribvotza.

All the towns mentioned would be on the eastern side of the boundary and thus would be in either White Russia or Ukraine.

At Dribvotza the line would turn to the southeast, proceeding along the former frontier between Russia and Hungary upward to the River Dniester where it touches the Rumanian frontier. This would include within the limits of Poland all of Eastern Galicia.

In the immediate neighborhood of Brest-Litovsk the frontier would be formed by a section of the railway line running between Bialystok, Brest-Litovsk and Cholm, all of this railway being on Polish territory. Poland would also have control of the railway junction at Brest-Litovsk so that she might have direct railway communication along her eastern frontier. The railway between Brest-Litovsk and Kovel, to the southeast, would be upon Ukrainian territory.

Soviet delegates propose that hostilities cease within forty-eight hours after the preliminary treaty of peace is signed, and that Polish troops withdraw approximately fifteen miles westward of the demarkation line. They undertake to agree that the Russians will withdraw the same distance, maintaining the rate of twelve miles in the first twenty-four hours. This strip of territory would be a neutral zone during the final peace arrangements, both Poland and Russia agreeing that they would not tolerate in the zone the formation or maintenance of governments or organizations opposed to the present Governments in either country.

Nearly every day brings some new delegation seeking to present claims for self-determination for their countries and urging President Wilson's Fourteen Points as the reason why they must be heard. A delegation of East Galicians, headed by Dr. Kost Lewitsky, and claiming to represent the National Council of Eastern Galicia, are the latest applicants for a hearing. Several rical Ukrainian delegations also are clamoring for attention. The delegates apparently have been unable to convince even the Poles that they are properly accredited. Esthonia, Finland and all the Scandinavian countries, although not directly concerned in the Peace Conference,, have delegations watching the proceedings because of the general bearing on the Bolshevist situation and the commercial future of the States bordering on the Baltic.

RIGA, Sept. 29.—The main commission of the Polish-Russian Peace Conference held its first meeting today. The proceedings were private, but I understand that Joffe, determined to force the issue, presented on behalf of the Bolshevist Government a complete draft of the proposed treaty. The document contained twenty-seven articles, of the principal of which the following is a summary:

Recognition by both parties of the sovereignty and independence of the Republics of White Russia, Lithuania and Ukraine. With regard to East Galicia, the leaving of a final decision to a plebiscite on the basis of universal direct suffrage.

Unqualified recognition by Russia of the independence and sovereignty of Poland and renunciation forever of "all rights of sovereignty over the Polish people and their territories."

Both parties undertake not to allow on their territories the formation or support of any organizations having for their purpose an armed struggle against the other party to the treaty and to taek measures for immediate liquidation of any such existing organizations.

Both sides are to forbid any use being made of their territory by any States actually at war with the other party, this including transport of war materials of any description.

Both sides are to safeguard the rights of minorities and freedom for development of language culture and religion.

There are to be no indemnities or reparation.

Russia undertakes to return all archives objects , art, war trophies and monuments removed from Poland since the original partition in so far as their removal does not cause essential damage to Russian archives and museums where they are now preserved.

Immediately atfer signing this preliminary treaty both parties undertake to enter into negotiations for a final peace treaty based upon the articles of this document.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Warsaw says Adolph Joffe, head of the Russian Soviet delegation in the peace negotiations at Riga between the Bolsheviki and the Poles, has received instructions from Moscow to accept all the conditions laid down by Poland for peace, however hard they may be, excepting only those compelling Soviet Russia to partially or totally disarm her Red army.

BELGIUM DEFIES GERMANY.

Orders Red Cross Train to Proceed Despite Opposition of Berlin.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 28.—On the eve of the departure tonight of a sanitary train destined for Poland, from the Belgian Red Cross, Germany notified the Government it would not permit the train to pass through German territory. The Belgian officials replied that the train would leave as scheduled, but Germany reaffirmed its decision not to allow its transit through the country.

The incident caused much discussion among the delegates to the International Financial Conference here. Former President Ador of Switzerland, who is President of the Financial Conference and also of the International Red Cross, tonight addressed a telegram of protest to the Berlin Government.

Despite the German threat, the train left for Poland at 6:45 o'clock tonight, following a big demonstration at the station by a great crowd.

RED GRIP ON CO-OPERATIVES.

Three Hostile Directors Sentenced to Long Prison Terms.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Russian Soviet Government's determined efforts to obtain dominance over the Russian co-operative trading societies has been advanced a step further through the conviction and imprisonment of three Directors of the Centrosojus, according to information received by M. Berkenheim, Manager of the London office of the co-operative societies.

These men, MM. Koroboff, Lavrukhin and Kusnetzef, were the only members of the Centrosojus Executive Committee who did not owe their positions to partisans of Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevist Premier. They were arrested some time ago, together with sixteen other persons, including two former members of the Cabinet of Alexander Kerensky. They were brought up for trial before the Supreme Revolutionary Tribunal.

The three Directors were sentenced each to fifteen years' internmnt for sending goods to Admiral Kolchak and General Denikin, while the other men on trial received sentences ranging from three years to life imprisonment.

The Sloane Collection

The prestige of their names is so great and their homes so imposing that many persons of artistic tastes but moderate means hesitate to visit them, feeling that the high quality must express itself in high prices.

On the contrary, articles in these great houses, quality for quality, cost less than elsewhere, and in order to spread such knowledge, visitors are as welcome as purchasers.

In the field of Furniture there is a conspicuous case of this rare association of high quality and reasonable price.

Sloane's devote fully as much attention to their Collection of Reasonably Priced Fine Furniture as to their special hand made pieces. This Collection is growing in size and usefulness all the time, because merit, price and the guarantee of an honored name, make shopping there a delightful experience.

SAYS LEAGUE AIDS TRAFFIC IN WOMEN

DEMOCRATS ARE SURPRISED

According to a statement made public last night at headquarters of the Republican National Committee, Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore of Yonkers, addressing two thousand women at a mass meeting held in Somerville, N. J., yesterday afternoon, read into Article 23 of the League of Nations covenant an intent "not only to recognize and ratify, but to legalize" traffic in women and children.

Mrs. Livermore, who was away campaigning when the statement was given out, is the recognized leader of the organized Republican women in this State. She is Chairman of the Women's Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee and is a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee. At the Republican National Convention a proposal to make her Vice Chairman of the Executive Committee was discussed.

At headquarters of the Democratic National Committee amazement was expressed at the interpretation of Article 23 made by Mrs. Livermore. Chairman White could not be reached last night, but it was stated that in all likelihood some comment from him would be forthcoming today, after he had had an opportunity to read and digest her utterances before the New Jersey audience.

Mrs. Livermore in her speech, according to the statement made public by the Republican National Committee, stirred her women hearers to indignation. In part she is quoted as saying:

"Paragraph 3 of Article XXIII. of the covenant of the League of Nations provides: 'Members of the League will intrust the League with general supervision over the execution of agreements with regard to the traffic in women and children and the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs.'

"After 7,000 years of strides toward civilization the greatest Government in the world, representing the highest purposes of humanity, is asked to attach its signature to a contract which not only recognizes and ratifies, but legalizes traffic in women and children.

"That blot was wiped from the pages of American history by the sacrifices of the civil war, under the leadership of Lincoln, and it will never be renewed with the consent of right-thinking people of this Republic.

"The whole proposition is so fundamentally repugnant to the higher humanity for which America stands that it calls for repudiation from every home in this country and must never be sanctified by the seal of this nation."

An official at Republican National Headquarters who declined to permit the use of his name warmly defended the utterances of Mrs. Livermore on the ground that the langauge of Article 23 was obscure enough to justify the interpretation that "it had been drafted for the regulation of a recognized and going traffic." He pointed to No. 4 of the Lodge reservations which in specific langage makes "the suppression of the traffic in women and children and in opium and other dangerous drugs" a question "solely within the jurisdiction of the United States."

BAR ON WILSON SPEAKING FOR COX

really the work of the President. It is expected that the President will soon begin to make public statements on the League issue over his own signature, but no definite information as to when the first of these may be expected has come from the White House.

Since the original suggestion was made to the President that he give some help to Governor Cox there appears to have been a revision of party opinion as to the extent of the President's participation in the campaign. The original proposal was based on the assumption that the President would not be able to appear personally on the stump as an advocate of the election of Cox and Roosevelt. Since that time the idea has grown that Governor Cox's greatest asset would be found in having the President go directly before the people and in spite of physical drawbacks plead with them for the election of a Democratic President and Congress in order to give the United States a voice in the great world society designed to prevent future wars. But the suggestion to this effect has been vetoed by those acting in the President's interest, mainly, it is understood, on account of the present state of his health.

LEWIS ASKS WILSON AID FOR IRISH AND GERMANS

Visits President, Urging Conference Over Ireland and Giving Coal to Germans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Ex-Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic candidate for Governor of Illinois, called at the White House today to keep an appointment with President Wilson. He left the White House after seeing the President. He had been asked to return tomorrow, he said.

"I should not have thought of bothering the President," explained Mr. Lewis, "had he not announced that he intends to take part in the campaign. In view of that decision I have two requests to make of him.

"First, I want to ask him to request Great Britain to placate the Irish in Ireland in order that the Irish in America may be placated. The Irish question is a domestic question in the United States, and the Irishmen here can never be placated unless they are placated in Ireland. Enough Irishmen went to war and helped win the victory that has resulted in benefit to Great Britain to warrant us in asking for a settlement of the Irish question.

"I shall tell the President very frankly that I think Great Britain should consent to the appointment of delegates, representing America, Great Britain and Ireland, to work out a solution of the Irish problem. Great Britain would be willing to sacrifice a few distinctions of government, considering the sacrifices that have been made for her.

"Secondly, I intend to ask the President for a modification of the German Peace Treaty to such an extent that Germany may get coal for her ships and her industries so that she may pay her obligations to the Allies. I favor reopening the Saar settlement. Unless we allow Germany to work out her solution and pay off her obligations we will be called upon to lend more money to the Allies and perhaps to feed Germany."

Edmond H. Moore, confidential adviser to Governor Cox on political affairs, was another White House visitor today. He had a talk with Secretary Tumulty. Mr. Moore said that there was no news in his visit to Washington. He saw a number of Democratic politicians. Mr. Moore expects to return to Ohio tomorrow.

COLBY EXCLUDES TWO NEWS WRITERS

THEY SAID HE TAINTED NEWS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Secretary Colby today directed the exclusion from his daily conferences with newspaper correspondents of Paul Hanna, Washington correspondent of The New York Call and London Daily Herald, and of Lawrence Todd of The Fargo Courier-News, who has been associated with Mr. Hanna in the Washington Bureau of The Federated Press, representing approximately a hundred Socialist and radical newspapers.

This action was taken after Hanna had written a letter to Fred A. Emery, Chief of the Division of Foreign Intelligence of the State Department, in which he imputed to Secretary Colby, in his twice-a-day conferences with newspaper men, the tainting and twisting of news and the conducting of newspaper propaganda through his utterances at these conferences, and also intimated that the Secretary lacked veracity and was mendacious in his handling of news through means of these conferences.

When Secretary Colby met the newspaper men in his conference this morning he read the Hanna letter, which was written on letter paper of The Federated Press, but the text of the letter was not given out for publication. Secretary Colby then invited an expression of views as to the charges made against him in the Hanna communication. Mr. Todd, who has been associated with Mr. Hanna, entered the conference while the letter was being read. He informed the Secretary that he (Todd) did not know the Hanna letter had been written, but indicated that he shared views similar to those expressed in the communication.

When challenged by the Secretary to cite instances of news tainting or propaganda, Mr. Todd at first made no such citation, but later referred to intelligence given to the press by the State Department concerning Bolshevist Russia. After Mr. Todd had supported the views voiced in Mr. Hanna's letter Secretary Colby ruled that both he and Mr. Hanna should be deprived of the privilege of attending the daily newspaper conferences in the future. Mr. Todd thereupon left the conference.

Following the custom observed by all his predecessors in the State Department since the days of the Roosevelt Administration, Secretary Colby, at the request of the newspaper representatives in Washington, has twice daily granted the newspaper men the privilege of conferences, at which announcements such as the State Department wished to make were issued and questions put by newspaper men answered, sometimes for quotation and sometimes in confidence. This is no new custom among Cabinet officers in Washington. Secretary Colby resented the intimation that he had undertaken in any way to color the news, and told the correspondents that his whole object in holding the conferences, which was in response to an invitation from the press, was to aid them in obtaining accurate information relative to questions confronting the State Department and to co-operate in furnishing correct information to the public on international affairs.

The consensus of opinion among the newspaper correspondents who have been attending the Colby conferences is that the Secretary has not only been more liberal than some of his predecessors in making public information relative to State Department intelligence but that he has always exhibited great frankness and fairness as well as sympathy with the newspaper men in their effort to obtain the facts relative to foreign affairs.

The Call Returns to the Attack.

The barring of Paul Hanna, correspondent of The New York Call, and Lawrence Todd, of the Federated Press, from conferences held by Secretary Colby with newspaper men, was condemned yesterday by S. John Block, President of the co-operative society that publishes The Call.

"The Secretary of State seems willing to tolerate at his conferences the presence of only such newspaper men as will compliment him," said Mr. Block. "His barring of Mr. Hanna and Mr. Todd is an act of discrimination against men who have dared to criticise the views and interpretations of Mr. Colby. He should not hold conferences in the presence of newspaper correspondents unless he is willing to have full publicity given to his official conduct.

"He is, after all, only the Secretary of State, hired and paid by the people of the United States, and the people are entitled to know what their public servants are doing and contemplating with respect to all governmental affairs, domestic and foreign, national and international.

"Mr. Hanna and Mr. Todd should not be deprived of the right and privilege—whichever it may be—to attend Mr. Colby's conferences with the newspaper men. It was Mr. Hanna's duty as an honest newspaper man, and in that respect a quasi-public servant, to make such charges against Mr. Colby as appeared to him to be justified by the facts."

BLOCKS STONE BID INQUIRY.

Contractors' President Evasive on $1,000,000 Conspiracy Charge.

The hearing to determine whether there was a conspiracy to charge the city an excessive price for stone for the new Court House was abruptly adjourned for the day yesterday when James R. McLaren, President of the Greater New York Cut Stone Contractors' Association, refused to answer directly who was present at a conference at which the stone work of the new building was discussed among stone men. David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, who is conducting the inquiry, said it was his opinion that there had been an agreement among the stone men to put in one bid at a great increase in price over what such work ought to cost.

The witness said he had talked with Henry Haulein of Henry Haulein & Son, who made the bid, regarding doing some of the work. When asked whether David Miller and Rudolph Seus, other stone men, were present at the discussion, the witness said: "I think so." Commissioner Hirshfield pressed for a more definite reply. Mr. McLaren took the ground that he was on the stand as President of his association and he would confine his answers to the affairs of that organization. The Commissioner became insistent, but Mr. McLaren remained reticent as to who was present.

"I am asking you this question, Mr. McLaren, because it has been charged privately and in the public press that your association, with legal assistance, entered into a conspiracy to cheat the city by confining the limestone bid for the Court House to one bid and to boost it at least a million dollars more than it ought to be," said the Commissioner. "At the direction of the Mayor I am investigating this charge—the charge that you and your associates in the limestone business have conspired to defraud the city. You are President of the Limestone Cutters and Contractors' Association of this city. Do you refuse to answer the questions which would either prove or disprove this charge against your association, against the limestone trade and yourself as President of the association?"

"I will ask you to confine——". Mr. McLaren got no further when the Commissioner interrupted: "That's all. You are welcome to the stand you are taking. Its significance is greater than if you had answered my question and admitted the charge."

In closing the hearing for the day Commissioner Hirshfield said: "I will subpoena the other gentlemen."

2,104 SORE ARMS ARRIVE ON LINER

ONE OLD SALT DECLINES

Says It's Too Late in Life to Start Innoculating, So He Gets Holiday on Island.

When the White Star liner Mobile finally reached her pier yesterday morning 183 first and 359 second class passengers landed with sore arms after having been vaccinated at Quarantine because a Czechoslovak in the steerage had developed smallpox on the voyage across the Atlantic. In addition, 450 members of the crew were vaccinated before the ship was permitted to go to her pier.

Only one member of the ship's company, Jack Jeddles, a steward, defied the doctors. He told them that he had been in the bubonic plague epidemic in Bombay, had seen Asiatic cholera sweep Kowloon and the population almost wiped out by beri-beri and yellow fever at Jalla-Jalla on the West Coast of Africa, and had never been innoculated and was not going to start now. It was finally decided to incarcerate him in the ship's hospital until she reaches her pier and then send him to some island where he could be isolated until the Mobile sails again for Liverpool, on Oct. 5. To his shipmates who conversed with him through the keyhole yesterday morning before he was taken away by a vaccinated immigration guard, Jeddles expressed satisfaction at having a holiday on full pay for six days and hoped the grub would be good.

The Mobile was delayed by the fog outside the harbor on Monday and on passing into Quarantine on Tuesday morning she was delayed for twelve hours by the case of smallpox, which resulted in missing the tide and having to anchor in the river for the night.

The 1,148 steerage passengers were all vaccinated and taken off the Mobile at Quarantine on Tuesday and sent to Hoffman Island. The smallpox victim was sent to Swinburne Island.

Some of the vaccinated first-cabin passengers were Colonel F. E. Drake of the British Army, Professor George Humphreys, Captain W. J. Riggs, Miss Phoebe Cregg and her sister, Mrs. M. G. Gwynne of Philadelphia, who have been away a year working with the Serbian Relief.

On her arrival in Liverpool the Mobile will be turned over to the British Government by the International Mercantile Marine Company, as there is no further need for her in the Atlantic service. The Orient Steam Navigation Company has also turned back the former North German Lloyd liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm to the Ministry of Shipping, as she is not needed in the Australian trade.

ANTHRAX SERUM CUT OFF.

Government Quits Making It—A Menace, Dr. Symmers Says.

The decision of the United States Government to discontinue the preparation of anthrax serum constitutes a menace to the community, according to Dr. Douglas Symmers, Director of Laboratories of Bellevue Hospital, which is the largest individual user of this therapeutic agent, has a number of cures to its credit, and heretorfore has obtained its supply from Washington.

According to Dr. John Mehler, Chief of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry, whose attention was drawn to Dr. Symmers's complaint in Washington, the bureau has discontinued preparation of the serum because Congress cut off its appropriation for that work on July 1 last and "because our horse which we used for the production of the serum died about six or eight weeks ago and we haven't got another horse."

When Dr. William H. Park, Director of Laboratories for the Department of Health, was asked last night what action could be taken by the city in the emergency of which Dr. Symmers complained, he said the Health Department would supply any hospital which needed it for poor patients with this serum, the only question being an administrative one as to whether it was cheaper and wiser for the city's laboratories to purchase serum from private manufacturers or to make its own. It appeared thus far, he said, that the former would be the wiser course. The Government, he said, never had furnished human sera and had supplied the anthrax serum because it was "half and half," the disease being one of which many animals and some humans were the victims.

Arthur Saldana, 14 years old, a student in the Clason Point Military Academy, who on his arrival here from his home in Porto Rico to attend the Fall term was found to be suffering from anthrax and on Sept. 13 was admitted to Bellevue, was discharged from the hospital yesterday as cured. Saldana was the youngest patient ever treated at Bellevue for anthrax.

Vamps and Police to Play Ball.

Baseball teams of the Police and Fire Departments will play the first of a series of games at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn this afternoon, for the benefit of the Firemen's Honor Emergency Fund. This fund has recently been started to aid families and dependents foceased firemen. The Fund Committee, headed by W. W. Cohen, Honorary Battalion Cief, reports receipts of $80,000 from the sales of tickets.

No Action Being Taken Here.

District Attorney Swann declared yesterday that there was no investigation by his office into any of the charges growing out of the alleged conspiracy to "fix" the 1919 World's Series. Although some of the meetings at which the plan to "fix" the series was hatched were said to have been held in this city, no acts were committed which would warrant any criminal action here, it was said.

Balancing a Kyak

The Kyak is made entirely of skins shaped over a frame like a miniature submarine. Only the deck shows above the water line. Though a kyak turns over easily an Eskimo paddler doesn't hesitate to take a passenger though the latter is obliged to crawl inside the hollow shell and remain there under water level. The picture shows an Eskimo father teaching his boy the first principles of balancing this cranky craft.

"Why I Bought a Brunswick Phonograph"

These reasons were given by a man who made an investigation

"Yes, I made an investigation. I looked the field over carefully. I know something about the mechanics of the talking machine, and I had well-defined ideas about construction....... So far as tone is concerned, that is largely a matter of personal opinion. A friend of mine has an instrument that I can't tolerate, but he thinks it's great.

* * *

"And I'll admit that the first point I considered was tone. I heard the Brunswick and liked it. I heard others and liked them, also. And I realized at once that I never could buy a phonograph on the tone test alone. There were too many good ones. So I went farther. I examined the Brunswick reproducer—they call it the Ultona. It is different. The construction is sound. And the argument in favor of it appealed to me instantly.

* * *

"I saw immediately that I would be able to play any record correctly on the Brunswick. Could I do the same on other instruments? Several salesmen said so. But, as I explained, I know something of proper phonograph construction; so I tried several different kinds of records on the Brunswick, then tried them on other instruments. The difference was obvious. I knew it would be, because of the principles that were involved. So I bought the Brunswick because of the Ultona. All other points, in my opinion, were equal. The Ultona was new—better—a decided improvement."

THE Brunswick Phonograph is one of the finest instruments obtainable today. All models are ready for you to hear. Monthly terms of payment if desired.

HARDING DROPS INTO FINANCE.

That part of Senator Harding's speech at Wheeling which dealt with national finance may pass for truth and wisdom in West Virginia, but what will New York Republican business men think of it? He committed himself to statements which were glaringly inaccurate, and to inferences which are unfair and unsound. The whole tone of his attack upon the Treasury management is of such a sort that, if it had come from a Democratic candidate for the Presidency, it would have been denounced by Wall Street as unsettling and unpatriotic.

The test by facts is easy. Mr. Harding dwelt upon the latest issue of short-term Treasury certificates. By them, he declared, the Government "draws out of the banks large sums which otherwise would serve to supply the insistent needs of industry." But Secretary Houston has given the figures to prove that the commercial loans of the banks were largely increased at the very time these Treasury certificates were being subscribed for. This increase, up to Aug. 27, 1920, was estimated at $3,000,000,000. And since the crop-moving demand set in bills discounted and purchased by the Federal Reserve banks have increased at the rate of about $50,000,000 a week. Senator Harding appears to have a very dim idea of what the Treasury certificates are and what becomes of them. They are a short-term loan, but they are also a good investment. They are receivable for Federal taxes. They are "admissible assets" in calculating profits taxes. Their interest rate and perfect security make them attractive to investors. Senator Harding seems to think that the banks are all loaded up with them. But, as Secretary Houston explained three weeks ago, in his endeavor to enlighten the Marion type of mind, the banks retain but a small proportion of the certificates. Out of the total of $2,571,000,000 outstanding on Aug. 27, 1920, the banks held only about $430,000,000.

Another financial notion of the Republican candidate is that the proposed issue of $400,000,000 more in Treasury certificates "contributes to the already alarming depreciation of the Liberty bonds." The Secretary's announcement was made on Sept. 6. Since that date the various issues of Liberty bonds have actually advanced from 2½ to 3 points. This advance has, of course, been for reasons wholly unconnected with the Treasury certificates, but it shows that Senator Harding is careless or reckless or entirely ignorant of the course of the market.

His other indictment of the Treasury had to do with the public debt. He pointed out that the deficit in July and August was some $125,000,000, "a rate," he said, "of approximately $1,000,000,000 a year." But why not be honest and state the facts as the Treasury gave them out? "This net current deficit for the first two months of the fiscal year," wrote Secretary Houston, "is due chiefly to actual cash payments in amount of some $130,000,000, made necessary by the provisions of the Transportation act, 1920, in connection with the return of the railroads to private control." This means the Esch-Cummins bill, for which Senator Harding voted, and which he has been defending as the wisest possible legislation. Yet for its direct financial consequences he now arraigns the Treasury. And what shall be said of the knowledge or sincerity of a Senator who suggests a yearly deficit of $1,000,000,000, when the Secretary's forecast, based on the Treasury operations and commitments, was that the first quarter of the fiscal year will "show a surplus," and that by Dec. 31 "the gross debt and floating debt will have been further reduced"?

Everybody knows what the solid business men of New York would have said of a Democratic Presidential candidate who thus showed that he did not know—or did not care—what he was saying when he dropped into national finance. Why do they so complacently accept from Senator Harding such misleading statements and unfounded conclusions? The explanation may be that they don't think he will be elected. Otherwise, Wall Street might be expected to be thunderstruck by his financial misinformation and crude ideas. Or it may be that the large business and banking interests are consoling themselves with the thought that, between November and March, there will be an interval during which the great minds of the Republican Party may undertake Harding's education in finance. Evidently he could stand a lot of teaching.

ANARCHY IN IRELAND.

Violence, arson, murder by Sinn Feiners have of late been not repressed, but provoked and imitated by a series of reprisals. To private tumultuary lawlessness a sort of official tumultuary lawlessness has responded. The police have been driven into a natural but none the less unpardonable frenzy. Apparently some English recruits and demobilized army officers, hastily and unnecessarily impressed or enlisted for purposes of defense, have had a hand in the series of "Black and Tan" raids. Private war prevails. In the twentieth century Ireland reverts to the sixteenth and the seventeenth.

There is no government in Ireland. The Sinn Fein Government, such as it is, is shadowy and illegal. The British Government does not govern. It doesn't fulfill the first duty of government, the preservation of order. There are plenty of soldiers in the country. Against them the Sinn Fein violence would be impracticable. If they were allowed to act, if the Government had not abdicated its functions, there would be no pretense of an excuse for reprisals. Sporadic looting and assassination couldn't be entirely checked, but a firm and steady military policy would prevent such occurrences as of late have been disgracing not so much Ireland as Mr. Lloyd George.

There lies the fault. It is not the Chief Secretary for Ireland nor the military commander in Ireland that should be blamed. It is impossible to believe that Sir Nevil Macready or any other soldier would put up willingly with such bold and successful attacks on military barracks as have been made by armed Sinn Feiners. It is impossible that Sir Hamar Greenwood shouldn't be disgusted with the flabby indecision that hesitates to protect life and property in Ireland and so sets the maddened police into revenging crimes that Mr. Lloyd George does not seriously seek to prevent or punish. Either his Government should give the citizens of Ireland, Sinn Feiners, Unionists, everybody, an impartial security, the protection of the laws, or he should resign. He is pouring new flames upon the secular feud. Unconsciously he seems to be trying to prove what Lord Derby, son of the Rupert of debate, said, that one nation isn't fit to govern another.

VETERANS' BONUSES IN THE CAMPAIGN.

The demand for a bonus for all men who served in the land and sea forces during the war was almost unanimous at Tuesday's session of the American Legion Convention at Cleveland. A little band of Carolina soldiers, perhaps five or six, alone stood out against the bonus, but the convention stopped short of ordering a roll-call, as urged by Benson of Pennsylvania, to show "wherein the opposition to this measure lies." If the roll had been called, the protesting South Carolinians might have had some company, for Abbott of Ohio joined Johnson of South Carolina in resenting the implication that a State "was an enemy within the gates because she is opposed to the American Legion asking for a bonus." However, there is no doubt that sentiment for all forms of the bonus, including cash payments, was overwhelming.

The convention when the motion to adopt the report of its committee was made behaved very much as the House of Representatives comported itself when forty minutes were allowed, twenty to each side, for debate on the Bonus bill before passage on May 29, 1920, although the cost of carrying out its provisions was estimated at $2,000,000,000. "Those who spoke," said a report of the proceedings of the House, "were heckled. Some were cheered so loudly that Speaker Gillett could not make himself heard in calling for order." An account of the American Legion proceedings at Cleveland says that the reading of the committee report recommending "unqualified approval" of House Bill No. 14,157 "started an uproar." It is obvious that, although the Legion is not in politics, candidates for office who have manhood enough to speak out their conviction against cash bonuses will be marked men.

The House Bonus bill, which the Senate did not pass before adjournment, provided that "a member of the military or naval forces of the United States at any time after April 5, 1917, and before Nov. 12, 1918," should "have the right" to avail himself of "adjusted service pay" ($1.25 for each day of overseas service, or $1 for each day of home service); an "adjusted service certificate" (a cash bonus in the sense that it provided for the payment of a certain sum of money to the veteran at the end of twenty years, or to a named beneficiary, or to another or others upon his death); vocational training aid, farm or home aid, and land settlement aid. The Senate hesitated to pass the bill, because of country-wide protests against a plan of combination awards to the great host of veterans which would require an issue of bonds or oppressive taxation added to a burden the people were crying out against as intolerable. The same opposition will be heard when the Senate reassembles, for conditions have changed very little for the better, if at all.

When the Republican candidate for President was asked recently by The Stars and Stripes, a service publication, whether he would vote for House Bill 14,157, he responded: "In a general way, I cannot say that I would vote for any bill until I see exactly what it contains." Senator Harding doubted whether it would be wise to issue bonds to carry out the provisions of the House bill, but he wanted it understood that he cordially approved of the measure. Governor Cox, the Democratic candidate, gave it his commendation, but was disposed to doubt the need of a cash bonus, as "the men of the army had re-established themselves." Mr. Cox was enthusiastic about homes and farms for the veterans, also vocational training. He showed more courage than Senator Harding in discussing bonuses. The issue is not one that threatens to embarrass either candidate during the campaign.

THE HOPE FOR MORE DWELLINGS.

Mr. Edward P. Doyle's prediction of a building boom that will "relieve apartment congestion in six months" is perhaps unduly optimistic; yet it is plain that a light has dawned upon the housing situation.

Hitherto the chief obstacle has been a fear that, with the return of more normal conditions, apartments and dwellings built now will be so handicapped by high costs as to become ultimately an unprofitable investment. This fear is, in a large measure, allayed by the new law permitting cities to exempt from taxation for ten years all buildings that are begun within eighteen months. According to the statement of the Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, this will mean "a saving of 30 per cent. on the cost of construction." Mr. Hilly's calculation is apparently based upon the assumption that for the next ten years the tax rate will average 3 per cent., and that buildings will be taxed on the basis of a full valuation. The calculation is in a large measure conjectural; yet it is plain that apartments and dwellings built immediately will be relieved of a very considerable part of their handicap in competition with those built before the period of inflation and after it.

Other signs and portents are equally favorable. A drastic cut has been reported in the price of lumber; and if, as seems likely, we are on the threshold of a period of price reductions, the other materials of building should speedily fall in line. The most indeterminable factor of all is, of course, the cost of labor. Any marked decline in wages is not to be looked for; yet we are apparently coming out of what may some day be known as the epoch of the silk shirt. With the rumblings of extensive unemployment already audible there must soon be an end of senseless strikes and fantastic demands for increased pay. Quite as much as any element in the community, labor has felt the pinch of the shortage of housing. Conditions tending toward stability, moreover, should make money more available for mortgages.

Far more encouraging than rosy prognostications is the fact that we are already witnessing a rapid increase in the filing of building applications. During the last year activity has been confined to business structures, with the result that the supply has apparently become normal. In the Woodhaven, Richmond Hill and Elmhurst districts there has been within the last few days a sudden flood of applications which the Building Commissioner attributes to the promise of tax exemption and of a fall in the cost of materials.

DODGING THE ISSUE.

By what reasoning, save from supposed political self-interest, has Judge Miller reached the conclusion that "national issues are paramount" in this State campaign? Is so great a post as that of Governor of New York merely ancillary to and dependent on the election of the President? The powers and duties of the Governor of New York are defined in the Constitution of the State of New York. The performance and execution of them have nothing whatever to do with the tariff or the League of Nations or any other policy which is to be decided at Washington and not at Albany. What is there Democratic or Republican about the proper management of the Barge Canal, for instance? The people of New York want effective, economical, able and responsible administration of the State Government. The fervor of the national campaign and the excitement about national and international questions are or should be foreign to the State campaign. One would think that Judge Miller was a candidate for President, not for Governor.

The desirability of separating municipal elections as far as possible from partisanship has been recognized. It is unfortunate that a Governor should be elected in a Presidential year, and that thus the opportunity should be given, which Judge Miller has taken advantage of, to try and confuse the issues. In Massachusetts, year after year, Republicans, without shifting their convictions on national matters, used to elect William Eustis Russell Governor. They admired his administration. Are the voters of this State any less intelligent than those of Massachusetts? Governor Smith has given the State as good an administration as it ever had. For what he has done and for what he would have done if the Republicans in the Legislature hadn't prevented, he more than amply deserves re-election. Judge Miller beats the tom-tom loudly. A great number of Republican and independent voters will not follow that music.

Judge Miller is pained by Democratic "extravagance" at Washington. The swollen and ever-swelling extravagance, waste and inefficiency of the New York State Government are due mainly to the Republicans in the Legislature. They won't stop that extravagance and inefficiency. They won't take the one means of stopping them, the reorganization of the State Government, the creation of an executive budget. Judge Miller proposes "to set himself to the task of reducing the cost of the State Government without waiting to reorganize the Government, as Governor Smith proposes to do." Judge Miller proposes an impossibility. Republican Governors have had as virtuous sentiments. At Albany they found themselves powerless.

Profoundly moved by the "extravagance of the Government departments at Washington," Judge Miller says the only way to cure it is "to vote them out of office." Whereas in this State the only way to prevent extravagance, notorious, long-continued, constantly increasing, is to keep in office the Republicans who are responsible for our haphazard, wasteful and largely futile system or want of system. Their purses bled more and more every year by these happy-go-lucky spendthrifts, the voters are asked to forget such local bagatelles as high taxes, and to rally around the Grand Old Party that freed the slave, and has just freed Mr. Harding from the porch.

FOREIGN VS. DOMESTIC LOANS.

Norway's application for a loan of $20,000,000 was granted as readily as France's for $100,000,000, practically at sight. Norway's credit stands deservedly high. No default is on record against it, and only in times like these would it be possible to buy the Norwegian promise to repay, with 8 per cent. interest, and on terms of amortization, with good prospect of redemption before maturity at a premium. Norway could be accommodated more cheaply at home, and on at least equal terms in London. Why, then, does it make application here? And what are the commercial considerations, as distinguished from those of credit and finance, which are fitting to control our action as a world banker?

It is plain that there is a distinction between this peace loan and former foreign war loans. Most of the foreign loans were spent here, and provided work for our factories and trade for our merchants. The recent French loan was to repay a loan of that sort, and the $100,000,000 borrowed here was distributed here, no money or business being diverted from home uses. But Norway is borrowing to pay for ships bought in England, and built and sold in competition not only with our ships but with our railways. Norway bought in England as the cheapest market for ships, and is compelled to borrow to pay for them because she is unable to produce enough goods to pay for her purchases. Norway is borrowing to correct her exchanges as well as to pay her debts, and is doing good business in taking dear money to buy cheap and good ships. So also are those who will take Norway's securities doing good business in lending her money. This is not a discussion of Norway's credit, for there is no question of it. The question is rather one of our national policy, and it is more important than the amount of Norway's loan.

There is on file a formal incomplete estimate of capital requirements for our railways alone of $762,256,108 within the next four months, and there is difficulty in filling it. Our new railway legislation allows the railways to earn 6 per cent., and the Interstate Commerce Commission is but little more liberal in allowance of interest payments by our land carriers. What prospect is there for our railways to borrow in competition with national loans paying 8 per cent.? Norway is asking for credit, but what she really wants is ships, for she is the leading maritime nation of the world in proportion to population. Norway's foreign trade per capita is thrice that of the United States, and her tonnage per capita is twice that of England. Norway needs ships as much as we need railways, and Norway can supply herself with ships as we cannot supply ourselves with railways.

But the principle involved is broader than Norway or ships or railways. The nations must balance their exchanges of goods or international exchanges must stop. Nothing can equalize the exchanges in peace but exchanges of goods. It is a question of goods and services, not of banking or finance, which are mere expedients, the substitution of the present promise for the future realization, and to that there is an end as surely as there comes an end to war.

The account in war credits is closed. The account in peace credits should be opened with more regard to commerce and domestic conditions than to finance. The policy of the Federal Reserve in domestic business is fit for application to international business. Loans should be restricted to essential production, and not until there is a surplus above domestic needs should production abroad be stimulated by reduction of domestic credits supply. We can serve the world better by supplying goods than credit, and thus stimulating the production of goods taken in payment, rather than the accumulation of debts taken in payment. Not that foreign credit should be unreasonably limited. Each case stands on its own facts, and in this case the amount involved is small. But our national policy may with advantage be directed to the stabilization of the international exchanges by the equalization of the exchanges of goods and services.

THE RAILWAY LABOR VOTE.

Republican newspapers report that on Tuesday railway workers cheered Senator Harding, and infer that they will vote as they cheered. No such inference can be gathered from the labor press, which is just now exulting in the defeat by labor votes in the primary of Representative Esch, one of the authors of the Railway bill which so affronted labor. No one who voted for that bill can hope for labor's official support, and particularly not Senator Harding. His vote for the anti-strike clause of the Esch bill is counted among the ten votes which he cast which labor deems unfavorable to its interests. On the other hand, the Federation's committee found not one vote unfavorable to labor in Governor Cox's Congressional record and entered fifty-nine acts to the credit of his labor record as Governor.

This method of voting as members of a class rather than as citizens, and for selfish rather than political reasons, is obnoxious in itself and is a double-edged weapon. Those who favor the railway legislation may take it into their heads to vote for those whom labor opposes. Thus labor's opposition may be harmful to those whom it favors and in turn to labor itself. Labor's support has never been much of an asset and less this year than other years for a double reason. One portion of labor is becoming socially conscious rather than class conscious and cannot be marshaled by any leaders. Also, the radical portion of labor is showing itself an inveterate enemy of our institutions and is repelling all sympathy. It is anybody's guess whether labor men are Harding men or Cox men.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Educated Men Are Described.

Not a few people, probably, will note with some surprise that, of the six traits listed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as distinguishing an educated from an uneducated man, not one necessarily results from the acquisition and accumulation of the sort of knowledge that is derived from attendance at school or college and the study of books and the heeding of teachers. In other words, the man whom Dr. Butler would call educated might have in his mind but a scanty store of what commonly is called "learning."

The first of the traits mentioned in the enumeration—"correctness and precision in the use of the mother tongue"—comes nearest, perhaps, to being a product derived from schools and teachers. At least it can be derived thence, and sometimes is, but Dr. Butler preferred to say that it is "gained only from association with good English," and in that there is no inevitable reference to formal instruction.

In the second place, Dr. Butler's educated man shows "those refined and gentle manners which are the expression of fixed habits of thought and conduct." The meaning and the logic of that are not clear, unless the contention is that education is not complete until it has led to the acquiring of gentle and refined manners. But that requires a new definition of "education," for scholars as a class—men whom it would be hard to call "uneducated"—have not been celebrated for good manners, and some of them, not the least famous, have been notorious bears, neither gentle nor refined.

Perfection Is Not Attainable.

Sound standards of feeling and appreciation stood third in Dr. Butler's list of traits exhibited by the educated man, the power of reflection fourth, the power of growth fifth, and at the end was the ability to act efficiently without nervous agitation. It was this sixth trait that he found rarest of them all.

Then the man whose efficient activities are accompanied by nervous irritation is not educated, or is it again that his education, though well begun when only this is lacking, is not complete?

It cannot be that Dr. Butler would be cruel enough to refuse the title of "educated" to anybody who did not have all six of the traits he enumerated. To do so would be to deny that there are degrees of education, as of most other things. He is right, however, in emphasizing—and justified in overemphasizing, perhaps—the fact that there is more to education, properly understood, than a storing up of information, either general or special.

The derivation of the word, though that counts for next to nothing in the determination of present significance, implies that education is a development or training of natural, innate or inherited capacities, but that is not the whole of it.

Incidentally, can there not be education along reprehensible as well as commended lines—away from, instead of toward, every one of Dr. Butler's six traits? Presumably he would say that education in evil must have some other name, just as the grammarians, or some of them, insist that "bad grammar" is not grammar at all.

Justice Slow But Sure.

So obvious has it been from the very beginning of the Bergdoll affair that everybody connected with it was guilty of something or other, ranging from gross carelessness up to more serious offenses, that the convictions reached on Tuesday in the Federal Court at Philadelphia will get from many commentators no more than the weary inquiry: "Why were they so long in reaching a decision?"

In some quarters, presumably, there will be cynical references to the power of money. No doubt money did have something—even did have much—to do with protracting the proceedings. Money, however, has not secured immunity for anybody concerned; on the contrary, it is possible, and even probable, that if the Bergdolls had been penniless the sons would still be numbered among the thousands of other draft-dodgers who as yet have escaped punishment and are not the objects, so far as can be seen, of very vigorous pursuit.

As for Mrs. Bergdoll, while the justice of her conviction is unquestionable by anybody except her lawyers, her guilt is of a kind that prevents anybody from believing or desiring that her sentence should be imprisonment for more than a small fraction of the thirty-two years that could be imposed on her if the Judge chose to utilize the full rigor of the law. The motive for what she did hardly can be called good, but mothers are not expected to show Roman implacability toward erring sons—and the fact that this mother approved of the sons' error makes little difference.

Like excuse or palliation cannot be offered for the helpful friends who took part in the miserable conspiracy. Of the sons the best that can be said is that they dodged the draft for a better reason than cowardice—even pro-Germanism is better than that.

Protecting Airplanes From Fire.

Tests made on Tuesday at the Hazelhurst flying field near Mineola of a new fireproofing material seemed to demonstrate the present possibility of protecting aviators to a considerable extent from what is at present the most terrible of their dangers.

That the all-metal airplane, though non-combustible itself, does not render its operators safe from fire has been proved twice within a few weeks, for in each case the two men in the machine were covered with flaming gasoline from a broken reservoir and burned to death. What can happen to airplanes with wings of inflammable cloth has been shown only too often, and as most airplanes now are, and apparently long will be, thus constructed, it is evident that to render their wings non-burning, even when long subjected to intense heat, would decrease measurably the perils of aviation.

The fuel tanks of such planes are not like those of the all-metal machines and are not exposed to all of the same accidents, though it is sadly true that they, too, can save serious or fatal mishaps. Still, it will be much if cloth wing-covers can be made as resistant to fire as seemed to be those that were protected by the Bradley invention.

RACES IN FINLAND.

They Are United on Aland Question, Says the Consul General.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent in Paris, Walter Duranty, gives you some decidedly wrong information about the racial question in Finland in his article about the Aland question.

The Finnish speaking part and the Swedish speaking part of the population of Finland stand united on the Aland question, with the exception of the 25,000 inhabitants of the islands, which constitute about 8 per cent. of the whole Swedish population in Finland.

Whatever differences there may be between the Swedes and the Finns in Finland, it is certain that the Swedes in Finland do not despise the Finns as an inferior race; that the Finns do not regard the Finlanders as foreign invaders; that the vastly main part of Mannerheim's White Guard, crushing the Red insurrection, was composed of Finns and not of Finlanders, and, for the last but not the least, that not the slightest fear exists of an internal war between the Finns and Swedes living in Finland, even if serious differences between Sweden and Finland should arise, which every Finn hopes will not be the case.

It is always difficult to explain racial differences to outsiders, but the racial difference between English and French in Canada and its settlement gives a fairly good impression of the situation in Finland. Both nationalities continue to live peaceably as neighbors, the Finns taking a very active part in trade and industry—not at all working only in agriculture, as Mr. Duranty says—and every citizen of Finland hopes that the country, which, during the last decade, has gone through so much, will be spared more aggressive actions from the adjacent countries in the west as well as the east.

It may be added that I sign this statement as a descendant of the "Finlanders."

A. SOLITANDER,
Consul General of Finland.

New York, Sept. 18, 1920.

AFTER THE BURIAL.

He is not dead, tho' mid the solemn music
We saw him through the synagogue upborne.
He has not passed away, despite the sobbing
Of many thousands who in sorrow mourn.

In plans colossal for the growth of trade.
The heart and mind, the vision broad and splendid,
Have always more endearing riches made.

And these were his! In fullest, ripest measure
He felt for all, for all an open hand.
He lived his older creed in truest fashion—
A faith and life that all may understand.

BUDGET ACTION IS PUT OFF.

Finance Committee to Meet Every Day Except Saturdays.

The Committee on Finance and Budget of the Board of Estimate met yesterday to begin consideration of the makeup of the 1921 budget, but decided to do nothing until today, when it will meet again in the office of the Controller and scrutinize the estimates of the various city departments already received. Several departments have not yet submitted their next year's estimates.

At yesterday's meeting there was a manifest desire on the part of all present to keep down the budget figures. Controller Craig reminded the borough Presidents that the budget would carry a two-year burden to meet revenue bonds and that the strictest economy must be observed. Borough President Henry Bruckner of the Bronx thought that all matters relating to materials and supplies should be disposed of first before tackling the personal service increases, which are heavier than in any previous budget.

Mayor Hylan agreed with the Bronx President and thought that all salary matters should be taken up last. "I might feel in sympathy with some man who asks for a raise," explained the Mayor. "I might want to play a little politics for his benefit. With this other matter out of the way we would know what we have left for salaries."

"There is no doubt," said Borough President Riegelmann of Brooklyn, "that the proposed budget will present staggering figures. But it comes up under conditions which were not existing last year and which must be met. I am for considering every case on its merits rather than attempt to lay down a policy that cannot be changed."

Borough President Curran of Manhattan advocated a policy of restricting all public building and improvements except what was absolutely necessary.

"There is no doubt the budget for next year will be greater than anybody could anticipate, and from natural causes," he said. "I suggest that because of the housing conditions the city refrain from all but absolutely necessary construction programs. In my department I have rejected all proposals. I think we should not adopt any plans that will compete with housing construction."

The Mayor and Francis X. Sullivan of Queens, Commissioner of Public Works, who represented Borough President Connolly, agreed with Mr. Curran, but Borough President Riegelmann objected, as he thought the Court House matter was bound to come up at every meeting. He agreed that there should be restriction, but thought every case should be settled on its merits.

It was agreed that beginning today the committee should meet at 10 o'clock every morning except Friday, when it will meet at 2:30 o'clock. There will be no Saturday meetings unless specially agreed upon.

President F. H. LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen refused to attend yesterday's meeting. He thought the Board of Estimate should be the first to take up the budget matters. "I am too busy continuing my work on the budget to play with you today," wrote the Aldermanic President.

OPENS LINER BIDS TODAY.

Shipping Board Will Consider Offers for Two Former German Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Bids for the von Steuben, the former German steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm, were received today by the Shipping Board and will be opened tomorrow, when bids for the Black Arrow, formerly the German liner Rhetia, also will be opened.

These ships are among the first of the fleet which the Shipping Board is trying to dispose of. Among the vessels to be sold are ninety-two steel ships, which will be offered on competitive bids; twenty or thirty other steel ships, to be sold to owners now using them under allocation, and 285 wooden ships.

The Shipping Board announced in August that bids would be asked for 1,200 ships. None of the bids submitted was satisfactory, although about 150 inquiries had been made.

The ninety-two steel ships to be sold are ready now for competitive bids. No set date has been assigned for bids to be received. They are coming in constantly as the Board has advertised for them. Since August virtually the only sales have been to lines which took ships under allocation, with the understanding that they would eventually be allowed to buy them.

No new steps have been taken concerning the Leviathan, which now lies in Hoboken. It has been said that no action would be taken until the appointment of the new Shipping Board by the President, and this may be a matter of months. One report is that President Wilson will leave the matter to the incoming President.

Bids for the 285 wooden ships will be received until Oct. 7 and will be opened the next day. The majority of these ships are lying at Claremont, in the James River near Richmond, and at Norfolk. Whether these ships can be sold to foreign bidders is uncertain. The law provides that a sale of this character must be authorized by the full Board of seven members. At present there are only two members on the Board—Admiral Benson, its Chairman, and John B. Donald.

The terms asked by the Board in calling for bids for the wooden ships call for 10 per cent. of the purchase price in cash on delivery and the balance in equal semi-annual installments covering three years. It is said bids may be submitted for one or more vessels and must be accompanied by a certified check for 2½ per cent. of the amount offered. Bids are to be made on the basis of "as is and where is."

26,500,000 WOMEN CAN VOTE

Estimate of Eligibles Made by Government Officials.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Figures compiled by the Census Bureau and other Government departments indicate that the number of women in the United States more than 21 years of age is 28,035,000, of whom about 26,500,000 are eligible to vote in the November election. This estimate makes liberal allowance for alien women, American women married to aliens and others ineligible.

Exact figures are not available on the number of women over 21 but barred from voting for various reasons. Census Bureau officials believe, however, that this year 1,000,000 of the 5,250,000 foreign-born women in the United States will not have become naturalized. In addition there were in 1910 a small number of American women married to aliens and a larger number deprived of the ballot under State statutes in harmony with constitutional provisions. The total of these ineligibles was estimated at about 1,500,000.

American women married to aliens are not eligible to vote, the Department of Justice has held, but foreign-born women married to American citizens or whose fathers have become American citizens are entitled to the ballot without naturalization proceedings.

The number of eligible male voters this year has not been determined. Based on an estimated population of 105,000,000, however, the Census Bureau figures that there are now 34,807,000 men in the United States more than 21 years of age, of whom probably 31,500,000 would be entitled to vote in November.

YALE OPENS TODAY FOR ITS 220TH YEAR

800 EXPECTED TO ENTER

All Will Be Obliged to Take Same Course in English and European History—New Quadrangle Open.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 29.—Yale University opens for its 220th year tomorrow. Scarcely any effects of the war period will appear this year and the work of the university will centre about constructive plans affecting the work of the university as an educational institution. Additional interest in the work of Yale this year is derived from the fact that some time during the coming few months the Yale Corporation will elect a successor to the President, Arthur Twining Hadley, whose resignation was submitted last Spring to take effect in June, 1921.

The freshman class, which is this year for the first time common to both Yale College and the Sheffield Scientific School, will organize tomorrow afternoon and will include about 800 students. The normal enrollment of the university is about 3,300. Increases in the undergraduate schools and in the professional schools of medicine, law, divinity and forestry will result in a somewhat increased enrollment this year. The Medical School has been forced, owing to inadequate accommodations, to accept only fifty-six freshmen out of about 150 applicants.

The new freshman year will be under the administration of Dean Roswell P. Angier and a separate freshman faculty. All freshmen will be expected to attend the chapel exercises, will be subject to the same general regulations and will take the same course in English and in European history, the latter being designed to give the background for an understanding of contemporary political and social movements. A system of student counsellors, with George Van Santvoord as chief student counsellor, will be put into effect for the first time. The honor system will be enforced and will apply to all examinations and written tests, the matter of administrating the system being vested in the hands of a student committee.

One of the most important university developments is the beginning of the new Department of Education, under the direction of Frank E. Spaulding, Professor of School Administration, formerly Superintendent of Schools at Cleveland.

Yale College students returning to complete their senior year will find the southern portion of the beautiful memorial quadrangle, which is being erected in memory of the late Charles W. Harkness, ready for occupation as their special quarters.

Two new university officers begin their regular duties with the new year: Professor Williston Walker, as provost, will serve as a connecting link between the President and the departments, the divisions and the deans. He will be Chairman of the University Council, which, subject to the corporation, has become the most important educational determining body of the university, and he will sit with the corporation, with the various Faculties and governing boards, thus interpreting Faculty opinion to the corporation and vice versa. Last year Dr. William Adams Brown served as acting provost, and with him Professor Walker was closely associated. Burton P. Twichell will assume his position as dean of students, and will concern himself particularly with morale and student relations. He will assist the President in matters that affect student administration, and will assist the deans and other officers of the various schools in maintaining the morale of the student body.

An increase in undergraduate tuition from $240 to $300 has been necessitated by the increased cost which the university is obliged to meet. The corporation has voted that all or any part of the increase from the present rates shall be remitted during the university year 1920-21, in the case of any student who so requests.

SIGNS HOSPITAL BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 29.—Governor Smith today signed two bills left in his hands by the extraordinary session of the Legislature. One provides for the construction of a State hospital for discharged soldiers, sailors and marines from the State suffering from mental diseases.

The bill carries an appropriation of $3,000,000. A commission, consisting of the State Architect, State Controller, Attorney General, a representative of labor and a member of the medical profession, the last named to be appointed by the Governor, to serve without compensation, is provided. The State is to lease the property to the Federal Government for ten years at an annual rental of one-tenth of the cost of the structure. The Federal Government is to equip and maintain the institution.

The new structure is to be built in Queens on lands acquired for the Long Island State Hospital. It will have a capacity of 1,300 beds.

The other bill repeals Chapter 20 of the laws of 1920 and reappropriates certain funds to the Brooklyn State Hospital.

OCEAN TIEUP HITS BRITISH.

Japanese Also Affected—Our Vessels Independent of Coal Strike.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—More than 750 merchant ships are tied up in British ports and several hundred in Japanese harbors, according to official dispatches received here today from London. Low freight rates and the general slump in ocean traffic are said to be the causes, but it is pointed out also that a general coal strike in England would mean a tieup of practically the whole British merchant fleet.

Only 26 Shipping Board vessels are laid up in American ports, it is understood, and officials estimate that not more than 150 ships will be tied up in this country at any one time during the coming year. A coal strike in England would not react against American craft, it was added, because the great majority are oil burners.

EDSON IS RE-ELECTED.

Associate Superintendent of Schools, Near Retiring Age, Retained.

Andrew W. Edson was unanimously re-elected Associate Superintendent of Schools at the meeting of the Board of Education yesterday. He will reach the retirement age in December, 1921.

Consideration of the case of Oliver C. Morford, Principal of Public School 139, Brooklyn, accused of kissing one of his girl pupils, was again postponed. His local school board found him guilty and recommended that he be retired by the City Superintendent. Morford is under suspension.

The board also deferred action in the matter of the expiration of the term of office of Walter L. Hervey, a member of the Board of Examiners.

The co-operative high school in Public School 44, Manhattan, was named after the late John H. Haaren, Associate Superintendent of Schools.

URGE CO-OPERATIVE UPLIFT.

Charity Workers Join in Plea for Closer Co-ordination.

Men and women interested in uplift work met last evening in the Hotel Pennsylvania in a co-operative conference under the auspices of the Department of Public Welfare. The purposes of the meeting were described by Mayor Hylan when he said: "We must re-establish the old relations and obtain closer and more systematic co-operation of all existing charitable agencies." The speakers included Commissioner of Public Welfare Bird S. Coler, Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Father Keegan, as the representative of Archbishop Hayes, President La Guardia of the Board of Aldermen, Mgr. Francis J. O'Hara, director of Catholic Charities in Brooklyn; Louis Marshall, Chairman of the American Jewish Committee; William Church Osborn, New York Children's Aid Society; the Rev. Dr. John W. Schiff—who for years cried out for co-operation. The result has been that we have with less difficulty than heretofore dealt with our problem; we have collected larger sums of money; we have been able to prevent overlapping; we have been able to create new institutions where they were needed, and we feel that we are on the right road."

CUTS OWN THROAT AT SISTER'S DEATH BED

Locked in a room with the body of her dead sister, Miss Amy Shanks, a Tottenville (S. I.) school teacher, early yesterday cut her throat and slashed her wrists in an effort to fulfill the final clause of a vow whereby the two sisters had agreed to remain spinsters and to die together. At the Memorial Hospital in Princess Bay, where she still was unconscious last night, doctors said Miss Shanks, who is 38 years old, probably would keep her pledge.

The two sisters lived at 125 Johnson Avenue, where a third sister, Mary, kept house for them, since they were occupied as teachers in the Tottenville high school. Miss Sallie, 32 years old, had been ill with heart trouble for three months. She and Miss Amy were at Cornell together, they had taught in the same school nearly a dozen years, and their unusual devotion was known to friends and neighbors. Miss Amy had appeared at school each day since its opening, but as soon as the sessions were over she would hurry home to spend long hours at the bedside of her sister, who grew constantly weaker.

Miss Sallie died at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. An hour later Miss Mary sent for John Bedell, a Tottenville undertaker. When he arrived he was led to the room in which lay the dead sister. He tried the door. It was fast. In quick alarm Miss Mary tried it, then ran hunting through the house for Miss Amy.

When the search in other rooms had proved vain and her frightened cries went unanswered, she and Bedell put their shoulders to the door and forced it.

Dr. Walter Washington of Tottenville was called to the aid of the unconscious woman whose huddled form lay on the floor near the bedside of the dead sister. He put tourniquets on the bleeding wrists, applied a compress to the throat and hurried the young woman to the hospital.

News of the death of one sister and the impending death of the other caused great sorrow among teachers and pupils at the high school where both were great favorites and saddened their many friends in Tottenville who had never dreamed their unusually close companionship would have such a tragic finale.

FOUND STARS FOR HARDING.

Senator Thanks Hoboken Astrologer Who Cast Political Horoscope.

Senator Harding has sent a letter extending thanks to Professor Gustave Meyer, the Hoboken astrologer, for having cast for him a most pleasant political horoscope. It appears that some time ago Professor Meyer sent a letter to Senator Harding informing him that "the stars in their courses" were with him and pointed to "overwhelming victory in the end."

Professor Meyer wrote that the hour in which Harding was nominated, 6:15 P. M. Chicago time, 8:15 New York time, 7:15 planetary time, was the most propitious the Republicans could have picked. It was the Hour of Venus, and that would give the Senator the women's vote.

As for Governor Cox — the Hoboken astrologer yesterday prophesied dire things. He was nominated at 4:45, planetary time, the worst ever. He predicted not only defeat but more railroad accidents, and declared that the Democratic nominee will lose most of his support at the eleventh hour.

BOMB DEATH LIST INCREASED TO 36

SEARCH FOR NEW SUSPECT

Detectives Have Description of Man Seen Near Where Anarchist Circulars Were Dropped.

Another name was added to the list of persons killed by the explosion of a bomb in the financial district at noon on Sept. 16 last, making thirty-six in all. Theodore G. Peck, Jr., 36 years old, a bond salesman who resided at South Nyack, N. Y., died in the Post-Graduate Hospital at 5 o'clock last evening of burns about the body and internal injuries suffered from the flames and metal fragments of the infernal machine.

Mr. Peck was a brother of Assemblyman Gordon M. Peck of Rockland County. He was passing J. P. Morgan & Co.'s banking house at the time of the explosion, and was removed in an unconscious condition soon after to the Broad Street Hospital. The following day he was taken to the Post-Graduate Hospital, where surgeons endeavored to remove several of the pieces of the bomb from his body. He was born at West Haverstraw, N. Y., and eight years ago was married to Miss Laura Hover, daughter of Darius Hover of Princeton, N. J. He is survived by his widow and two children.

Agents of the Department of Justice have a description of a man seen standing near the letter box at Broadway and Cedar Street, in which anarchist circulars were dropped a few minutes before the explosion. It also was said that the Government operatives are in possession of the descriptions of two other roughly dressed men who were seen near the letter box at the same time, but it was declared that thus far officials of the Department of Justice have not obtained information connecting the two other men with the first one.

While the description of the first man was reported as rather vague, it was said that the Government officials and the police have been informed that he looked like a Russian. It tallies in some respects, however, with that of the man seen on the wooden structure above the sidewalk in front of the excavation for the annex to the Stock Exchange fifteen minutes after the explosion by Ray Clark, foreman of laborers, employed there. On the day of the explosion Clark said that he told local detectives and agents of the Department of Justice that he ordered the man, with about 200 others, who climbed to the top of the structure after the blast, to the street, and that the man, pointing to the horse which hauled the wagon containing the infernal machine to the entrance to the Assay Office, said: "I can't go now; that's my horse." Before Clark could inform a detective, however, the man disappeared.

ALDERMAN'S HOME BOMBED.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The home at 1,284 MacAlister Place of Alderman John Powers, a political power in Chicago's Nineteenth Ward, was badly damaged early this morning by the explosion of a bomb which had been placed on the front porch.

The Alderman, who was in the house at the time with five friends, escaped death only because he happened to be in the rear of the building.

The entire front of the house was wrecked and all the windows were shattered. Half a hundred windows in other nearby homes also were broken.

The explosion occurred shortly after midnight. After the bomb went off two men were seen running away from the scene.

Policemen were inclined to believe that Italians in the neighborhood were responsible for the explosion, from their alleged desire to depose the Alderman from power in the ward. They immediately started rounding up many Italians in the district. Alderman Powers, however, asserted that the Italians in the ward were friendly to him.

"The bombing of my home comes as a result of a crooked political plot and nothing else," Powers said today. "It is a scheme of my enemies to get me out of the way, and I'll give $2,000 to any one who can name the men responsible for the explosion."

BOMB SCARE AT ELIZABETH.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 29.—Employes of the Surrogate, Register, Sheriff and County Clerk, down to the head porter and assistant, left the Court House this afternoon when they learned of a note received by Police Chief Mulcahy that the building was to be blown up at 3 o'clock this afternoon. With a squad of detectives surrounding the entrances and a cordon of police fencing the institution, every one waited until the clock struck 3, but no signs of bombs appeared.

"The Union County Court House will be blown up Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 3 P. M.—TNT. PS.—This is not a threat; it is a warning," is the way the letter read. It was posted in Elizabeth yesterday.

BRITISH COAL CRISIS RECURS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The coal crisis again is acute. The break up of the conference between representatives of the miners and coal owners without agreeing upon a scheme for regulation of wages based on the output has resulted in the same deadlock as prevailed last week.

It is understood that the miners are firm in their demand that the output must be such as to insure the men receiving an immediate increase of 2 shillings per shift. Most of the men's leaders are working hard for peace, however, and the situation is not yet regarded as hopeless.

Premier Lloyd George received the coal owners tonight to hear their report, and afterward had a conference with the miners, which was still proceeding at a late hour.

PRUSSIAN PRISONS FULL.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Amazing statements regarding profiteering and breaches of food laws are given in a series of articles published in The Berliner Tageblatt. In Prussia alone there have been 9,082 cases of profiteering before the courts in six months. But the authorities admit these are not the most important cases, for it is hardly ever possibly to lay by the heels a profiteer working on a big scale.

In another article Dr. Finkelnberg, head of the Prussian prison system, declares Prussia's prisons are full to overflowing. Neighboring houses have been taken and fitted up for the purposes of prisons. One jail for 500 prisoners had no fewer than 8,000 guests during the year.

CLOTHING PRICES FALL 25 PER CENT. IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—A drop in clothing prices, indicative of the general trend toward a normal basis, was registered in Chicago today.

Announcement that a reduction of from 20 to 25 per cent. has already taken place, and that further reductions will follow, was made by Maurice L. Rothschild, State Street clothier.

"The time for readjustment has come, and the merchant who does not lower his prices to conform with the movement will lose out," said Mr. Rothschild. "Raw wool, including the Australian product, is cheaper. This means cheaper clothing. Reductions in Spring woolens or other woolens on hand already amount to between 20 and 25 per cent. Silks and other lines are naturally cheaper.

"I think that the retailers throughout the United States will cut down their orders as far as volume is concerned, and consequently there will not be such a demand for labor. This will bring about a greater efficiency in labor. The workers will do better work, and more of it, because they will want to keep their jobs."

Twenty-two hotel owners today agreed to cut their restaurant prices from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. Vegetables, fruits and cereals will be cut the most.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 29.—Food prices in Cleveland restaurants will drop from 10 to 15 per cent. Friday morning unless there is a marked advance in the wholesale market, was the message brought to Dr. R. C. Roucche, Chairman of the County Fair Price Commission, by a committee from the Cleveland Restaurantmen's Association today.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 29.—Seven Birmingham department and dry goods stores today announced reductions of from 20 to 33 1-3 uper cent. in all lines. Some price marks on hosiery, silks and cotton goods were below pre-war levels, the manager of one of the stores said.

MORE DROPS IN AUTO PRICES.

Closely following the new financial reorganization plan for the Maxwell and Chalmers motor car companies, Walter P. Chrysler, Chairman of the Reorganization Committee, announced a reduction in price yesterday from $160 to $200 on Maxwell cars and $150 on Chalmers cars. The new price at the factory for the Maxwell roadster and touring car will be $995. The former price was $1,155. The sedan is reduced from $1,895 to $1,695, and the coupe is also reduced $200, the new price being $1,595 instead of $1,795. The small Maxwell trucks also are reduced on an average of $140 for the various models.

The Chalmers open cars and chassis have been reduced $150 each, with a slightly lesser reduction on the closed types.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 29.—Price reductions were announced by the Paige, Chandler and Cleveland cars and Stewart trucks. The Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, in addition to reducing the price of its various models from $155 to $250, reduced its dividend rate from 3 per cent. a month to 1 per cent.

CALL NATIONS TO END INTERNATIONAL THEFT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 29.—A paper for submission to the meeting of the League of Nations in Geneva next November contains a proposal for a permanent organization to deal with the question of international communications and transit.

Owing to the immense increase in the theft of goods in transit by rail or water, it is proposed to call an international meeting in Geneva of representatives of commercial and other associations affected by this pillaging, to draft definite proposals to submit to the League so that a remedy may be found for these constant depredations and losses, and that international trade may again proceed with normal security.

At present goods sent from the United States to Europe often either disappear in transit or the cases arrive partly pillaged. Cases containing typewriters have arrived securely sealed and true to weight, but containing stones instead of typewriters.

The French railways in 1919 paid 130,000,000 francs compensation for theft, damages and delay. Passengers traveling in Europe now can send registered luggage only at their own risk, and even parcels sent by post often either disappear or their contents are partly stolen. The hope is expressed that the United States Commercial Association will participate in the international congress to discuss a remedy for international thieving, as this has greatly hampered European trade with America.

He was accused of the killing of Joseph Middleton, a farm hand, in a fight for a shotgun.

Rev. Father Prout Not Removed.

In an item referring to a suit by Mrs. Petronella Prout, mother of the Rev. Father John T. Prout, former rector of the Bohemian Church of St. John the Martyr, in East Seventy-second Street, it was stated yesterday that the Rev. Father Prout is a "former clergyman," and that he was "removed" from the rectorship of his church. He pointed out yesterday that he was not removed, but was transferred to the Catholic Protectory and officiated there until he became seriously ill. He has since been on sick leave, but has said mass with Mgr. Bruder, in East Eighty-seventh Street; in St. Mary's Convent, East Seventy-second Street, and conducts mass regularly in the Dominican Convent, in East Seventy-first Street.

FILE AMERICAN WILL OF ASTOR'S SISTER

TRUST FUNDS FOR CHILDREN

Principal of Her Marriage Settlement Goes to Them—Value Not Estimated.

The American will of Mrs. Charlotte Augusta Haig, sister of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, which was filed for probate here yesterday, provides for the disposition of her property in this country. Mrs. Haig lived at 65 Brook Street, Grosvenor Square, London, and died on June 30 last. Her English property is distributed under a will already probated in London.

The American will sets aside annuities of $1,500 for Clara L. Upward, $500 for Albert J. Simons, butler, $250 for Jane Cadman, housekeeper, and $500 for her secretary, Edith Woodford.

Mrs. Haig states that she was beneficiary under a marriage settlement executed by her father, William Astor, prior to her marriage to J. Coleman Drayton, and under a settlement of June 5, 1888, the funds of which are held by the United States Trust Company as trustee. She had power to dispose of the principal at her death, and directs that, after $50,000 has been paid to her son, Henry Coleman Drayton, the remainder shall be distributed equally among her children, Caroline Astor Phillips, wife of William Phillips, American Minister to the Netherlands and Luxemburg; Henry Coleman Drayton and William Astor Drayton, who made their home with her in London.

Mrs. Haig also stated that she was beneficiary under a trust fund established by her mother, Mrs. Caroline Astor, on Jan. 20, 1903, which she had the power to dispose of at her death, but says: "I do not intend to exercise and do not exercise such powers of appointment for the disposition of the same." Mrs. Haig directs that all other property in this country be divided into three equal trust funds and deposited with the United States Trust Company for the benefit of her children.

The will recommended that the funds of the estate be invested in United States or New York City securities or in the erection of buildings or improvements upon real estate belonging to her under the indenture of settlement.

Mrs. Haig directed that if she died in the United States her body be cremated and the ashes placed in her father's family vault, but if she died abroad her body was to be embalmed and buried beside her husband in Brookwood Cemetery, County Surrey, England, after being placed in a lead coffin with an outer casing of oak. Her son, Henry Coleman Drayton, and friend, William M. Cruikshank, of Garden City, L. I., were named executors without bond.

No estimate of the value of the estate was made by Stewart & Shearer, counsel for the United States Trust Company, who filed the will, except a formal statement that the realty is worth "over $10,000" and the personal estate "over $50,000."

REV. DR. ANDREW DINSMORE

The Rev. Dr. Andrew Dinsmore of the Presbytery of New York died yesterday at his residence, 201 West 105th Street. Although not officially connected with that church he had for several years actively assisted his friend, Dr. Walter D. Buchanan of the Broadway Presbyterian Church, at Broadway and 114th Street. Until three months ago his health, in spite of his 85 years, was excellent, but since then the effects of a severe attack of bronchitis of last Winter became evident.

Dr. Dinsmore was born in Ashland County, Ohio, was educated at Washington and Jefferson and the Western Theological Seminary and was ordained in 1864 at Neenah, Wis. During the civil war he did Christian Commission work and then for twelve years was pastor of the Bridesburg Presbyterian Church, near Philadelphia, later becoming assistant pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church.

News has reached here of the death at her villa near Bologna on Aug. 20 of Mme. She made her début here on Nov. 11, 1878, as Amina in "La Sonnambula," and won the audience immediately. Her success was continued as Astrifiammente in "The Magic Flute," and her performance of Elsa to Campanini's Lohengrin was the sensation of the season. SCHIFF—At a meeting of the Finance Committee of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities, held on Tuesday, Sept. 28, 1920, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

In common with the universal regret that is felt by the people of the entire world, we desire to place on record in our minutes our deep sorrow and grief at the death of Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, whose honorable and distinguished life, whose philanthropy and modesty had endeared him to people of all races and creeds without difference or distinction.

Our Federation, being under a peculiar debt of gratitude to him because he was the first prominent Jew of Manhattan to recognize the needs of Brooklyn and because he was the largest personal contributor from Manhattan to our Federation, deems it proper, in connection with the broader sympathy we feel because of the loss to the whole community, to give expression to our feeling of regret at the loss we have suffered locally in being deprived of the wise counsel and encouragement of this great man.

The example of his well-spent life ought to serve as an inspiration to all of us for increased effort in the field of philanthropy, and we, in meeting assembled, feel that we can show no greater tribute of respect than by pledging ourselves and our associates to renewed efforts in memory of Jacob H. Schiff.

It is resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our deceased friend and published.

Alexander H. Geismar, President,
Nathan S. Jonas, Honorary Secretary.

SCHIFF—The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, in common with all the peoples of the whole world, feels the great loss humanity has sustained in the passing away of Jacob H. Schiff. The great heart which spoke so warmly for the oppressed, the needy and the suffering, alas, is now stilled. We grieve for the great leader of Israel, whose voice no longer will be heard in espousal of Israel's cause. We recall with heartfelt gratitude his many benefactions, his sage counsel, his ever readiness to help and his especial desire to befriend the immigrant. The memory of Jacob H. This is the third of six articles in which comparisons are made of the playing strength of the world's series contenders.

If the result of the coming world's series hinged on the relative efficiency of the two infields the decision would not be reached until the ninth game, and a close battle might be expected in the final encounter. In none of the four infield positions does a player of one team stand out strongly above his rival player in all departments of play. Two infields more closely matched in all around ability never have gone into a world's series.

It would be idle to hold either the Brooklyn or the Cleveland quartet up as a great infield. Each is made up of clever performers, but collectively neither can be rated much above the normal major league infield. The outstanding star is missing in both quartets, but, on the other hand, there are enough near-great performers to furnish good balance. For all-around skill neither the Brooklyn nor the Cleveland infield ranks with such inner cordons as Connie Mack had a few years ago or with the infields of the Red Sox of Carrigan or the White Sox of 1917. The Giants of 1912-13 might be mentioned as another combination of recent years that would rate above the infields of either the Brooklyn or the Cleveland team.

Though each of these infield combinations falls somewhat below the standard of world's series infields of recent years, it would be unfair to hold up either as the weak part of the 1920 pennant winning machines. Both have done their work well afield, and the batting of either, taken collectively, would be better than .270. Had Ray Chapman lived to take part in the series he would turn the balance in Cleveland's favor and would have been the outstanding figure of the infield combinations. His successor, Sewell, may be the star of the coming set of games, but as yet he must be classed as an uncertainty. A comparison of Chapman and Olson would have shown a wider gap in relative all-around ability than prevails in any of the combinations that must be considered with the teams as they are now constituted.

Have Played Long Together.

The regulars of the two infields have enjoyed the advantage of daily association on the field to a far greater extent than is usually the case on any club, whether a champion or a trailer. The Chapman tragedy was about the one severe break in either infield during the year and, according to reports from the West, Sewell has the speed which enables him to fit in nicely in the second base combination of the Cleveland club. The other Cleveland infielders have been remarkably immune to serious injury, and the Brooklyn infield has had only occasional changes, none of which lasted long.

Larry Gardner has been in every game played by the Indians this season. Wambsganss has missed only two and Johnston has been absent in fewer than ten. On the Brooklyn side Johnston has not missed a game, Olson and Kilduff have missed fewer than fifteen and Konetchy, who has seen less active service than any of the other infield regulars, has taken part in 127 contests. These figures are brought out to show that the two infields may be expected to play as well collectively as any combination. Mixups in fielding should be at a minimum in this particular series.

A comparison of the two first basemen, Doc Johnston of the Indians and Ed Konetchy of the Robins, shows no marked advantage in all around play. One excels in one department, the other in another. Johnston is more agile around first base and is far ahead of Konetchy as a base runner. Konetchy gets a greater distance to his drives than does his Cleveland rival, but the Brooklynite cannot travel so far on some of his hits as the speedier Johnston. In other words, Johnston can make second on hits which would hardly yield two bases to Brooklyn's big first baseman, and the advantage of this speed frequently is apparent in close games.

First Basemen Both Veterans.

Neither Konetchy nor Johnston ever has taken part in a world's series, but there is little likelihood of either becoming rattled in the big games. Both are veterans who have been in the majors for years. Each has come back with a display of unlooked-for skill after being ticketed for the exit from major league society. Johnston was sent to the minors a few years ago after a long sojourn in Pittsburgh, but he has played fine ball for Cleveland. He does his most scintillating work, however, in the early part of the season, as is the case with numerous other ball players. Konetchy was regarded as all through when he finished with Boston two years ago, but he has done grand work since joining the Brooklyn club. There never was any question about his fielding. He ranked year after year at the top of his league or close to the top, but his batting fell off greatly. This season he has hit hard from the start of the campaign. In fielding Koney proves a better target than Johnston, but the latter's greater agility around the bag offsets this advantage.

It is possible that George Burns may get into the series as Cleveland's first basemen when either Smith or Marquard pitches for Brooklyn. Manager Speaker has not followed the shift system to any great extent this year, and Johnston has done well against southpaw pitching. However, in a close game a change may be advisable, as Burns is a dangerous hitter against left-hand pitching. The big right-hander has fallen far below his 1918 standard in the last two years, and he is not as good a first baseman as either Konetchy or Johnston; but he plays a good game on defense, and the Indians would not be seriously weakened with Burns in the lineup.

At second base Kilduff carries the edge on Wambsgans as a hitter, and the Clevelander stands off this advantage in the field. For a little man Kilduff gets a tremendous drive to his hits, and his fielding has been normally good all season since he was assigned regularly to second base. Up to this year he had been shifted around the infield considerably. He is not as spectacular a fielder as Wambsgans, nor does he run the bases with the skill of the Cleveland second baseman. Wamby has batted better during the closing half of the race than he did in the early part of the campaign, but he does not shape up as being so dangerous with the stick as Kilduff.

Sewell Has Real Promise.

Shortstop furnishes the big problem in a comparison. On one team is a recruit who is a flashy fielder with every promise of developing into one of baseball's real stars. Such is Sewell of Cleveland, recently picked from the minors after a comparatively brief sojourn in the lower strata of baseball society. On the other team is a veteran versed in all the fine points of the game, an erratic fielder, but a game and aggressive fighter who lets nothing discourage him. Ability to hit in a pinch and to work opposing pitchers to the limit may also be added to the qualifications of Olson, who will guard this important position for Brooklyn during the coming series.

Sewell, in his few games as a major leaguer, has not encountered the difficulty usually found by the recruit who is taking his first swings at high class pitching. It may be a flash, as has frequently happened, and it may be the forerunner to great achievements with the stick. As a fielder Sewell is a flash of the Scott and Bancroft type, but lacking the steadiness of either. This may be due to the great responsibility suddenly placed upon his shoulders. He is a player who may develop into the big star of the series, since he combines brilliancy afield and unusual batting skill, but he goes into the big clash as an uncertainty.

Lunte, a right hand hitter, who may be called upon to play the position if Sewell weakens, is a strong fielder with a wonderful arm. He can throw from deep short as well as any player in the game and as a ground coverer he is above the average. He is weak with the stick, however, or the place now occupied by Sewell would be his.

At third base Gardner excels Johnston by a decided margin in defensive play and by a small margin in hitting. Johnston, on the other hand, is far better than Gardner as a base runner. The Brooklynite, converted into a third baseman this year, has been one of the big surprises of the year, despite his tendency to fight the ball and to throw with inaccuracy. He has much to learn about the position, but he has come along fast. Gardner is a master of third base play, having played the position for years. Both men rank high as pinch hitters, with Gardner leading in this respect. Larry is a better thrower and must get the call in a comparison with his Brooklyn rival, but the difference is not wide enough to throw any pronounced advantage to Cleveland in an infield that is balanced in two positions and uncertain in another. Viewed from all angles the infields shape up as equally strong in all around play.

Indians Move Nearer to Goal; Yanks Finally Are Eliminated

Cleveland's drive for the American League pennant produced another success yesterday and now the Indians face a task that is fairly simple. With only four games more to play, while the re-arranged Chicago club has three more games, the Indians lead by a game and a half. By winning two of their four games with the Tigers the Indians could finish no worse than on a tie with the White Sox and in a play-off Cleveland would almost certainly defeat the remnant of the former Chicago machine. If the Indians can take three of their four games with the Tigers they are assured of the pennant, regardless of what the White Sox may do in the three-game series which opens tomorrow in St. Louis. If Cleveland wins three of four and Chicago three straight the final standing will be:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Chicago	98	56	.636

Although they won two games at Philadelphia yesterday the Yankees were completely eliminated from the pennant chase. The Yankees completed their season and will still trail Cleveland if the Indians lose four straight. One more victory will clinch second place for the White Sox, but three defeats will leave the Yankees tied for second place with Gleason's team.

NEW YACHT CLASS LIKELY.

Proposed One-Design Craft Meets with Approval of Corinthians.

As a result of the enthusiastic conclusion of the active yachting season, to say nothing of the present post season, the topic of new classes for next year already has attracted the attention of a considerable member of yachtsmen, and, chief among the new classes under discussion is one of craft somewhat similar to the old New York Yacht Club "thirties" which have served to swell the regattas of Long Island Sound Yacht Club's regattas and furnish rare sport for the last fifteen years, and today command a better price than they did three or four years ago.

The demand for such a type of yacht, if anything a bit larger and more powerful than the "thirties," and such as may be conveniently handled with but one paid hand, has received the serious consideration of several enthusiasts since the proposition was mentioned first early last Summer.

A very small minority of those who are interested have expressed a preference for a class built to rating from the boards of various naval architects, as tending to do more toward the betterment of design while the majority are in favor of a one-design class to insure continued usefulness and maintained value, such as the "thirties" have rendered, whereas, were they all to be built from different designs, some one or two might prove infinitely more successful than the others which would relegate the less successful ones to the Handicap Class.

According to the present general discussion on the subject, it is deemed advisable to get those who may be interested together, and have them agree upon certain fundamental conditions which must be embodied in the design and construction, and then to invite all naval architects to submit plans and specifications, after which all responsible builders might be asked to bid on the construction, and it is generally believed that, by having the class built in one yard, the price may be decidedly reduced.

Those who have gone into the subject are of the belief that the cost of construction, were the order to be placed in the near future, would be much lower than has been generally believed, in view of the high prices of the last year, particularly as such an order might well keep some yard busy until the opening of the yachting season of 1921.

A call will be issued in the near future for all who may be interested in the proposed new class to meet and discuss details that some definite policy may be decided upon. The fundamental requirements, as outlined by a few of those who are interested in the new class, include such limitations as may insure the yacht being readily kept up by one paid hand, comfortable accommodations below decks for the owner and two or three guests to live and cruise in comfort, and as much speed as may be combined with first-class seagoing qualities.

One of the prime movers for this new class said he believed at least a dozen yachtsmen might be found who would build to the class were the details satisfactorily worked out and the initial cost anywhere within reason, and he insisted that it was not a prearranged idea to furnish any one builder or designer with work, but that all would receive a fair and equal opportunity to submit designs and bids.

Soccer Team to Go to Canada.

A soccer invasion of Canada is planned by the American Football Association, which proposes to send the forthcoming cup winners on a tour of the Dominion. The drawings for the first round of the annual cup tie will be held Saturday night at the Berwick Hotel in Newark. Officers for the season have been elected as follows: Donald MacMillan, President; William Patrick, Vice President; James Galletley, Recording Secretary; A. N. Beveridge, 257 Pearsall Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., Secretary and Treasurer.

YANKEES WIND UP BY WINNING TWO

Trample Athletics Twice and Babe Ruth's 54th Home Run Enlivens Occasion.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—The Yankees wound up their season here today and so did George H. Ruth, who is understood here to be quite well known in his home town, a little place just across the East River from Brooklyn. The Yankees pinned the bruised shoulders of the Athletics to the turf for two falls—it was only a double-header, so that was enough—and Mr. Ruth agitated a large number of usually sedate Philadelphians by performing an enjoyable specialty which consisted, as the writer was informed, in cracking that old pill—sometimes jocosely called a ball—clear over the right field wall.

This little affair occurred in the final inning of the first game, which the intruders from New York won by the score of 7 to 3. The second game went eleven innings and the Yankees took that encounter by 9 to 4, piling up a stack of five runs in the final session. The writer learned from the same informant quoted above that Mr. Ruth has been practicing his entertaining little feat for some time before performing it before a critical Philadelphia audience today. It seems that having performed it fifty-three times rather informally this Summer, he felt justified in attempting it here this afternoon. It made quite a hit.

Athletics First to Score.

The Athletics got off to a running start in the opening game, registering an earned run in the first inning after laying the Yanks low with ease and facility.

The Yankees drew up level in the second. Pratt singled to left. Lewis went out, Harris to Griffin. Meusel fouled to Dugan. Vick tripled to centre, scoring Pratt. Hannah sent a grounder to Dugan and died at first.

The local men took that one-run lead right back in the same inning. C. Walker beat out an infield hit. Galloway walked and Harris fanned. Dykes beat out a hit to Pratt, scoring Walker. High also beat out a hit to Pratt. Griffin whiffed and Ward threw out Perkins.

From that point on the Athletics hung on to that slim lead like grim death, until the fifth, when it vanished, never to return. The visitors from Manhattan tied the score in that inning by the following process:

Meusel beat out a slow roller toward third. Vick forced Meusel, Dykes to Galloway. Hannah took first on Dykes's fumble. Collins fanned. Ward singled to left, scoring Vick. Pipp took first on Griffin's boot, filling the bases. Ruth struck out.

The sixth period saw the stowing away of the game in the Yankees' refrigerator. Pratt got first on Galloway's fumble. Lewis died, Harris to Griffin. Meusel singled to centre, Pratt scoring. Meusel took second on the throw-in. Vick singled to short. Hannah singled to left, scoring Meusel, Vick taking third. Collins fanned. Vick scored on a double steal with Hannah. Ward went out, Galloway to Griffin.

Walker Makes Home Run.

In the eighth Clarence Walker fattened the Athletics' total to the extent of one round trip procured by whacking a Babe Ruther into the left field bleachers. He was the first man up and no further damage occurred, although Galloway followed with a single to centre.

The Yankees' ninth, although not so conclusive as the sixth, was far more festive, for then it was that the Potentate of Pounders completed his season's achievements in the way of all-around-the-lot slams. To start the inning Rip Collins fanned for the fourth time. Ward got to first on Dugan's error. Pipp popped to Dugan. Ruth picked out the first ball from Keefe and lifted it over right field wall for his fifty-fourth home run, scoring Ward ahead of him. Pratt flied to C. Walker.

The second game was a peculiar affair, in which the New Yorkers got away with a tremendous outburst and finished with another even more tremendous.

Four Runs to Start With.

In the first inning Ward doubled to centre. Pipp walked. Ruth got a scratch infield hit, filling the bases. Pratt forced Ruth at second, Styles to McCann, Ward scoring on the play. Lewis hit into the left field bleachers for a home run. Pipp and Pratt trotting home ahead of him. Meusel grounded out, McCann to Styles. Vick rolled out, Styles unassisted.

The Athletics got back half of these runs in their portion of the inning. Dykes singled to centre. High singled through Pipp, sending Dykes to third. Meusel threw out Styles, Dykes scoring on the play. High took third on a passed ball. J. Walker sent a sacrifice fly to Ruth, High scoring. Ward made a fine running catch of Dugan's fly to short left.

Another Philadelphia run was wafted over by Clarence Walker's homer in the third, his second of the day and seventeenth of the season. It went into the left field bleachers, like his blow in the first game.

In the fifth Dykes tied up the tally with another round-trip smash into those long-suffering left field bleachers. Thereafter until the eleventh both Shawkey and Hasty, the latter having relieved Naylor in the first, pitched air-tight ball. Hasty weakened in the eleventh, however, and the fireworks were magnificent.

To begin this session Lewis flied to Johnson, Meusel fanned, Vick walked. Hoffman singled to left. Shawkey singled to left, scoring Vick, and Hoffman scored on Johnson's wild throw to J. Walker, Sawkey going to third. Ward walked. Pipp hit a home run into the left field bleachers, scoring Shawkey and Ward ahead of him. Ruth singled to right. Pratt lined to High.

That was all there was to it, but it sufficed quite amply.

HEYDLER OPPOSES CITY SERIES HERE

Would Vote Against Games Between Yanks and Giants—Matter Seems to be Up to McGraw.

President John A. Heydler of the National League sent word to this city yesterday that he would, as a member of the National Commission, oppose a city series between the Giants and the Yankees. Before this word was received from Mr. Heydler Messrs. Ruppert and Huston, owners of the Yankees, had informed their players, who were in Philadelphia, that they might go ahead and play the Giants in a city series here if they liked. The Yankee owners had made it emphatic, however, that the players would have to play their best and not make the affair a fiasco.

As a member of the National Commission President Heydler stated that, under the present conditions in baseball caused by the sensational exposures at Chicago, the series would not be advisable. He declared that it was only a money-making scheme, and as a member of the commission it was his opinion that the players of both the New York clubs would benefit sufficiently with the share of the world's series receipts which they will receive. The Giants will get the share for the club finishing second in the National League, while the Yankees are sure of third money and have a chance of tying the White Sox for second money. "As a member of the National Commission I would oppose granting permission to play the series," said Mr. Heydler.

This news comes as a great surprise to the players of the Yankees and Giants, as both clubs are anxious to play. Manager McGraw of the Giants is in Chicago, and his consent has not yet been obtained, but the players say that he looked upon the series favorably just as soon as the Giants were out of the race. Last year the Yankees challenged the Giants to a city series, but President Stoneham refused to sanction it because Manager McGraw was in Cuba just after the season ended. President Stoneham is now in Cuba and the consent to play the series will be up to Manager McGraw.

It is a question whether the National Commission would flatly refuse to sanction the city series if the two clubs insisted on it, as city series have always been sanctioned in the past. Some of the players are in favor of playing the series without the sanction of the commission. Colonel Ruppert and Colonel Huston are in favor of the series because it gives the players a chance to get some extra money and because there seemed to be a real interest in such a series on the part of the fans. They would like to see what Ruth would do against the Giants' pitchers.

The Yankees ended their season in Philadelphia yesterday and the Giants will begin a series with Brooklyn at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. It is likely that something definite may be done about the series this afternoon when the players of both clubs talk it over. It is not the desire of the New York clubs to have the proposed city series conflict in any way with the world's series games in Brooklyn. They plan to play them when Brooklyn is playing away from Ebbets Field.

The Giants are planning to take a trip to Cuba and have made an offer to Babe Ruth to go along as an extra attraction. Ruth, it is stated, has accepted the offer. Ruth is also advertised to play next Sunday at Dyckman Oval in a double header with the Tesreau Bears. Carl Mays has also been advertised to play in the same games with Ruth.

COPS TO MEET FIREMEN.

Will Play Ball on Ebbets Field Today in Aid of Honor Fund.

A fast game is expected at Ebbets Field this afternoon, when the baseball team of the Fire Department meets the Police Department nine. A number of former semi-professionals are on each team. Mayor Hylan will throw out the first ball. A musical program will be rendered by the Police and Fire Department Bands and by the Police Glee Club.

Gate receipts from the game are to go to the Honor Emergency Fund of the Fire Department, to provide aid for dependents of firemen killed in the line of duty and not otherwise provided for by law.

HARVARD PLAYERS HONORED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29.—Arthur Conlon, shortstop, and Eddie Lincoln, third baseman, were awarded respectively the Dana Wingate Cup and Barrett Wendell bat for their prowess as members of last year's Harvard nine. Conlon's name will be engraved on the cup as the player who did the most for the team. Lincoln's prize was for all around offensive ability. Thirty-three men reported for Fall practice today.

CLEVELAND EASILY BEATS THE BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—Cleveland gained another lap on Chicago in the struggle for the American League championship today, winning from St. Louis by a score of 10 to 2 and making a clean sweep of the four-game series.

The victory puts the Indians a game and a half ahead of the White Sox and in a position to clutch the pennant by winning three more contests.

Today's game was a virtual walkover for Cleveland. Weilman, who was knocked out of the box by the league leaders Sunday, started again, and, in addition to being hit freely, issued five bases on balls, finally being relieved after the seventh inning, with the visitors holding a five-run lead. Vangilder, who succeeded him, also was wild, and made two errors that let in three runs.

Coveleskie was master of the situation, keeping the Browns' hits well scattered, and would have had a shutout but for errors by Gardner and Sewell.

Speaker, Wood and O'Neil led the attack for the visitors, the latter's double in the first inning driving over two runs.

Colgate Baseball Coach Has Over Twenty in Uniform.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Despite the attention which is being given to football as the first game of the local season approaches, that with Susquehanna on Saturday, a large squad reported to Baseball Coach Bill Reid on the Colgate diamond this afternoon following his call issued yesterday. Over fifty men were in uniform, twenty of whom were members of last year's squad. On the other side of Colgate's huge athletic field the football men were working hard to get into their mid-season stride while Coach Reid was drilling his men in the fundamentals of the great American game.

Only two veterans of last year's team are lost to the nine this year. These are Micky Miller and Toots McBride, the battery stars. Both Miller and McBride were graduated in June, and the coach will find it no easy task to fill their places. Chief Leonard and Clint Blume, both pitchers of unusual ability, remain as moundsmen for the Maroon, and it is expected that the entering freshman class will contribute some hurlers of talent. Epple Barnes of Brooklyn, will again hold down his first base position, pitching an occasional game now and then. Last year Barnes was the only southpaw pitcher on the team.

Over thirty new men wore the Colgate diamond uniform this afternoon for the first time, several impressed Coach Reid with their ability to play the game.

NOTLEK TOURNEY BEGINS.

Play in the tennis tournament on the Notlek public courts at Claremont Avenue and 119th Street was started yesterday, with two Japanese entries among the most formidable contestants. One of the Orientals is Kazuo Tsutsumi, who is one of the first ten ranking players of Japan. Tsutsumi won his first round match yesterday from E. J. Greff by scores of 6—2, 6—3. The other Japanese, Yukichi Nakamura, is also expected to have a good chance to advance far in the tournament. Gerald Emerson, the Jerseyman who has figured in many important tournaments in a leading capacity, is generally regarded as the probable winner of the tournament. He won his first-round match handily from A. W. Burwell, 6—1, 6—1.

The hardest match yesterday was that between A. Rudolph and L. A. Gibson, which the former won by 9—7, 8—6. Dr. G. N. Slattery defeated Erik Arctander, in another well-contested match, 8—6, 6—4, while H. Horwitz won easily from W. B. Lerventhal, 6—1, 6—1.

Tunney to Fight Sampson.

Gene Tunney, Greenwich Village light heavyweight, and Paul Sampson of Harlem will engage in their postponed twelve-round bout this evening at the Armory A. A. of Jersey City. The contest was originally scheduled for last Monday night but was deferred because of inclement weather. The additional days of training are reported to have benefited both boxers and an interesting bout is expected. A semi-final eight-round bout will bring together Jimmy Blute of Yorkville and Johnny Lisse.

RIVALS TO MEET IN BATTLE OF COURTS

Miss Wagner and Miss Grove Will Play Today in Women's State Title Tourney.

Among the most peculiar circumstances of one of the most peculiar tennis tournaments ever played in the metropolitan district was the advancement yesterday afternoon of Miss Bessie Holden to the semi-finals of the New York State women's championship. Miss Holden reached that elevation without the formality of raising a racquet. She has advanced through four successive defaults and is scheduled to meet Mrs. E. V. Lynch on the courts of the New York Tennis Club in the penultimate round today. Whether circumstances will permit Miss Holden to contest the way into the final is doubtful. In any event, Mrs. Lynch will probably be able to gain the bracket.

Today's play will bring the most interesting match of the tournament. Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Margaret Grove, who were the finalists in the original tourney, played last June, are scheduled to meet this afternoon at 3:30 in the round before the semi-finals. This will be a dead-in-earnest match. The circumstances that forbade the playing of the final in the original tourney will be in the minds not only of both contestants but of everybody in the gallery, and the result is sure to be a match that, at the very least, will represent the best that either competitor can put into it. In other and plainer words, it's for blood.

Miss Wagner and Miss Grove have met once this Summer in the final tournament. That was when they fought out the final of the open events at the Greenwich Country Club in the last week of June. Miss Wagner won on that occasion by scores of 6—0, 6—4, and the general opinion among followers of the game is that she will be able to repeat today. Her game is too versatile for Miss Grove under ordinary circumstances.

In yesterday's play Miss Grove defeated Mrs. E. H. Thompson in two love sets in the third round. Miss Wagner had won her third-round match the day before. There were two fourth-round matches. Mrs. Rosenthal won her unfinished match with Mrs. G. B. Hirsch by scores of 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, while Mrs. Lynch, having advanced three times by defaults, won from Mrs. S. J. Strauss by 6—1, 6—4.

The summaries:

Fourth Round—Miss Bessie Holden won by default; Mrs. E. V. Lynch defeated Mrs. S. J. Strauss, 6—1, 6—4; Mrs. C. Rosenthal defeated Mrs. G. B. Hirsch, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3.

LAST OF OLYMPIANS HERE.

The rearguard of America's Olympic team set foot on home soil again yesterday when the White Star liner Mobile, delayed since Tuesday because of a case of smallpox aboard, proceeded up the stream to her berth at Pier 59. On board the ship was a collection of forty-five of Uncle Sam's representatives in the late Olympic games, thoroughly glad to get back home once again and eager for a sight of relatives and friends. The party included the entire team of women swimmers, together with some men swimmers and representatives of the wrestling, cycling, boxing, track and field and rowing teams.

The Misses Ethelda Bleibtrey, Charlotte Boyle, Eileen Riggin, Helen Wainwright and Alice Lord, the leading local swimmers, were included in the last of the arrivals. Duke Kahanamoku, Hawaiian aquatic crack; Dad Center, who filled the vacancy caused by the unexpected withdrawal of Manager Otto Wahle, and Charlotte Epstein, women's swimming manager; Dick Landon, New York A. C. high jumper, who made a new world's record in the Olympic test; George Cornetta, Mercury Foot distancer; Sol Butler, Dubuque College broad jumper, and B. Ponteau, Sidney Logue, W. Ostacher and W. Hirschman, boxers, were also on board. Collectively the returned athletic stars were satisfied after what they termed a pleasant trip.

The arrival of the Mobile brings the entire American Olympic team home again. By dribs and drabs the athletes have arrived since the close of the Antwerp classic, until the only Americans directly connected with the games abroad now are Gustavus T. Kirby, President of the American Olympic Committee, and Justice Bartow S. Weeks.

With the arrival of the last of the team athletic officials working with the Mayor's Committee on Receptions to Distinguished Guests in preparation for the parade which will be held Saturday as an official means of welcoming the returning athletic victors, will procede with final details for the spectacle, which promises to take a prominent place in the country's athletic history. Many of the out-of-town athletes who arrived on the Mobile will remain here for the parade. Members of the team will march in their Olympic costumes, the only departure from the attire in the Parade of Nations at the Olympic Stadium being that the American Olympic cap will be worn instead of the straw hat. The team will be divided into groups according to the various sports of which they are exponents.

Colonel Sydney Grant, commanding officer of the Thirteenth Coast Defense Command, Brooklyn, yesterday issued orders for a special detail of troops for the military escort in honor of the Olympic athletes. The detail will be composed of the entire Fifth Company, the regiment's crack athletic outfit. Captain Joseph G. Hardmeyer, athletic officer and track captain of the Brooklyn armory, will be in command and will be assisted by Lieutenant Benjamin M. Edgerton, formerly Military A. L. obstacle race champion, and Lieutenant Charles R. Munski. Among the noted athletes of the Fifth Company are Jack Sellers, local 600-yard champion; Walter Stein, one and three-mile cycle champion; Sid Leslie, former M. A. L. titleholder and present metropolitan mile champion; Casper Scheffer, Fred Teschner, Louis Windmuller, George Waeglin, Anthony Attardi and Russell Jekel.

The parade column will be as follows:

Mounted Police.

Police Band.

Grand Marshal and Staff—Executive Committee of Mayor's Committee on Receptions to Distinguished Guests; Committee of Amateur Athletic Union.

Guests of Honor—American Olympic Team; American Olympic Committee.

7th Regiment Band.

Second Division—Athletic clubs, allied organizations, Fire Department Band.

Third Division—Athletes of the Police and Fire Departments.

CARPENTIER SHOWS SPEED IN TRAINING

Georges Carpentier, the European heavyweight champion and a prospective opponent of Jack Dempsey, gave a public demonstration of his ability yesterday before a critical gathering of more than 100 boxing critics. The occasion was the French boxer's first training exhibition in preparation for his coming twelve-round bout against Battling Levinsky, which will be held at the Jersey City Baseball Park Oct. 12 under the auspices of the International Sporting Club and President Jack Frost of The Arena.

Carpentier gave his demonstration in the Elks' Club at Summit, N. J., where he has established training quarters. It marked his first public workout for a real battle in this country. He went through every phase of training known to modern boxing, and convinced the observers that he is a wonderful boxer.

For the edification of the assemblage, and as part of his training routine, Carpentier boxed, worked with the pulleys, went through a special limbering up exercise and punched the bag. Throughout the workout he showed remarkable speed with his hands and feet, and in his boxing exhibitions against three sparring partners worked his head in a manner which reminded old-timers of the once redoubtable Young Griffo, generally recognized as the cleverest boxer who ever drew on a glove.

Carpentier's sparring partners, in order, were Joe Jeannette, veteran colored heavyweight, of Hoboken; Young Joe Gans, and Marcel Thomas, French welterweight. Altogether the French heavyweight boxed four rounds. He started with a lively two-round session against Jeannette, and had the veteran heavy stepping at a lively clip in an effort to keep pace with him.

Gans was the next sparring partner, and experienced the effect of Carpentier's latent punching power. Quite by accident, after the exhibition had gone about two minutes, Carpentier whipped over a hard right to the jaw, and Gans would have fallen but for the fact that the French heavyweight jumped in apologetically and caught his sparring partner about the waist. Gans was through for the afternoon.

Jeannette then resumed where Gans had left off and carried Carpentier along through the remainder of the round. Following this Carpentier and Thomas went through a swift round of boxing, in which the French heavyweight continued his demonstration of speed and aggressiveness.

A fifteen-minute session with the punching bag, a phase of training at which Carpentier is quite adept, and ten minutes with the chest pulleys completed Carpentier's workout.

Throughout the four rounds which he boxed Carpentier was never idle. He kept on top of his partners all the time and refused to permit an opportunity to get set. Carpentier followed a persistent aggressive style, and not once did he take a backward step against any of his three rivals. His blows darted out with brilliant speed and direction, so that his opponents were kept busy defending themselves from the rapid-fire attack.

The public workout marked the entrance of Carpentier upon an intensive period of training which will continue right up to the date of the bout with Levinsky. Heretofore the Frenchman has boxed on alternate days, but for the remainder of his training period he will spar in daily sessions. A ring has been installed in what ordinarily is the Elks' ballroom, and other modern gymnasium paraphernalia is also available.

Promoter Jack Curley, Carpentier's American representative, and Matchmaker Tex O'Rourke of the I. S. C. took the party of New Yorkers out to Summit in four touring cars. Following his workout Carpentier posed for pictures, one of them being a photo of himself and young Freddie Welsh, son of the former lightweight champion, who had his little fists incased in a special set of gloves and sparred off against the smiling Carpentier.

The sale of tickets for the Carpentier-Levinsky bout opened yesterday. More than $20,000 has been received for advance reservations. The largest single applicant for tickets is a local bank, which is purchasing $1,400 worth, according to O'Rourke. "Honest John" Kelly is among the next highest, with an application for two ringside boxes at $400 each.

SEEMAN OUTPOINTS DARCY.

Sol Seeman of the Brooklyn A. A., national 125-pound amateur boxing champion, added another victory to his list last night when he outpointed B. Darcy, Lenox Hill Settlement, in their three-round bout at the Seventh Regiment Armory. This contest was one of six held in a tournament arranged as part of the open gatherings of the regiment's Veterans' Association and American Legion Post. A crowd of more than 1,000 witnessed the champion's demonstration of superiority and when Seeman was awarded the judges' decision at the end of three lively rounds, applauded approvingly.

The best bout of the night came in the 112-pound class. Mannie Wechsler, the Bronxdale A. C. midget, and W. Hausner, Clark House A. A., were the principals. At the end of three rounds Wechsler gained the judges' award. The contest was one of the best seen in this district in recent years. Both boxers slugged from end to end of the bout in a free-swinging fight which had the crowd yelling almost continuously. Hausner ordinarily pursues a clever policy when in the ring, but against the terrific assault of Wechsler the Clark House boxer sought to beat the Bronxdale lad at the latter's own game. This was a fatal mistake for Hausner, for Wechsler landed oftener and with greater effect than his adversary and carried off the laurels.

The only knockout of the evening was provided in the 120-pound class, when Referee Joe Schwinger intervened to save I. Gold from further punishment at the hands of M. Mirmo. Mirmo had floored Gold twice in the opening round, and when it was manifest that Gold was outclassed Referee Schwinger halted the bout.

120-Pound Class—M. Mirmo, Clark House A. A., defeated I. Gold, unattached, one round, referee's decision; H. Evans, Holy Cross Lyceum, defeated H. Elster, Pastime A. C., three rounds, judges' decision.

NACK TO RETURN HERE.

Former Amateur Boxing Champion Will Soon Re-enter Local Ring.

Allie Nack, former amateur 125-pound boxing champion, who has been absent from local competition for several years, will soon return to the metropolitan district, through the magnet of the Walker law permitting fifteen-round bouts to a decision here. Nack has been on the Pacific Coast for the last two years, where he has engaged in several contests. Some of his opponents included Joe Benjamin, Eddie Shannon, Frankie Farren and Sailor Freedman. The Bronx lad is expected to arrive in this city tomorrow and will immediately apply for a license to pursue his profession under the Walker law. One of the matches which Nack has in prospect is a return bout with Joe Benjamin.

Britton Meets Leonard Tonight.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 29.—Jack Britton, champion welterweight boxer, reached here today with a party of forty friends. Britton is scheduled to box ten rounds with Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, here tomorrow night. Leonard has been training here for several days. Both men completed their workouts today.

ON WATCH TAKES ROSLYN HANDICAP

BIG WEIGHT DIFFERENCE

G. W. Loft's Colt Called Upon to Carry Nineteen Pounds More Than Quincy Stable's Entry.

The turf axiom that class will tell and that a good horse overcomes obstacles to win was once more borne out at Aqueduct yesterday when G. W. Loft's On Watch defeated the Quincy Stable's Captain Alcock in a two-horse race in the Roslyn Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth. On Watch, recent conqueror of Cirrus, is one of the best three-year-olds of the year, while Captain Alcock has scored two victories in cheap company in nearly a dozen starts this season. But because the latter enjoyed a pull of nineteen pounds in the weights he was strongly backed to beat the horse of known class.

On Watch not only won by more than two lengths, but withstood repeated bumping in the stretch drive when he was carried almost to the outside rail as he attempted to wrest the lead from his rival. In spite of this and his weight handicap, he caught Captain Alcock and won very easily.

The Roslyn had promised to bring out a number of good three-year-olds and provide a good contest, but the scratches reduced the field to two. Fair Gain, Cleopatra, which was beaten by a nose by John P. Grier, and Sea Mint were withdrawn. This left On Watch with 121 pounds against Captain Alcock with 102 pounds.

Odds Frighten Fans.

With the field thus reduced it appeared to the average patron in the stands that the Loft colt would be quoted at something like 1 to 3. Imagine the surprise, then, when the opening quotations showed both horses at 4 to 5, take your choice. The price on the Loft colt came as such a surprise that there was a hurried rush to the paddock to see if the horse had lost a leg since he raced last. Out in the paddock On Watch appeared to be perfectly sound with four good legs and seemed to be in fine fettle for a race.

It soon became known that a number of the handicappers thought the difference in weights was decidedly against On Watch and that Captain Alcock had but to repeat one of his recent victories to take the measure of the son of Colin. Captain Alcock was heavily backed and there was little change in the quotations up to post time, though On Watch was made the favorite at 4 to 5 against even money for Captain Alcock.

Captain Alcock was away in front and set a very fast pace. Ensor, on On Watch, kept his mount under slight restraint and permitted Captain Alcock to set the pace, though never letting him get more than a length away. The pair raced in this manner all through the back stretch and around the turn. Nearing the turn into the stretch Ensor went to the outside and made his move to go to the front. As he did so Mooney, on Captain Alcock, bore out and bumped On Watch. Captain Alcock continued to bear out toward the outside rail until he was more than half way across the track and with every stride he forced On Watch closer to the rail, repeatedly bumping him as Ensor made desperate efforts to get through.

On Watch Is Bumped.

The bumping occurred so plainly in view of the crowd with the horses headed toward the judges that had Captain Alcock won he would undoubtedly have been disqualified for a foul. Mooney finally got his mount straightened out, and then On Watch lost no time in gaining the lead. Once at the side of Captain Alcock On Watch raced his rival down in a few strides. The class of the stake horse told when the test came, and, once the two settled down to business, On Watch drew away easily and was in hand at the end, with Ensor pulling up as he went over the finish line.

The Loft colors were twice carried to victory. The first race was won by Mr. Loft's Tamarisk, a well-played favorite in the five-furlong dash for two-year-old fillies. Ensor also rode this winner, and his strong finish accounted as much as anything for the victory. Tamarisk beat Vibrate by half a length, while Day Lilly was third, six lengths further back among the six starters.

Tamarisk went to the front at the break, but from second position from the rail bore out badly at the elbow turn and carried all but Fluff with her. As she bore out she bumped into Vibrate. Ensor got her in hand and kept to the lead, but had to put his mount to a hard drive to stall off Vibrate, which closed resolutely. Day Lilly was the best of the others, and held third by two lengths. Fluff swerved badly after gaining a big advantage by avoiding the bumping at the turn, and finally tired in the last furlong.

The close finish of the first race in which Tamarisk defeated Vibrate was said to be responsible for the death of a spectator in the stands, who dropped dead just after the horses went under the wire. He was Joseph Prince of Jacksonville, Fla. A stroke of apoplexy was said to be the cause of death. It was said that he had wagered on Vibrate, and as the horses neared the end he became intensely excited. He was removed to a room under the stands, but was dead when medical assistance arrived.

Baumarais Is Winner.

Jefferson Livingston's Baumarais finally graduated from the maiden class in the third event at six and a half furlongs, when he scored an easy victory over Sir Clarence, Le Gaulois and others, winning by five lengths. Baumarais was in front all the way, and was not seriously threatened. Le Gaulois, which was backed down from 40 to 1 to 8 to 1, showed excellent speed and raced close to the winner to the last sixteenth, when he was beaten a head for second. The others were badly outrun.

C. A. Stoneham's Mlle. Vivian caused the upset of the day in the second race, a seven-furlong sprint for fillies and mares, when she lasted long enough to win by a nose at 20 to 1, with Tailor Maid second and Lunetta, the favorite, third. Mlle. Vivian broke quickly with Fruit Cake and assumed the lead when the latter quit utterly after going a quarter of a mile. Lunetta challenged in the stretch and made a strong bid for the victory, but Mlle. Vivian held on gamely and just lasted. Lunetta got into second position, but tired and Tailor Maid took second.

J. Stezer's Goaler was an easy winner in the fifth race at a mile and five-sixteenths. He defeated Regresso and Pierre-a-Feu. He had a margin of three lengths at the finish. Goaler was in front all the way and had all the speed when it came to the last furlong, the others having found the distance too great.

The last race, a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds, went to the Redstone Stable's Sporting Blood, which scored easily over Maiden's Ballet, with Our Boots third. Maiden's Ballet was away in front, but tired near the end and the winner moved up to win very easily. Our Boots was never a serious contender for first money, but held the balance of the field safely.

Clarence Kummer, who has ridden Man o' War in nearly all of his races this season, will have the mount on the three-year-old champion in the match race with Sir Barton at Windsor, Ontario, Oct. 12. Arrangements for Kummer to ride were made yesterday. In order to get the services of the jockey Samuel D. Riddle had to get the consent of Commander J. K. L. Ross, who has the second call on Kummer's services. Commander Ross, though owning the horse Man o' War will meet, readily consented. Earle Sande, who is under contract to Commander Ross, will ride Sir Barton, as usual.

PANOPLY FIRST IN RACE.

Whitney Filly Wins the Harford Consolation Handicap.

HARVE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 29.—The Harford Consolation Handicap, a dash at six furlongs, which provided an exciting feature here this afternoon, was won by H. P. Whitney's fleet three-year-old filly Panoply. This daughter of Peter Pan had to be ridden out to gain the decision by a head from Mock Orange. Siren Maid was third among five which accepted the issue.

Panoply, which has always performed well on the Maryland tracks, was a heavily supported favorite and went to the post at odds of practically 9 to 20, while there was little support for any of the others in the race. Panoply had plenty of speed, but the top weight of 115 pounds was telling on her at the end.

Rushing away from the barrier to a comfortable lead of two lengths, Panoply appeared to be an easy winner, for she readily raced Bill McCloy into submission and continued to increase her advantage with every stride. Jockey Rodriguez took a firm hold on her and had her under restraint in the stretch for what appeared to be an easy victory, but once turned for home Mock Orange closed with a rush and, with but 100 pounds up, forced Panoply out to the last ounce. Rodriguez got his mount home only because he outrode Allen in the final strides, for Allen was of little assistant to Mock Orange. None of the others was ever prominent, though Siren Maid closed with good speed and easily saved third place.

LATONIA HANDICAP FOR BUSY SIGNAL

Bradley's Filly Has a Length to Spare in Fast Finish—Ginger Second.

LATONIA, Ky., Sept. 29.—The Latonia Autumn racing season opened this afternoon under most auspicious circumstances. The large crowd that turned out for the inaugural at this popular course was favored by clear weather and a well-arranged program, the high light of which was the Latonia Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth with $5,000 added.

This feature was won by E. R. Bradley's fleet filly Busy Signal, which conceded weight to practically all of the large field of eleven starters and won by a length very handily. Ginger was second and King Gorin third.

Busy Signal, which has been at her best since August, ran a very good race. She broke in motion and assumed the lead at once to hold it to the end. Murray kept her under slight restraint through the early running and the filly had plenty of speed in reserve when it came to the final dash. Ginger followed the pace all the way and it was a two-horse race for the last half mile. Ginger made a strong bid for the victory in the stretch drive, but was never able to get up to the fleet leader and Busy Signal got home with a length to spare. Ginger was second by two lengths. Minto 2d suffered from interference shortly after the start, but closed with a rush when clear in the stretch and got up to fourth place. The others were outrun for the entire distance and Peace Pennant finished last.

The Havlin Hotel Handicap at six furlongs went to Westwood, with Flags second and Agnon third. Westwood received a hustling ride from Garner, and, taking the lead at the start, lasted to win by a nose. Flags closed with a rush after a slow start.

ARION GUY TAKES COLUMBUS FEATURE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 29.—Sixteen heats were raced today in the biggest Grand Circuit program of the entire meeting and then the card was not completed, Dottie Day in the third heat of the 2:07 class trot coming from nowhere and winning from Selka, just about to snatch the race, and causing the final heat to be taken over until Thursday for a decision. Dottie Day in this mile paid $151.60 on a two-dollar mutuel ticket, the longest price of the day.

The Western Horseman Futurity for three-year-old trotters, for a purse of $6,400, was the best event, and in it Arion Guy defeated a field of excellent colts, making a new record for the event in his second heat, when he trotted in 2:05¼. The first half of the first mile was stepped in 1:01, with Emma Harvester chasing the Eastern colt. Emma tired there and the stretch battle in each heat was with Sister Bertha, who each time failed to reach by a scant length.

The three other events of note were not up to standard. The aged performers did not like the chilly atmosphere and made slow time. Peter Manning won the Buckeye 2:12 trotting stake in straight heats, but in very slow time. The Board of Trade pace had ten starters, but Hal Mahone had to pace no faster than 2:04¼ to win after he was beaten in the first heat by Russell Boy. Louie Gratton was the best of the 2:03 pacers, who went as slow as 2:09¾ in the first heat. The unfinished 2:15 trot went to Mightell, the removing of W. R. Fleming as Patrick Todd's mount and the putting up of Valentine behind him for the final heat doing no good. In the 2:07 trot Dottie Day, Selka and Peter L. each had won a heat when darkness fell.

St. Andrews Club Adopts Changes in Rules of Golf

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Changes in the rules of golf, framed after a consultation with the American, Canadian and South African delegates, were tonight approved of by the Royal and Ancient Club at Saint Andrews. Chief of these were:

1—The adoption of a standard ball which corresponds with ball familiarly known to all golfers as the 30. It is a fraction of an ounce lighter than the most popular ball, the 31, but the size permitted is the merest fraction less.

FISHER UNDECIDED ON MANY POSITIONS

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29.—Harvard's second eleven held Captain Horween's first 'Varsity team for downs this afternoon, the first-string players being unable to score against the scrubs even after more than twenty minutes' steady work. Later in the scrimmage the 'Varsity substitutes were stopped short by the scrubs when close to their goal line, but finally the 'Varsity rallied, and made two touchdowns. One of them was made by Francis Roullard, the back brought to the 'Varsity from the second team yesterday. Roullard broke through the right of the scrubs' line and dashed forty-five yards up the field. Toward the end of the practice the first team settled down to some steady gaining by means of line attack and scored a touchdown by straight rushing.

Head Coach Fisher is still trying out various combinations both on the line and behind it. Havemeyer, Woods and Brown started in the middle of the line, but Faxon was at left tackle in place of Sedgwick. Macomber and Gaston, two of last year's substitutes, were at the ends, Clark still being out of the going, and Kane doing no work until Team B went into the scrimmage. Owen, Horween and Chapin were the backs behind this line during the early scrimmage in which the scrubs took the ball on downs.

For the substitutes, Churchill made three or four very brilliant runs, but the team was stopped short on the goal line. The seconds then were started on the 'Varsity's ten-yard line, but made only five yards in three rushes. Hunnemans try for a field goal was blocked.

FAST DRILL FOR TIGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 29.—Coach Roper sent the 'Varsity and the scrub through the hardest scrimmage of the season on University Field this afternoon in preparation for the Swarthmore game on Saturday.

The scrub succumbed to the 'Varsity offensive, but put up a stiffer game than yesterday and was defeated by a single touchdown only. The 'Varsity received the ball from the kickoff and play started from the twenty-five-yard line. Gorman at quarter chose half a dozen plays through the line and the scrubs were shoved back for three first downs. At this point in the proceedings Wittmer heaved a long pass over the centre of the field and Davis, the 'Varsity right end, made a sensational catch that carried the ball to the ten-yard line. A criss-cross play caught the scrub backfield off guard and Gilroy shot around right end for the first and only touchdown of the afternoon.

Roper sent Murrey into the backfield at this point for the first time in two days, and when the scrub kicked off again he ran the ball back nearly to midfield, but a 'Varsity fumble on the next play gave the ball to the scrub. The second string players found the 'Varsity line a bit stiff and attempted a drop kick from the forty-yard line, but the ball dropped short. A heavy thunder shower that suddenly blew up closed the practice for the day.

Roper has been using many of his veterans sparingly in the scrimmages and may not risk them much on Saturday. Donald Lourie, first string quarter back, watched the play from the sidelines, and Murrey was in the game but a few moments. Both men are rather light and would lose needed weight in the present heat. Thomson will be unable to play on Saturday, as the twisted ankle which he suffered on Monday is still bothering him. Joe Scheerer is also on the hospital list, with a slight attack of ptomaine poisoning. Hank Garrity has been out for only two days and there is no chance of Roper risking him in the first game.

Gilroy was the star of the scrimmage this afternoon, and Shad Davis played a fine game at end. Gorman ran the team with good judgment and will certainly get a chance part time on Saturday. Wittmer is playing the same type of fooball which gained him his 'Varsity berth last year, and his passing and interference all week have been excellent.

Seventy-five freshmen players reported to Coach Red Gennert for the first day of yearling practice and brought the total number of candidates on the field near the 200 mark. The youngsters were given a light workout, consisting chiefly of starting, handling the ball and catching passes.

The 'Varsity lineup today was: Ends, Davis and Raymond; tackles, Keck and Rutan; guards, Dickinson and Thomas; half backs, Gilroy and Stinson; full back, Wittmer; quarter back, Gorman; centre, Callahan.

FORDHAM HAS HARD DRILL.

The Fordham football team was put through a gruelling workout at Fordham Field yesterday afternoon. The practice lasted for more than two hours, and nearly half the time was spent in scrimmaging. Although the scrub line held well, the 'Varsity eleven succeeded in carrying the ball for three touchdowns.

Coach Dumoe made some changes in his line, and the new combination seemed to work. Moran and Walsh held down the guard positions, while Farrell and Fallon played tackles. Fitzpatrick and Miller remained at the ends. These men probably will start in the opening game against the New York Aggies next Saturday.

The Maroon mentors spent considerable time yesterday drilling their charges in catching and throwing forward passes. The attention which Dumoe and McDonald have been giving to this department of the game recently seems to indicate that they may rely on the aerial route frequently during the season. With the fastest back field that Fordham has had in years, and with four reliable ends in Fitzpatrick, Banks, Miller and Ryan, the Maroon eleven is particularly adapted to this form of attack.

The Aggies are expected to give the Bronx aggregation spirited opposition in Saturday's contest. Most of the Farmers are veterans of last year's team, which held the powerful Rutgers eleven to two touchdowns.

YALE ELEVEN HAS LONG SCRIMMAGE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 29.—Tad Jones put the Yale 'Varsity and second 'Varsity elevens through a hot forty-five minute scrimmage this afternoon, hot as to weather and character. It was one of the stiffest drills of the practice season and resolved itself into a battle of quarter backs. Kempton, generally regarded as the first choice of the coaches, directed the second team today and the 'Varsity was run by Thorne Murphy. Each played brilliantly. Kempton kicked a goal from the thirty-yard line and reeled off several long runs, while the all-around work of Murphy balanced the dash of his rival.

Kernan made the only score for the 'Varsity, carrying the ball over the line after he had fumbled it a moment before on the second team's five-yard line. Aldrich, the flashy 'Varsity half back, was another brilliant performer this afternoon and his end running was a feature of an encouraging day's work.

The 'Varsity lineup was:

Calhoun and Dilworth, ends; Dickens and Mackay, tackles; Acosta and Herr, guards; Callahan, centre; Murphy, quarter back; Aldrich and Kernan, half backs; Webb, full back. Trippe subsequently replaced Herr.

Second Team—Munger and Walker, ends; Into and O'Brien, tackles; Orthwein and Cruikshank, guards; Galvin, centre; Kempton, quarter back; Kelley and Knapp, half backs; Mitchell, full back. Shepard replaced Walker, Beaff replaced Into and Cutler replaced Munger.

COLUMBIA WORK LIGHT.

O'Neill Calls Off Scrimmage for Signal and Formation Drill.

The weather signs that tell of an approaching game appeared on South Field yesterday, when Coach Buck O'Neill substituted blackboard drill for scrimmage and ended up with a snappy practice in signals and formations. The workout had every appearance of a final polishing off for the contest with Trinity. Following the "skull practice" in front of a blackboard at one end of the gridiron, O'Neill lined the 'Varsity across the field and drilled the players in offensive and defensive formations at the kickoff. Long placement kicks were both sent and received, the coach instructing the regulars in their positions and tactics following the kickoff.

Scrimmaging has been definitely abandoned for the week, the last having been that of Monday. The Blue and White will face Trinity with only two days of scrimmage, but O'Neill prefers this to a long list of disabled players. Rather than send any more 'Varsity players, especially backfield men, to the side lines, he will confine the rest of this week's practice to signal drills and instruction in kickoffs and other conditions that will be met in actual battle. The hospital list is gradually being reduced. Several more returned to uniform yesterday, and only Captain Kienninger and Charlie Applebaum of the first string players remain inactive.

Burtt, the former freshman back, who has been gradually forcing his way into the 'Varsity backfield, was on the second eleven yesterday, his place on the first team being taken by Jack Thornton. Present indications are that the backfield, as constituted in yesterday's signal drill, will be the combination to face Trinity. It consisted of Harris, quarter back; Canapary and Thornton, half backs, and Morzczenski, full back. The line was: Pulleyn and Forsythe, ends; Modarelli and Scovil, tackles; Hinch and Walder, guards, and Johnson, centre. There was more snap and punch to the signal drill than at any time this week, and the coaches had little driving to do. The backfield especially was fast.

John Freeman, star quarter back last year of the Goddard Seminary, Vt., enrolled in the freshman class yesterday. Scholastic difficulties will prevent his playing with Carl Merner's yearling team this Fall, but he will be a 'Varsity candidate next season. Freeman is also a second baseman of note and will be one of the new men under Andy Coakley's wing in the Spring.

VIOLET TEAM SHOWS SPEED.

N. Y. U. Eleven Has Fast Backfield —Veteran Quarter Returns.

Coach Gargan of the New York University football team put his charges through a long signal drill yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field. The Violet coach did not give his men the usual daily scrimmage, but devoted all the time to the perfecting of plays and formations.

Two teams were in action in yesterday's session, one under the tutelage of Gargan and the other under Bunny Cochran, the old Fordham end. The two elevens ran up and down the field all afternoon trying out the new formations they had learned on Tuesday in the blackboard talk.

The eleven run by Gargan spent most of the time in perfecting the forward pass formations. Eucles, the new back who reported Monday, was on the receiving end of most of them, handling the ball very well. Captain Weinheimer did most of the throwing. His accuracy was good and he is developing speed in getting his passes off. Eucles also tried his hand at throwing the ball.

Speed was the keynote of the afternoon. Gargan kept the men on the jump all the time and rehearsed them in getting off quickly. This he did especially with the interference, as Eucles is very fast and has a tendency to overrun his interferers. Adams and Bacile, ends, also showed speed.

Ferguson, last year's quarterback, who reported a few days ago, was in charge of the other team. He seems to be rounding into form rapidly. It is probable that he will get a chance at his position on Saturday and may replace Berganon, who has been running the team so far this season.

WORK OF STEVENS GOOD.

The football team at Stevens Tech scrimmaged with the Stevens Prep School team yesterday afternoon. The regular second and third teams are versed in the plays which are to be used next Saturday in the game with the Pennsylvania Military College on the home grounds, so the Prep School team was taken on to practice the new tricks that have been developed.

The coach was pleased with the result of some of the manoeuvres. The 'Varsity team found little opporsition owing to the light weight of the school boys, but the affray gave them the needed experience in shoving over some of the plays.

One of the radical changes the coach has made in the line-up is to place Brune, the old-time tackle, in the backfield. Brune showed up well there and will probably be used as quarterback in the opening game. Bradley, who has had experience at Bucknell, has shown up to the coach's satisfaction and seems sure to get into the secondary defense.

CADETS TRY NEW PLAYS.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, Sept. 29.—It was not an altogether satisfactory showing which the army football men made in the mid-week practice today. Head Coach Daly found much room for criticism in the big team's performance during a session which was meant primarily to polish off some of the new plays given the 'Varsity earlier in the week. The drill lasted for nearly two hours.

Spalding, a half back, who did so well in yesterday's scrimmage, was missing today, having given way to Bennet, a new man. Spalding was injured last evening, but will be back by Saturday. Strohecker alternated with Greene at the pivot position. E. Bersole continues to show promise.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

Fun in the Village.

THREE LIVE GHOSTS, a comedy in three acts, by Frederic Isham, from Mr. Isham's novel of the same name. At the Greenwich Village Theatre.

Mrs. Gubbins	Beryl Mercer
Peggy Woofers	Beatrice Miller
Bolton	Emmett Shackelford
Jimmie Gubbins	Charles McNaughton
William Foster	Percy Helton
Spoofy	Cyril Chadwick
Rose Gordon	Flora Sheffield
Briggs of Scotland Yard	Charles Dalton
Benson	Arthur Metcalfe
Lady Leicester	Mercedes Desmore

Of the somewhat meagre amount of laughter which has been New York's portion in the theatre this season, the new play that arrived last evening at the Greenwich Village Theatre has rather more than its share. This is "Three Live Ghosts," which Frederic S. Isham, probably with considerable assistance from Max Marcin, has contrived from his own story, and to sponsor which Mr. Marcin, previously known only as a playwright, now emerges as a producer.

He has favored this lively and generally farcical comedy with a shrewdly chosen cast and it is easiest to convey something of its quality as entertainment simply by reporting that those in it are able to carry on in quite their best vein. In "Three Live Ghosts" you meet again the dear old lady of "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," this time as a gin-soaked and acquisitive beldame who is that put out when her son returns from the dead and thus threatens her enjoyment of his insurance. You meet again the affable and mildly romantic Bert of "The Better 'Ole," back in civies at last, but not greatly changed for all that.

The play romps away with the problems that devolve upon him when he returns from a German prison camp, accompanied by two pals, of whom one is wanted by Scotland Yard and the other is a shell-shocked zany named Spoofy, with no sense of mine and thine at all. It would all be fairly simple were it not for the fact that his mother—known to the neighbors as "Old Sweetheart"—becomes strangely interested. She's all for having the fugitive righteously turned over to the authorities so that she can claim the reward, and when poor Spoofy comes wandering in with a baby and a lot of casually acquired jewels she can't help wondering what they would get if they were to send him out again.

Out of all this Mr. Isham (or perhaps Mr. Marcin) has extracted considerably more that is genuinely and heartily funny than you might suspect from any mere outline of the proceedings. Even the very skimpy outline sketched above is not quite successful in concealing the fact that "Three Live Ghosts" is a sort of war play, for, after all, there really is a man in its suffering from shell shock, there really are three refugees from a German prison camp and the action does pass in London in 1917.

This is all the more astonishingly bold of Mr. Marcin, because it would have taken no more ingenuity than he is known to possess, and perhaps no more than a day's work to have shifted the time of his play to a more fashionable and less annoying period. It would have been easy because the general scheme of "Three Live Ghosts" is quite independent of the war. However, there it stands, one of those things managers do not produce and the public does not patronize—a play dealing recklessly with a period that authors adroitly indicate by a row of asterisks. Yet here was an audience that perversely found it most enjoyable.

Though the honors and opportunities belong chiefly to Miss Mercer and Mr. McNaughton, both of whom are delightful from beginning to end, the company is further strengthened by such excellent players as Percy Holton, Charles Dalton, Cyril Chadwick and Beatrice Miller.

And it includes a singularly decorative young actress named Flora Sheffield, the sister, they say, of that bouncing Master Reggie Sheffield, who was much in evidence as a stage child some seasons back and who, at the age of 10 looked quite able (and half minded) to knock the theatre down. He has grown up overnight and beamed on the proceedings last evening from the seats of the elders.

ROSA RAISA RETURNS.

Chicago Opera Soprano to Meet Her Father Just Out of Poland.

Mme. Rosa Raisa, soprano, with the Chicago Grand Opera Company, arrived yesterday from Naples on the Italian liner Duca degli Abruzzi and was filled with joy at the thought of meeting here her father whom she has not seen for ten years. The singer was accompanied by her husband and Giacomo Rimini, baritone, in the same company. They have been touring Italy for four months in automobile and spent part of the time with the widow of the late Cleofonte Campanini at Salsa Maggiore.

Mme. Raisa said that her father, brother and sister had just come out of Russian Poland where they had been all through the war since the Summer of 1914 and were often in danger of losing their lives. Before joining the opera company in Chicago the singer will go on a concert tour which commences on Saturday at the annual musical festival in Portland, Me.

Mme. Bernice de Pasquale, a contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, also returned on the Duca degli Abruzzi from a business trip to Italy.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—For the first time a motion picture has been developed into an opera.

This announcement was made today by directors of the Opéra Comique, who said that the American film play "The Cheat," in which Fannie Ward and Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese actor, were starred, had been done in libretto form by Camille Erlanger, the author of "Aphrodite."

"Faust" and "Tales of Hoffman."

"Faust" was the program of the San Carlo singers at the Manhattan last night, with Pillada Senagra replacing Giuseppe Corallo on sudden notice in the title rôle. The best singing of the evening was done by Marguerite Namara in the rôle of Marguerite. It is a rôle which fits her voice, which is fresh, agile and brilliant.

"The Tales of Hoffman" was sung at the matinée with Anna Fitziu in the cast. "La Forza del Destino" will be the bill tonight.

"The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer."

"The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," a comedy by Harry Wagstaff Gribble, will be produced at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre by the Shuberts on Tuesday, Oct. 12. The cast will be headed by Mary Young and will also include Henry E. Dixey, Herbert Standing, Minna Gale Haynes, Eugenie Blair, Raymond Hackett, Mary Collins, Florence Edney and others.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Bessie McCoy has been engaged for the George M. Cohan revue, which already embraces Joe Weber, Sam Bernard, Lew Fields, Marguerita Sylva and Adele Rowland.

"The Dawn of Ireland," by Hugh Stanislaus Stange, will be presented at the Lexington Theatre tonight by Will Morrissey. Larry O'Reilly will have the leading role.

"The Gold Diggers" will enter upon its second year at the Lyceum Theatre tonight. The play opened at the Lyceum on Sept. 30, 1919.

Dallas Welford will be in the cast of "French Leave," in which Mr. and Mrs. Coburn will be seen.

Natalie Manning, a niece of Louis Mann, has been engaged for "Cornered," in which Madge Kennedy is returning to the stage.

A benefit performance will take place at the Selwyn Theatre a week from Sunday night in aid of the League of Foreign-Born Citizens, the proceeds to be used to promote the work of Americanization. On the program will be Frank Tinney, Sam Bernard, Irene Bordoni, Florence Reed, Taylor Holmes and others.

'BROADWAY BREVITIES, 1920.'

The erstwhile junior partner of the firm of Conroy and LeMaire, whose blackface absurdities ceased to figure in vaudeville just a season or two ago, came forth at the Winter Garden last night as the producer of "Broadway Brevities, 1920," a revue hopefully designed—and not without some reason—as the first of an annual series. It is a fast-moving, well-dressed and frequently amusing revue, savoring just a bit more of the mood and manner of the "Follies" than it does of the Winter Garden—a circumstance easily accounted for by the fact that George LeMaire has spent a season or two with Mr. Ziegfeld and that his revue was not originally destined for the Winter Garden.

The principal asset of the entertainment is Eddie Cantor, whose presence, along with that of Bert Williams, helps to heighten the "Follies" illusion. Cantor is rather definitely the life of the party. He appears first in a dental-chiropractic scene somewhat reminiscent of the osteopath scene of last year's "Follies," and provides some rough-and-ready fun of a familiar sort. A little later, in a duologue with LeMaire, he is vastly amusing and a little bit vulgar, and toward the end of the evening he sings two songs in characteristic style. In the course of this final appearance, incidentally, practically an entire Winter Garden full of persons was persuaded to believe that Cantor was performing upon the violin, whereas the real musician was an unprogramed impersonator. The deception was not revealed, so the joke is plainly on some one.

Bert Williams, not quite so well treated as Cantor in the matter of material, nevertheless contrives to be more than amusing upon occasions. LeMaire, the producer, contents himself largely with acting as the background for his two comedians. The rest is largely girls and music. Edith Hallor, in a succession of dazzling costumes, is pictorially highly effective, and a young person named Ula Sharon proved to be a dainty and charming dancer. Her most ambitious number was a pantomime in which Alexis Kosloff figured, but she was at her best a little later as a ballet dancer. None other than Bert Williams, incidentally, was the "author" of the pantomime.

The program credits a long list of persons, including Irving Berlin, who has contributed a number called "Beautiful Faces Need Beautiful Clothes," which is not quite up to Mr. Berlin's standard. But beautiful clothes there are in abundance, most of them on the stage, a few parading up and down the traditional runway. There are several scenes of striking beauty, in particular the marble steps which provide the final pictures. There is here and there an idea in a lyric, and now and then there is a stretch which could stand the censor's pencil.

In all, however, "Broadway Brevities" is an auspicious start toward an annual series.

Go Into Summer Clothing.

One of the leading clothing manufacturers will add Summer clothing to its line for next year, and several important shifts are taking place in departments already handling such goods. These developments are in the direction of lifting Summer clothing standards both as regards tailoring and the materials used. Fabric difficulties have been overcome in large measure, and it now seems possible to put good workmanship into lightweight men's wear materials with satisfactory results.

Will Not Revise Just Yet.

It was learned from a reliable source yesterday that some of the best-known lines of prints and percales in the market would not be revised in price this week in order to meet the condition which will arise when the time limit of the guarantee set on current figures expires tomorrow. The reason advanced was that the market is entirely too unsettled at this time to attempt to revise prices of the goods in question on bases that would be fair to both buyers and sellers. It was intimated, in fact, that no changes would be made for some time.

Gray Goods Were Dull.

Dullness was the keynote of the local market for gray goods yesterday. In the printcloths about the most interesting thing that took place was the selling of 38½-inche 64-60s at 13½ cents for delivery through the last quarter of the year. It was asserted that fair-sized bids might bring out spot goods at the same figure. Among the few sheetings sales put through during the day were 5.50s at 11 cents. Buyers of sateens for quick deliveries of 39-inch 64-104s obtained them as low as 18 cents. Spot Eastern 39-inch 68-76, three-leaf twills sold for 17 cents.

Sale of English Woolens.

The sale of English woolens in this markets appears to be laboring under a double handicap, according to those in touch with the situation. For one thing, prices abroad have not experienced the decline which has occurred in domestic values and, furthermore, a rather general tendency of marking up prices to counteract low exchange does not yield the buying advantage it otherwise might. Some of the leading English houses which are anxious to build up a trade in this country do not add a percentage to their prices to take care of the exchange rate, but others, that are merely after a temporary market, charge a higher export price.

The feature of the crude drug market at the present time, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, is the unusual number of price reductions on foreign botanicals offered for shipment from Hamburg. On domestic productions, including botanicals, the opposite condition prevails. Heavy chemicals are weak in price. In the fine chemical market tight money is a trade-retarding factor which is causing buyers to hold aloof and manufacturers to curtail output. The downward movement in essential oils has apparently been checked, as the declines have narrowed to a few products. The dye market is unsettled, with a tendency to weakness.

While a great deal is heard in the local knit goods trade these days about the possibility of the mills being unable to meet the demands made on them when the jobbers finally decide to place orders for Spring deliveries, a well-known mill representative does not share that view. In his opinion, the mills will have no trouble at all in that respect, for the reason that the combined advance purchases of the wholesale trade will not strain the producing facilities of the manufacturers in the slightest. He asserted that he would be surprised to see any jobber place more than 40 per cent. of a normal Spring business in the near future, and in some cases, he estimated, the advance orders will not exceed 25 per cent. of normal.

Clothing Labor Situation.

Even though the local clothing manufacturers are chiefly interested in seeing a resumption of demand for Fall merchandise, part of their attention is being given to developments in the labor situation. The new labor arrangement which the employers want includes the important demand of a return to the piece work system. It is not the opinion of well informed factors in the trade that this demand will be met. However, the compromise most desired is the inauguration of production standards, so that more efficient manufacturing will result. The manufacturers, in fact, appear to have adopted the union policy of asking for more than they expect to get, in the hope of effecting a favorable compromise.

The Guarantee Asked.

Dry goods buyers had almost bolstered up courage to purchase some of their requirements for next Spring when price cut announcements made to the public once more destroyed what little confidence they had. The market, therefore, continued to be a waiting one, with so many demands of one kind and another that wholesalers find conditions extremely difficult to meet. One representative stated yesterday that many buyers want not only a price guarantee but assurances that the goods bought can be sold and that, once sold, the bills can be collected. "Some buyers," he said, "not only want the wholesaler to hold the price bag but every other bag, including profits, sales and collections."

Never Low Enough.

The manager of a large cotton goods firm was once in charge of a stock and bond house, and he claims the present situation in the dry goods market has many characteristics similar to what shows up in Wall Street under a prolonged bear raid. "When the absolute bottom in stock prices had been reached," he said, "we could call up our customers again and again and urge them to buy, but without results. A few wise traders would make purchases, but the great bulk of buying does not occur until prices have well advanced. In cotton goods today the wisest policy for jobbers to pursue, in my opinion, would be to buy 25 per cent. of their needs. If the market goes still lower they can buy again, and their average price is bound to be lower than that of the man who waits until confidence is fully restored and values have advanced."

Retailers Should Co-operate.

Sentiment among converters and finishers of cotton goods here is strongly against the apparent unwillingness of the retail trade to absorb its share of the loss in passing on to the public the reductions in this merchandise that have been made. Both the converters and the finishers have taken heavy losses in adjusting prices to the downward trend of the unfinished cloths and feel it is only fair that the retailers should do their share in getting trade again into as nearly normal channels as possible. In a statement issued yesterday, following a meeting of a committee from the Converters' Association and one from the Finishers' Association, it was asserted that current cloth prices show reductions of from 40 to 60 per cent. from those ruling last April. It was further pointed out that the finishers had not raised prices since that time, notwithstanding the fact that they are paying advances ranging from 30 per cent. for labor to about 300 per cent. for coal.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The twenty-fourth semi-annual convention of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, beginning on Wednesday, Dec. 8. The program for the convention will be announced in the near future, according to A. F. Allison, Secretary of the association, the membership of which represents thirty-eight States in this country and four provinces in Canada.

A meeting of the local chapter of the National Institute of Credit is to be held at the Arkwright Club, 320 Broadway, on Saturday, at 2:45 P. M. The speakers will be Professor C. W. MILK PRICE ANNOUNCED.

Sheffield and Borden Farms Report No Rise for October.

Formal announcement was made yesterday by both the Sheffield Farms Company and the Borden's Farm Products Company that there would be no increase in the retail price of milk for October, Grade B milk remaining at 18 cents a quart. D. S. Horton, Secretary of the Sheffield Farms Company, blames the Dairymen's League for the inability of the distributers to sell their milk at a lower price, as ordinarily they would do, he said, if the law of supply and demand were allowed to control the situation.

Patrick D. Fox, President of the Borden's Farm Products Company, said last night that, while there was still a minor difference between the distributers and producers, there was no danger of a milk strike. This difference, he explained, hinged on the demand of producers' representatives for an inter-State freight rate schedule instead of the intra-State schedule now prevailing. If the former were adopted, he said, it would cost the distributers more to get milk from nearby points of other States than from distant points of New York State.

PROFITEER IN JAPAN ON OUR SHIPMENTS

OKUMA STARTS AGITATION

Ex-Premier to Rouse the People Against the "Unlawful Attitude of California Americans."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The American Government is in possession "of reliable reports" of Japanese procedure at Kobe amounting to discrimination against American shipments to the Far East, according to a letter from Secretary Alexander to Chairman Benson of the Shipping Board published today in a bulletin of the Far East Commercial Intelligence.

Secretary Alexander's letter was in reply to a communication from Chairman Benson calling to his attention instances of Japanese procedure at Kobe in connection with American shipments to China.

"I wish to acknowledge with thanks receipt of your letter of Sept. 10 referring to instances of Japanese procedure at Kobe in connection with American shipments to the Far East," the Secretary said. "This Department is well aware of this situation, which, according to reliable reports, has existed for some years. The nature of the discrimination is in almost every case so subtle, notwithstanding its effectiveness, that it is almost impossible to take formal action.

"The best solution of the matter seems to be direct transportation of American goods in American ships wherever possible."

In his letter of transmittal to the Bulletin Chairman Benson said: "Of course, the suggestion of the Secretary that American goods be transported in American ships wherever possible receives my hearty indorsement and is the constant aim of the Shipping Board."

Reports have reached the department, Secretary Alexander said today, which tend to show that American shipments to Kobe in Japanese bottoms for transshipment to Chinese ports have been subjected to delays and excessive charges for handling and reshipping, which in some cases amounted to 200 or 300 per cent. more than the freight originally prepaid.

Japanese procedure at Kobe, foreign trade experts of the department explained, has been directed against goods shipped by other countries as well as the United States, in line with an aggressive policy for the development of their trade and shipping.

A second postponement of arguments in proceedings involving the right of the Japanese to become citizens of the United States will be asked of the Supreme Court when it reconvenes Monday, it was announced today by Solicitor General Frierson.

The case at issue resulted from the denial of citizenship in Hawaii to Takao Ozawa, a Japanese, and was filed in the Supreme Court in 1917. Arguments were deferred last term at the request of the Government for diplomatic reasons.

The Solicitor General said the second postponement would be at the request of George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General, and counsel for Ozawa.

TOKIO, Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—According to the Asahi, Marquis Shigenobu Okuma, former Premier, has decided to devote himself to awakening the Japanese people against "the unlawful attitude of California Americans." To further his purpose, the newspaper says, Marquis Okuma will call a meeting of 100 prominent statesmen, politicians, diplomats, scholars, business men and publicists at his residence to exchange views on the subject.

The newspaper says Waseda University, of which Marquis Okuma was the founder and is President, will start a campaign against the anti-Japanese agitation in America with the object of arousing public opinion. The Asahi quotes Marquis Okuma as condemning the indifference of the people to grave questions affecting the nation's interests and saying they are becoming like the Chinese—weak and cowardly. "The will of the majority of the Japanese people must be known," the Marquis declared, according to the newspaper.

Marquis Okuma continued, the Asahi says, by saying that if the California question were not remedied it would lead to a similar state of affairs in Australia, Canada, New Zealand and other British dominions.

The newspaper asserted Marquis Okuma thought the approaching world Sunday school convention in Tokio offered a fine opportunity, because it will be attended by many Americans advocating justice and humanity. They must be impressed, according to the Marquis, with the "unreasonable and unjust attitude of the Californians." Simultaneously, the Marquis declared, a strong unified national opinion must defend the interests of the Japanese in California.

GERMAN ENVOY RECEIVED.

French Recognition of Mayer Restores Pre-War Diplomatic Relations

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Wilhelm Mayer von Kaufbeuren, German Ambassador to France, today presented his credentials to President Millerand at the Elysée Palace, thus restoring the diplomatic relations of France and Germany to the pre-war basis.

In handing his credentials to the President the Ambassador declared that he would continue to devote his efforts to the favorable development of the relations between the two countries, working along the lines of the Treaty of Versailles, and he expressed his confidence that the French Government would aid him in surmounting the difficulties encountered.

The German Ambassador said in addressing the President:

"I do not ignore the difficulties which will be encountered, but I have confidence that, thanks to the great assistance and enlightened co-operation of the Government of the French Republic, the efforts of my Government will be crowned with success."

President Millerand replied:

"The entire policy of the French Government toward Germany is inspired by only one thought. Loyal execution of the solemn compact which put an end to the war is the sole means of solving practically the grave difficulties that still exist between the two countries and which do not yet permit their full collaboration in the great work of peace."

President Millerand, after accepting the credentials of the new Ambassador, received the entire Diplomatic Corps, including Hught C. Wallace, the American Ambassador.

LEGION OPPOSES JAPAN'S DEMANDS

NO STAND ON POLITICS

Movement to Change the Constitution Fails — More Americanization Work Planned.

GALBRAITH CHOSEN TO LEAD

Ohio Man Defeats Two Competitors for Commander—Convention Comes to an End.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29.—J. W. Galbraith, Jr., of Cincinnati was unanimously elected National Commander of the American Legion here today at the closing session of its second annual convention. Galbraith received the majority necessary for choice on the second ballot, his closest opponents being Hanford McNider of Iowa and J. F. U. Herbert of Massachusetts. Upon motion of McNider, seconded by Herbert, the election of Galbraith then was declared unanimous.

Passing of a resolution which puts the American Legion on record as being in favor of the rigorous exclusion of Japanese as immigrants, cancellation of the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan, the exclusion of "picture brides" and the decision of the convention to continue its policy of "strict neutrality" in regard to political questions were the predominating questions acted upon.

The Japanese question came up in the morning session when the Committee on Americanization presented its report. This report stated:

"Be it resolved, That we go on record as being in favor of the cancellation of the so-called 'gentlemen's agreement' with Japan, exclusion of 'picture brides' and rigorous exclusion of Japanese as immigrants.

"And that we enter vigorous protest against the demand of Japan that naturalization rights be granted to its nationals now located in the United States, and that we earnestly request the State Department of the United States in its settlement of this question not to consider any proposition which will grant rights of naturalization to this unassimilable people."

The resolution was adopted as read, but it created the stormiest debate of the session, it being necessary for the Sergeant at Arms and his assistants to quell the delegates several times.

For Further Action on Japanese.

It was explained by Leonard Withington of Hawaii, Chairman of the committee, that this report was only a reiteration of the action of the 1919 convention for "the abrogation of the so-called gentlemen's agreement, the exclusion of picture brides and the exclusion of all Japanese," but that the question of a constitutional amendment which might strip citizenship from persons of Oriental descent already citizens or prospective citizens on account of American birth, with all other phases of the problem, should go to a committee which would report to the 1921 convention. The strongest opposition came from New York, and it was not until a motion for a vote was called for that debate was shut off.

On recommendation of the Americanization Committee the convention voted that the National Americanism Commission be adequately financed, that its activities be concentrated on nation-wide educational, Americanization and pro-American work and propaganda, adequately financed, and that its office be moved from New York to Legion headquarters at Indianapolis.

Political Neutrality Retained.

The fight during the afternoon came on the question of political restriction. When the Committee on Constitutional Amendments made its report it suggested a few amendments to certain articles of the Constitution, the principal one being that "no person shall be eligible for re-election to the office of National Commander or National Vice Commander." It did not mention politics.

The minority report merely recommended that "the report of the majority be defeated."

The debate which followed was almost as stormy as that which followed the presentation of the Japanese question. A motion for a roll call was finally made, and the vote stood 963 voting against the majority report; 142 voting for it, 3 not voting. As the matter now stands, the Legion will pursue its past attitude in regard to political restrictions—"strict neutrality."

The following Vice Commanders were elected:

John G. Emory, Grand Rapids, Mich.; E. J. Winslett, Sabeville, Ala.; Thomas J. Goldingay, Newark, N. J.; C. G. Pendill, Kenosha, Wis., and J. G. Scrougham, Reno, Nev.

PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR SMITH.

Plans for an active campaign for the re-election of Governor Smith under the auspices of the Young Democratic Club were discussed at a luncheon yesterday at the Bankers' Club. It was decided to open headquarters at the Hotel McAlpin and begin active work at once.

Among those at the luncheon were Morgan J. O'Brien, Robert Adamson, George McAneny, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., William H. Edwards, Cleveland E. Dodge, Mark Eisner, Justice Frederic Kernochan, William Lewis Butcher and Jonah Goldstein. Mr. Goldstein, who presided, called attention to the appointments made by Governor Smith as a guarantee that he was worthy of the support of independent as well as organization Democrats.

The Citizens' Committee for Alfred E. Smith, which has opened headquarters at the Biltmore began yesterday the organization of a speakers' bureau for women. The committee wants volunteer speakers, who will be enrolled at the Biltmore headquarters daily, with a meeting of the speaker recruits at 2:30 on Monday afternoon.

Because of the large volume of advertising offered The Times, necessitating the omission daily of many columns of announcements, The Times accepts advertisements exceeding four columns (one-half page) in space for insertion only in Saturday, Sunday or Monday editions. Today 68 columns of advertisements are omitted.

Women to Have Preference As Immigration Inspectors

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Women will be admitted on equal terms with men hereafter to Inspectorships under the Immigration Bureau to deal with subjects peculiarly affecting women and children, according to the reorganization policy announced today by the Labor Department.

A woman's section of the bureau will be established under Dr. Katherine M. Herring, special Immigrant Inspector, and a civil service examination, in which preference will be given to women for appointment as Inspectors, will be held.

PRESENTS AN AMERICAN HOSPITAL TO ITALY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Walton H. Marshall, New York, member of the American Free Milk and Relief for Italy Committee, who has been working indefatigably to collect money and food for poor Italian children, is now in Rome. The municipality, wishing to express its gratitude for the benefits received, delegated Senator Adolloni, Mayor of Rome, to decorate Mrs. Marshall with the medal of Public Assistance.

The ceremony took place today in the historic Palazzo Chigi, formerly the Austrian Embassy to the Quirinal, now the Ministry of the Colonies, in the presence of many political, diplomatic and social notabilities. Among those present were Commendatore Corrandini, a member of the Giolitti Ministry; Senator Ciraolo, President of the Italian Red Cross; Senator Apolloni and Prince Colonna.

The Mayor in a moving speech thanked Mrs. Marshall and all the American men and women who had contributed either with funds or personal service in relieving suffering in Italy.

Mrs. John Adams Drake, who has returned to Italy to visit the dispensaries she founded last Fall for the Free Milk and Relief for Italy Committee, responded in Italian, saying:

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I find myself again in my second mother country, Italy. Once one has looked into the heart of this beautiful, brave country one cannot help loving, admiring and, if possible, helping her. I have come in the name of the Committee on the American Tribute to Italy to offer you a beautiful hospital for Italian children in token of American appreciation and recognition of the bravery of your soldiers, who unflinchingly died on the snow-capped Alps and on the pitiless rocks of the Carso; of the patience of the civil population, who suffered cold and privations, and of the great part Italy took in the World War."

Mrs. Drake's words were received with enthusiastic applause and cries of "Viva America!"

Signora Chiaraviglio, daughter of Premier Giolitti, said:

"Although all Italians are deeply touched by and greatly appreciate America's generous gift, it seems egotistic that in a country like ours, full of sunshine, with a climate so adapted for restoring health, a hospital should be exclusively dedicated to Italian children. I suggest, therefore, that it be international."

It had been proposed to call the institution "The Christopher Columbus Hospital, America's Tribute to Italy," but after Signora Chiaraviglio's observation it was decided to name it "The International Child Welfare at Rome."

The committee on America's Tribute to Italy, of which Chester H. Aldrich is President and which has as Vice Presidents Alton B. Parker, Theodore Roosevelt and Mrs. Drake, consists of Americans who wish to collect sufficient money to present to Italy a gift to express America's cordial sentiments and cement the friendship between Italy and the United States.

Mrs. Drake and Mrs. Marshall started this evening for Northern Italy to visit the dispensaries founded by the Free Milk and Relief for Italy Committee.

GREAT WIRELESS PLANT OPENED BY GERMANS

NAUEN, Germany, Sept. 29 (By Wireless to The Associated Press).—The completed wireless sending station here, the largest in the world, was officially dedicated today in the presence of an invited company, including Ellis Loring Dresel, the United States Commissioner to Berlin. Other members of the American mission also were present, as were representatives of a number of other countries, American and English newspaper men and German officials and scientists.

President Ebert, who spoke at the function, after congratulating the German makers of the plant on their skill and ingenuity, sent broadcast a message opening the new service.

The towers and antennae which serve America, just completed, have a sending radius of 12,000 miles and a capacity of seventy-five words a minute.

The presence of Mr. Dresel attracted much attention and he was continually being photographed by Germans while he was making his tour of the plant.

The foregoing message, describing the inauguration of the new wireless service from Germany, was sent from Nauen direct by the new wireless system.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 29.—Wireless communication between this city and Nauen, Germany, was inaugurated today with the transmission of a message from Nauen saluting President Irigoyen. The station here is operated by the Compañia Radiotelegrafica Argentina and is controlled by German capital.

NO CANADIAN MINISTER NOW.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The appointment of a special Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States is understood to have been indefinitely postponed. Canada's interests in this country thus will be left in the hands of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, who because of his long residence in that British Commonwealth, is regarded by Canadians as having full personal knowledge of the aims and needs of their country.

Steps looking to the appointment of a Canadian Minister were first taken some months ago, the Canadians feeling that because of the urgency of rebuilding the trade and economic relations between the Dominion and the United States there was pressing need for direct diplomatic representation in Washington. The project progressed with the sanction of the British Government to a point where the Canadian Parliament actually made the appropriations for the maintenance of such an establishment in Washington.

It is understood now, however, that as one result of the recent visit to Canada of Sir Auckland Geddes, the plan of establishing a special Canadian Minister in Washington has been suspended.

An element which has been considered in connection with direct Canadian representation in Washington is that Australia, South Africa and other British colonies and dominions might desire similar representation. In fact, there was a movement in some of the colonies for such representation and the British Foreign Office was said to have taken the view that inefficiency might result from having several colonial ministers in the United States.

CHARGE PLOT CAUSED BOSTON BANK CRASH

THREAT OF PUBLIC EXPOSE

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 29.—Supplementing a charge by officials of two trust companies that a "plot to wreck them" was being carried out, came a statement today by Simon Swig, Vice President of the Tremont Trust Company, that a State Bank Examiner took part in a deliberate scheme to wreck his bank last Winter. It was charged that "big interests" were behind the effort to wreck their institutions.

The other official, who joins Mr. Swig in the assertions, is connected with the Fidelity Trust Company, whose doors were closed on Tuesday by order of Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen, the sixth banking institution to be closed recently in this City. At present the Tremont Trust Company has in effect a ninety day moratorium on payments to all depositors of its savings department. The Dorchester Trust Company is another bank that has this suspension in effect.

Swig had a fainting spell in the course of his interview with Bank Commissioner Allen at the latter's office and a doctor was summoned. Following this interview Swig asserted the existence of "one of the biggest bank plots in the country" and declared that he would "expose" the plot and its originators at a mass meeting which he plans to call some evening next week.

Says Rivalry Inspired Plot.

According to Swig his "exposé" will "rock financial foundations." He said:

"Within a few days when the situation clears up I shall hire Mechanics Hall to expose one of the greatest plots ever known in this country. This plot is responsible for the financial situation that has developed in this city. Ponzi had nothing to do with bringing about this situation. It is a case of business rivalry, a case of the lion eating up the lamb; it is deliberate murder.

"Last year, when the interests were against me, an Examiner tried by all means in his power to drive me to the wall. One of the Examiners has since been rewarded by a good position in one of the savings banks. He said my capital had been impaired. I challenge him to prove it."

"Powerful Interests" Accused.

Fidelity Trust Company officials declared that the run on their bank was instigated by "certain powerful interests" which conspired to drive the bank out of business. This statement from the bank was made today:

"Monday before opening we deposited $1,200,000 in gilt-edged securities to meet our clearances for the day. In less than twelve hours we were ordered to close our bank. There was a substantial balance from our clearings, and our officers pledged their personal fortunes to guarantee whatever other sums might be needed to meet our clearances for the next day, but we were denied permission to reopen. It was late at night, so that we were unable to meet the situation as we could have met it had we had notice earlier in the day that additional funds were required.

"The run was started as a result of a deliberate attempt to injure the bank. That is what our enemies did to us. The whole thing was a deliberate attempt to wreck the bank, which is absolutely sound. The law should give us redress against such criminals."

Late today the Bank Commissioner issued a statement in which he said that there were no more bank closings in sight. He added that the Tremont Trust Company (Mr. Swig's bank) was "all right."

Thomas P. Beal, President of the Second National Bank, one of the largest in the city, who is also Chairman of the Clearing House Committee, summed up the situation thus:

Edwin T. McKnight, President of the Massachusetts Senate, who has had extensive banking interests in the State, today announced that he had severed his connection with all banks except the Fidelity Trust Company and the Medford Trust Company. He gave no reason for his course.

Ponzi Gave Big Commissions.

BOSTON, Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—Commissions that may have aggregated $100,000 and possibly more, were paid by Charles Ponzi to John S. Dondero for bringing customers to his Securities Exchange Company, Ponzi testified today at a hearing in the Federal Court, the object of which is to determine whether Dondero and Guglielmo Berthelotti of Parma, Italy, were partners with Ponzi.

Dondero was an agent only, according to Ponzi, and Berthelotti only a name, the man who bore it having been dead five years. Counsel for creditors who contend that Dondero and Berthelotti were partners equally liable with Ponzi for the millions of indebtedness standing against the Securities Exchange Company announced that they had information that Berthelotti was alive.

Ponzi testified that when he started his quick-rich scheme he had assets of only $1,000, partly "furniture and fixtures." He said he had never sent a representative abroad, but declined, on the ground that it might tend to incriminate him, to say whether he ever had a representative abroad.

When applications were filed yesterday for permission to sell property at 188th Street, near Fifth Avenue, and at 330 Convent Avenue, belonging to the James Stokes Society, Inc., it was revealed that the late James Stokes of Ridgefield, Conn., had founded a philanthropy for the benefit of "young men in Russia and elsewhere," an institution closely affiliated with the European Committee of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Stokes died at Ridgefield in October, 1918.

When his will was filed there for probate Oct. 28, 1918, the residuary estate was bequeathed to the James Stokes Society, an organization to be formed to carry out the philanthropy. According to the petition, signed by John C. Clark, as President of the corporation, the personal assets of the organization amount to more than $1,000,000, and its real estate, apart from the two parcels which it is proposed to sell for a total of $61,000, is worth $175,000.

"Mr. Stokes founded the Y. M. C. A. in Paris and in Rome, and contributed largely to the support of each," said Mr. Clark yesterday, "and under the old Russian régime supported the 'Miyak' or 'Lighthouse' in Petrograd, which had 3,600 members, and conducted classes for 3,000 Russian young men."

500 Soldiers Back from Germany.

Nearly 500 American soldiers who have been on duty with the Army of Occupation in Germany returned yesterday on the U. S. Army Transport Antigone. The transport also brought back the bodies of 700 American soldiers who had died in France and Flanders.

Two Naval Officers Cling to Balloon Rigging For Thirteen Hours in Air After Losing Basket

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Clinging for more than thirteen hours to the rigging of a navy racing balloon, Lieutenant Raffe Emerson and his aid, Lieutenant Frank Sloman, contestants in the national balloon race which started from North Birmingham, Ala., on Sept. 25, landed on the southwest shore of Lake Erie the morning of Sept. 27, placing their balloon third in the race.

Rear Admiral Coontz, Acting Secretary of the Navy, in making this announcement tonight said that this landing ended, undoubtedly, the most thrilling flight ever undertaken by navy pilots in a free balloon. Both Lieutenants are members of the United States Naval Reserve Force.

"After leaving Birmingham at 5:49 P. M.," Admiral Coontz said in an authorized statement tonight, "in 6 hours and 20 minutes the balloon crossed the Mississippi boundary and at 6 o'clock on the morning of the 26th the balloon crossed the Kentucky boundary. At 11 o'clock in the forenoon the balloon landed to escape approaching thunderstorms. At this time the army balloon in charge of Leo Stevens was forced out of the race.

"At 1:30 another landing was made at Hartford, Ky., and at 5:15 another landing was made in Spruce County, Indiana. At this place the pilot's basket was cut away and abandoned, due to loss of gas during movements around and through thunderstorms and high storm areas. From this point on the pilots clung to the rigging above the concentration ring. At 12 midnight of the 27th the balloon passed over the centre of Indianapolis, Ind., and at 3:30 A. M. crossed the Ohio border.

"Approaching Sandusky Bay at 6:40 large rainstorms, accompanied by lightning, overtook the balloon, the wind coming from the southwest and west, and extending northward and northeastward of the balloon's drifting course. The tremendous area of this storm cut off the approach to the Canadian coast, also forcing the balloon to traverse Lake Erie lengthwise, and with insufficient ballast to compensate for rain driving down and weighting the balloon, Lieutenant Emerson decided to land. This was done by ripping the balloon in the air and, the landing was made at 6:50 without injury to the balloon or remaining equipment.

"The landing was made in a hay field three miles east of Graytown, Ohio, after having made 590 statute miles from North Birmingham. Duration of flight was 37 hours 1 minute. Maximum altitude, first night, 6,200 feet; second night, 6,900 feet; last day, 3,600 feet. The average speed in a straight line was 14 knots, and over the entire course 19 knots. Maximum observed speed, 40 knots.

"The balloon was shipped to Akron, Ohio, for overhauling. Lieutenant Emerson was an experienced balloonist before his entry into naval aviation and has been with the naval air service since 1917. He served abroad with the British forces in the North Sea and on Rear Admiral Sims's staff until the armistice, then on technical matters connected with airships until his return to the United States in the Summer of 1919."

GOVERNOR WARNS CONVICTS OF FRAUD

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Governor Smith today warned prisoners in the various penal institutions of the State that it will be useless for them to attempt to get pardons and commutations of sentences through the aid of persons claiming to have influence with the Governor. In his letter directing Superintendent Charles F. Rattigan to post a notice to this effect, the Governor states:

"No doubt you have read the account in the newspapers of the indictment of two men in the County of New York for the crime of grand larceny in taking money from persons who are interested in the release of a person in confinement in one of the prisons of the State. It is alleged that this money was obtained from the relatives of the prisoner on the plea of the indicted men that they could influence the Governor to sign the commutation of sentence.

"In order to guard as far as we possibly can against similar actions in the future, I hereby direct that the following bulletin be placed in a conspicuous position throughout the prisons of the State where the inmates may have ready access to it."

"The inmates of this institution are hereby warned to avoid dealings with any person or persons, attorneys or otherwise, who pretend to be in a position to get them any favor at the hands of the Executive. Commutations of sentence will be issued upon the merits of each particular case and for no other reason. This warning should be conveyed to relatives who may be approached by persons for this purpose."

NAME LAZARUS IN PLOT.

With police circulars distributed broadcast through the city, scores of detectives last night were searching for Dr. Bernard Lazarus, the previously unnamed defendant who was indicted jointly with Maurice I. Rosenberg, insurance broker at 154 Nassau Street, for obtaining $5,000 from Louis Smith and Mrs. Rebecca Smith to obtain a pardon for Jacob Smith, serving time in Auburn for arson, the charge growing out of Governor Smith's exposé of a pardon plot.

Last night District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Kings County, who had been quoted as asserting that a well-organized pardon clique was at work in this city, repudiated the statements credited to him. Mr. Lewis declared that he had no knowledge of such a "ring."

Rosenberg, who was arrested at his office shortly after the Grand Jury had returned its indictment on Tuesday, was arraigned in the General Sessions. He was released in $10,000 bail. In a statement to reporters outside the courtroom his attorney, Isidore Faitt, said Rosenberg was retained by Stenberg to assist him in getting Smith's pardon. Stenberg was attorney for the convict. He declared the indictment was found simply to satisfy a grudge.

HONOR SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—A number of intimate friends tonight gave a dinner in honor of Sir Thomas Lipton on his return from his unsuccessful attempt in the United States to win the America's Cup. The guests included Lord Dewar, Baron Leverhulme, Baron Inverforth and Sir John Ferguson.

Lord Dewar in a speech said the largest hall in London could have been filled with well wishers of Sir Thomas, but that at the request of Sir Thomas only intimate friends were invited.

The burden of the speeches was that although Sir Thomas had failed to win the cup he had won the hearts of all Americans.

BUS THIEF SEIZES $18,000 IN JEWELRY

Fifth Avenue, noon, and a crowded Fifth Avenue bus was the setting chosen yesterday by a daring "sneak" thief, who picked up a gem case containing $18,000 in jewelers' gold samples and coolly walked off, leaving $32,000 worth of other samples behind him.

Early yesterday morning George B. Kelly, a jewelry salesman for Eckfeldt & Ackley, wholesale gem dealers and manufacturers at 98 Murray Street, Newark, started over to Manhattan to sell the trade. In two leather cases, display boxes, about two feet long and ten inches wide, he carried $50,000 worth of gold novelties. The cases were in the custody of Oliver Wood, who is 36, a negro, and the Eckfeldt & Ackley combination porter-guard.

The first customer to be called on was Tiffany. Kelly and the casebearer reached the jewelry establishment, at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, shortly before noon. The salesman transacted some business inside, and when he came out he handed the sample boxes over to Wood. The porter was told that Kelly had another customer to see, and that in the meantime he might as well take the display boxes to E. M. Gattle's jewelry store, at Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street.

Wood, with the $50,000 boxes firmly gripped, climbed aboard a Fifth Avenue bus. He went his way up the winding stairway, but discovered that the noon-hour riders were already monopolizing all the deck seats. Retracing his steps, the porter came down the stairway and went into the inside of the bus, where there were several vacant seats.

For some reason Wood failed to carry his precious charge to the seat he took. According to the story he later told the police, he put the boxes down back of the last seat in the bus, but where he could keep an eye on them. Now and then during the ride up Fifth Avenue Wood glanced over to see whether the boxes were still there. The last time he looked and saw them was at Forty-seventh Street.

At Fiftieth Street, in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral, he signaled for a stop and went after his display boxes. One box was gone, and the conductor and the passengers did not remember seeing anybody get off with a small black leather case. The other case, containing $32,000 worth of samples, was still there.

Frightened, Wood waited at the corner until Kelly arrived in another bus. The porter told his story of the disappearance of the gems and together the men hurried to the East Fifty-first Street station. Detective-Sergeant Barron and several men were assigned to find the thief and last night additional men were sent out to aid them in their search.

According to Kelly, the box stolen contained fifty chatelaine bags, 125 gold octagon vanity boxes, eighty-seven gold octagon mirrors and seventy-five gold lockets, the latter encrusted with small diamonds. The box which the thief overlooked contained similar trinkets.

HUGHES ANSWERS WILSON ON IRELAND

CALLS IT APPEAL FOR VOTES

"The Statement Can Hardly Outlast the Moment of Its Utterance," Ex-Justice Says.

The Union League Club gave a reception last night to ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for Governor. Charles E. Hughes, former President of the club, presided and introduced Mr. Miller, who devoted most of his speech to answering a letter he had received from Mayor Hylan, who accused him of having appeared before the Legislature last year as counsel for traction interests to advocate higher fares in New York City. Mr. Hughes devoted practically his entire speech to an attack upon President Wilson and the League of Nations.

Answering President Wilson's letter regarding Article XI. of the League Covenant issued from the White House on Tuesday, Mr. Hughes quoted from a statement by former President Taft to the effect that under Article XI. Great Britain would not grant independence to Ireland on the principle of self-determination nor would any other member of the League consent to such an interpretation. After accusing the Democrats of attempting to evade the issue in regard to the treaty and the covenant and declaring that Elihu Root was responsible for "whatever gain there has been in the recent endeavor to establish institutions looking to international law," Mr. Hughes said:

"There are signs of distress in the ranks of our opponents and particularly in the high command. Interpretations are coming from the White House. The one we are just reading apparently is directed to the Irish vote. While explaining that Article X. relating to external aggression wouldn't cover the case of Ireland, attention is then swiftly directed to Article XI. as apparently the hope of the Irish people."

Interprets Article XI.

Mr. Hughes then gave this interpretation of Article XI.:

"Article XI. provides in substance that the League may concern itself with matters which may affect the peace of the world. I should like our friends in the other party, who are so intent upon a statement of all that the Covenant contains, to address some of their reproaches to their most distinguished leader. When the President says in substance that the matter of self-determination of Ireland may be brought up before the League under Article XI. of the Covenant, I commend his attention to a recent statement by Mr. Taft, as follows:

"'Mr. Cox says when he is elected, and we enter the League, he will press a resolution in the League that Great Britain be compelled to grant Ireland independence, on the principle of self-determination. Of course, he will do nothing of the sort. He will find that no other member of the League will for a moment countenance the idea that the League has any jurisdiction of such a matter.'

"But, apart from this, it must be pointed out, that if the matter does come before the League, then by the terms of the covenant unanimous action would be required. And we cannot understand how even the prophetic vision of the White House can embrace a conception of Great Britain consenting to such action by the League.

"It will be noted that the disputes which are referable to the League, and with which the League may deal under other articles and upon which the parties to the dispute may not vote, are disputes between members of the League or between a member of the League and a State, of course meaning a State in international law. As Ireland does not come within this description, of course the matter would not fall within the disputes referable to the League and upon which action could be taken without the vote of the interested party. If the League can be imagined as taking up the matter under Article XI. the principle of unanimity would control.

Says Wilson Ignores Facts.

"What, then, could be the object of attempting to bring the cause of Ireland before the League when such an eminent friend of the League as Mr. Taft says it would be an attempt which no member of the League would countenance for a moment, and when it is apparent that the attempt would be abortive? The statement from the White House does not refer to these pertinent considerations based upon other articles of the covenant and as an appeal for votes it can hardly outlast in effect the moment of its utterance."

Mr. Hughes said there was extreme dissatisfaction on the part of the people with the conduct of the national Administration, and that the dissatisfaction existed both as regards domestic and foreign affairs. He said the people objected to the autocratic spirit which has permeated the various departments of the Government and to the retention of war powers after the war had ended, as well as to extravagance in expenditures.

"So far as the Democratic candidacy suggests any new leadership," said Mr. Hughes, "the manifestation of its quality has not won the confidence of the people. The American people want steadiness, a deep sense of responsibility, absolute sincerity of purpose, and they know too well the essential requirements of these times to sanction unbridled and demagogical utterances which can have no effect but to inflame passion, confuse understanding and make difficult, if not impossible, a sober consideration of grievances and a rational progress."

Taking up the matter of foreign relations, Mr. Hughes said the President could have had an international association or league but he was not content with this. The Republicans, he said, did not make the League the issue, but the Administration made it.

Miller Replies to Hylan.

Ex-Judge Miller said it was time for the lavish expenditure of public money to cease. The Government, he said, is in the hands of men whose interest it is to spend and not to save and having contracted the habit of spending they cannot get over it.

"There is only one way of curing them of that habit," said Mr. Miller, "and that is to kick them out of office. I ask Governor Smith whether he defends this lavish waste of public funds."

Referring to Mayor Hylan's letter which criticised Mr. Miller for declaring in one of his speeches that the responsibility for the traction situation lay between the Public Service Commission and the City Hall, Mr. Miller said he had not meant the Mayor particularly, but the Board of Estimate.

"Now, the Mayor says that I appeared before a Legislative Committee and advocated increased fares," said Mr. Miller. "He says that I did that last Winter as the attorney of the traction interests. Well, the Mayor has been misinformed on that subject. I did not last Winter, but two years ago, appear before a legislative committee in company with Judge Hughes, not as counsel of the traction companies. Judge Hughes appeared on behalf of the insurance companies, and I appeared on behalf of my friend Arthur Losby, who was President of the State Bankers' Association and at that time President of a bank in Syracuse, in whose building I had my office. I don't know whether Judge Hughes got any retainer or not, but I didn't."

United States Senator William M. Calder also spoke.

White House Lawns Lose Sheep; President Sends Herd to Owner

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The last of the White House herd of sheep were rounded up today preparatory to shipment back to the farm where they were born.

Some had been disposed of, but the bulk of the flock, by President Wilson's orders, was returned to William Woodward of Belair, Md., who sent the sheep to the White House during war days when the lawns needed trimming and wool was in demand.

DRIVE PEASANTS FROM KING'S LAND

AMERICAN FIRMS ANXIOUS

Said to Prefer Abandoning Their Italian Plants to Yielding to Workmen's "Control."

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Members of local agricultural societies which occupied property owned by King Victor Emmanuel of Italy near Naples have been driven out by troops. Several peasants were wounded in the fighting incident to their eviction, says a Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

ROME, Sept. 28.—Two thousand peasants took part in the seizure of royal estates near Naples, according to advices received here. They were members of an agricultural co-operative society in the town of Santa Maria, and as they marched toward the King's property they carried shotguns and sang the "Workmen's Hymn." The property seized was called the "Cardiello" and was one of the largest belonging to the royal house.

Several American firms having plants in Italy have become alarmed over the situation here, and it is declared that they would prefer quitting business to having their property seized by workmen. A large amount of capital has been invested in these plants. Their alarm is largely due, it is said, to a misunderstanding of the Italian word "controllo," which, wrongly translated, has been taken to mean "control." Its real significance is, however, that the men would be allowed to take part in the technical, financial and disciplinary management of factories.

American firms have declared that they have not wished to pass judgment upon the principle of neutrality followed by the Italian Government in dealing with the industrial situation, but they have expressed the hope that the American Government would not adopt the same course when protection of the property of its own citizens abroad was involved.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Sept. 29.—As the sequel to further savage fighting inside the great Pirelli Rubber and Electrotechnic Works here, the establishment has been closed and placed under military occupation. The Pirelli firm, which employs some 10,000 workpeople, has been quite free from strike trouble for ten years, and only yesterday paid its men fifty francs per head beyond the wages mutually agreed upon for the term of occupation.

The anarchist element, however, brutally attacked the engineers and office staff on returning to the posts they had forsaken on the outbreak of the obstructionist agitation. Three of them were removed to a hospital, having been badly beaten with clubs and bars.

The Labor Committee has severly censured the rioters, but the firm declines to reopen its works until the maintenance of order has been guaranteed.

Many staple industries have got back their business headquarters by private treaty with the employes, but from most of the factories, including those of the iron and steel industry at Padua, Brescia and Bologna, the workmen firmly refuse to budge until they have been paid for the occupation period. They threaten to destroy the work on which they have been engaged if their demands are not met.

Signor Labriola, Minister of Labor, made a spirited defense yesterday before the Italian Senate of the Government's attitude toward the present industrial conflict, in the course of which he said:

"The labor movement in Italy has grown to such an extent as to be no longer capable of repression. A politician's duty is to interest himself in the matter and act in such a way as to avert its taking an anti-State trend, which would plunge our civilization into anarchy. At this difficult moment we ought not to occupy ourselves with the old feuds between socialism and individualism, but rather seek to ride out the storm and steer civilization into the safe haven of social transformation."

Premier Giolitti declared that the revolt of the working class had been largely stimulated by the sad and impudent spectacle of ill-gotten wealth, both during and after the war. The occupation of the factories, he affirmed, was simply a contravention, not a crime, yet manufacturers who had brought trouble upon themselves by proclaiming a general lockout in flagrant disobedience to his advice had sought afterward to compel him to take measures against the workers, which would have been tantamount to a veritable sentence of death.

He said the reorganization of industry on the principle of workmen's control of the technical, financial and managing departments would be completed in the extension of the same principle to agriculture. The underlying reasons that had provoked the peasantry into the almost universal seizure of tillable lands, he said, made this reform imperative.

After a day of banqueting and dancing inside the factories to which the workmen invited their kinsfolk and acquaintances, most of the metallurgical establishments are now deserted, and the employes have gone away for a week's holiday. The chief exceptions are Naples, Leghorn, Brescia and Turin, where the men refuse to quit till they have been paid for the occupation period. They make this demand under threat of destroying the work on which they have been engaged.

DRASTIC 'DRY' POLICY PLEDGED BY MILLER

WANTS STRICT STATE LAW

BLAMES FEDERAL OFFICERS

Speaking before a group of Republican County Chairmen from the eastern part of the State at the National Republican Club yesterday afternoon, ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller of the Court of Appeals, Republican nominee for Governor, declared that if elected he would favor the enactment of State legislation, in conformance with the Volstead act, for the enforcement of prohibition. He charged officials now intrusted with the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment with connivance in "flagrant and open violations of the law."

The statements were made in reply to a question from one of those who attended the conference. The County Chairmen had been invited to meet the Republican nominee for Governor and to discuss with him different phases of the State campaign now in progress.

"What position will you take with regard to State enforcement?" was the question asked.

Mr. Miller apparently had expected the query and came prepared to answer it, for he produced from his pocket a letter he received on Sept. 24 from a Binghamton member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the answer he sent her the same day, and read both. Then he went on:

"The flagrant and open violations of the law now going on and which could not possibly occur without the connivance of the officials charged with law enforcement must be stopped. The Eighteenth Amendment has been adopted in the manner provided by the Constitution and the Republican Party must stand, as it has always stood, for the enforcement of the will of the people when expressed in accordance with the Constitution.

"The present violations of law show the necessity of a State enforcement act. This is peculiarly the sort of a law that can be enforced effectively only by local peace officers. I have thought it was unfortunate to have two laws on the same subject enforced by two different courts in the same territorial jurisdiction, but above all else I deprecate the breaking down of State power by the presence on every hand of Federal officers to enforce a law which can be best enforced by the local peace officers."

Mr. Miller said this would not involve the necessity of creating a new State department. There were plenty of officials, he said, charged with the enforcement of other laws who also could enforce the prohibition enforcement law.

"It must not be forgotten," Mr. Miller went on, "that prosecuting officers and peace officers charged with the duty to enforce the law are subject to removal for not enforcing the law."

Mr. Miller said he had not the slightest doubt that the next Legislature would enact a State enforcement law in substantial conformance with the act of Congress. He added:

"If I were Governor I would sign such an act, and having signed it, would use the power of my office to see that it was enforced, but I should do that through the present officials, District Attorneys, Sheriffs, State Constabulary and local peace officers."

Virgil G. Hinshaw, Chairman of the National Committee of the Prohibition Party, announced that he had sent a communication to Governor Cox, urging him to declare himself "for the spirit as well as the letter of the Constitution." His message follows:

"Now that Tom Taggart of French Lick Springs, Ind., a candidate for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket, who is generally accredited with being a vital factor in your nomination for President, has declared openly and emphatically in favor of the Volstead Act and his opposition to any increase in the alcoholic content of beverages, can you not join your compatriot and declare in like manner for the spirit as well as the letter of the Constitution?"

Earlier in the day Mr. Miller was the principal guest at a luncheon given by the Arkwright Club, 320 Broadway. He spoke for ten minutes on the League of Nations. He declared the United States could not afford to ratify the League Covenant in its unamended form.

8,000 COAL MINERS STRIKE.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 29.—Eight thousand miners of the Pennsylvania Coal Company are idle again, according to strike leaders and James A. Joyce, Chairman of the Greater Pittston Chamber of Commerce Strike Settlement Committee. The men are acting in protest against alleged interference by State police, for fairer treatment by bosses, absolute abolition of the contractor system, recognition of their Grievance Committee by company officials and the signing of wage scales by bosses.

The men returned to work Monday, after an eleven weeks' strike. A new reign of dynamite is now feared.

A miner was arrested by State police at No. 4 Colliery yesterday. Mr. Joyce states that Superintendent Jennings promised yesterday afternoon that there would be no more State police interference. A meeting of miners was held in Pittston last night, and Mr. Joyce told the men that the company would see to it that no State or company police were at the collieries this morning. He asserts that "the State police were driving miners in to work today as if they were cattle, and the men refused to go under these circumstances.

"I told them to return home if the State police interfered," Mr. Joyce said.

The Third Avenue elevated line was tied up for an hour last night while firemen fought from the structure a stubborn blaze on the second floor of the three-story building at 613 Third Avenue, between Ninetieth and Ninety-first Streets, used by Jacob Ruppert, the brewer, as a bottling department.

Hundreds of persons living in the district were driven from their homes by the dense smoke. The cause of the blaze, discovered by Patrolman Birnback, has not been ascertained, nor was the extent of the damage known last night.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Steel and Oil Stocks Lead Decline of Industrial Group—Rails Gain.

The process of lowering market appraisals of stocks in accordance with price movements in industry went further yesterday, the steel and petroleum shares coming in for greater pressure than before. In a way the selling of these issues, which brought declines of 1 to 3 points, was the cumulative effect of the general expansion of liquidation and short sales in recent days, but the steel group, at least, was directed by pointed comment on trade developments as revealed in the weekly surveys of steel and iron conditions. It is not surprising to find that the reductions of automobile prices had tended to lessen new contracts for steel. But it seems as though buyers of steel other than motor car makers have also exercised caution in placing forward orders, and information comes from one or two large consumers of steel that the prices of "independent" producers are being lowered by reason of the tendency of buying to go to the largest unit of the industry whose quotations have not risen since March of last year. The railroads have made such progress in breaking up congestion at steel plants that stocks of goods, which buyers wanted the worst way two months ago and could not get, have accumulated in jobbers' warehouses and manufacturers' yards, and are moving out with less dispatch than early in the Summer. Billets, plates and sheets, The Iron Age says, have all yielded in price during the last week and there has been a substantial movement downwrd of pig iron quotations.

In some other years of business reaction steel prices have pointed the way, but on the present occasion it is possible that they have followed instead of led because the demand was steadily persistent long after the public had called a halt on indiscriminate purchases of textiles and other goods. Also, the railroad congestion of April to July threw out of balance the normal market processes, and postponed the day when economic influences at work elsewhere could show themselves definitely. One or two motor companies joined the procession of price cuts yesterday, but broadly there was less publicity to the tendency of markets than in preceding days of the week, outside of the steel trade. Cotton rallied well and the grain markets left off materially higher in price than the day before.

A rise of call money to 8 per cent., the highest rate during the conventional loaning period in three weeks, drew attention to probable efforts of interior banks to strengthen their position. The withdrawal of deposits by these institutions were reported, and evidently caused some calling of loans. It is to be remembered that several of the Reserve banks last week reported sharp declines of their cash ratio to deposit and note liabilities, and it would not be extraordinary if the next consolidated statement, as well as the local bank's report, disclosed the results of steps to improve reserves through the gold settlement fund and the machinery of rediscounts. The advance of call money had no appreciable influence upon stocks; in fact, there was a moderate rally late in the last hour and railroad stocks were strong throughout the session. The steady advance of many of these issues has been one of the heartening phases of the current unsettled market for other stocks. Railroad bonds closed higher than on Tuesday, and were marked by sudden interest and improved quotations in local traction and other public utility issues.

The gold receipts due on the steamer Baltic tomorrow are about $9,500,000 of the Federal Reserve holdings heretofore lodged with the Bank of England and $7,000,000 for account of the French Government as payment on the Anglo-French loan maturity next month. As the complete shipment of $16,500,000, or slightly more than this amount, is coming from London the supposition is permissible that the Bank of France has released more gold from its reserves in London than had been traced before. The Imperator is believed to have $9,500,000 aboard, due to arrive Saturday, for the Reserve Bank. Only the metal coming for French or British account will figure in bank reserves, as the Federal Reserve gold now being brought home has been accounted for ever since it was paid over for food sales to Germany.

PRICE REDUCTIONS HIT IRON AND STEEL

FORD AUTO CUT A FACTOR

Price reductions have begun to appear in the iron and steel industry, according to The Iron Age in its weekly survey of conditions. The market, it is asserted, has shown weakness in a number of directions. Billets, plates and sheets have furnished the chief test of prices, it is said, and all have yielded. In discussing the situation the publication says in part:

"Accompanying the cut made by the Ford Motor Company is a determined effort to force down the price of automobile steel. The Detroit company is expected shortly to buy steel on a large scale for 1921 and already some makers of automobile parts have been urged to make a downward revision of existing contracts.

"Besides a large current output, the shipment of the 1,500,000 tons of steel products accumulated at rolling mills in the weeks of railroad paralysis has gone on at such a rate that many manufacturing consumers are quite well stocked up. This condition enables buyers in various lines to await price developments without any of the concern they have had over supplies in the last year.

"Among steel products, billets, plates and sheets have furnished the chief tests on prices in the last week and all have yielded. An Ohio mill has offered billets at $50, Pittsburgh, and another independent seller has named $52. An Eastern buyer got forging billets at $5 to $10 below the recent market. At Pittsburgh an export sale of billets was made at $54.50.

"In tank plates, while 3.25c., Pittsburgh, is the usual quotation of independent makers, a 3.15c. price has appeared. Plate mills which buy pig iron and particularly mills buying slabs need lower prices on their raw materials to meet such competition.

"The general tendency of pig iron prices is decidedly toward lower levels. Malleable has been sold at Buffalo at $3.75 below recent quotations; 5,000 tons of basic was sold at Chicago to a St. Louis steel company at a concession of $2, and prices of Ohio silvery iron have been shaded from $2 to $4."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"General price readjustments in the iron and steel industry, in line with the nation-wide movement now in progress, apparently, are more of an immediate possibility than they seemed likely to become a few weeks ago. With the exception of a few products, the trend of conditions more distinctly is in the direction of an easier market. Buyers are sounding the new note in the situation and continue to hold off, awaiting substantial inducements, and some are checking specifications to avoid increases in inventories in this position. They are being favored by the sustained growth of production, which, with the number of companies, is at its crest for the present year. Present shipments are far in excess of new bookings.

"Despite the more unsettled situation, no lack of confidence in the ultimate future is entertained. Trade authorities declare a large volume of business lies ahead, with its release apparently dependent upon the establishment of a satisfactory basis of material costs.

"Certain automobile builders who have joined in the general price reduction movement are pressing the mills for lower costs on material for the new manufacturing year. This applies to highly finished lines, and common steel is not affected.

SEEKS TO RAISE FARE TO 7C.

Westchester Railroad Says It Loses on Intracity Business.

Testifying yesterday before the Public Service Commission on an application by the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad Company for permission to charge a seven-cent fare within the city limits, Leverett S. Miller, President of the company, said that the receipts of the local service amounted to only $50,000 a year and that its expenses for rent and municipal taxes were $95,000. Even a seven-cent fare, he said, would not pay expenses. He called attention to the fact that a seven-cent fare has been collected by transportation companies in New Rochelle and Mount Vernon for two years.

The rate of fare within the city, he explained, was less than 1 cent a mile, but ranged between 2½ and 3 cents in all of the Westchester cities and towns. The hearing was not concluded.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

More Gold Coming.

The steamer Baltic, due here Friday, is expected to bring with her $16,750,000 in gold, and the Imperator, due the following day, is reported to be bringing at least $9,500,000 more of the metal. The latter consignment and $9,500,000 of the gold on the Baltic belongs to the Federal Reserve Banks, and is part of the gold held by the Bank of England since August, 1919, when the reserve institutions acquired it from Mr. Hoover's grain corporation, which, in turn, got it from Germany in payment for foodstuffs which were sent into Germany after the armistice. This $19,000,000, of course, will be of no especial benefit to the general credit situation, for it always has figured as part of the cash reserves of the Reserve Banks. But the $7,250,000 additional which the Baltic has aboard is a distinct gain. Just where this gold comes from and to whom it is being shipped is not known. Neither of the banking houses which have been importing gold recently admitted knowledge of the metal yesterday, but the general assumption in Wall Street was that it is part of the French payments on account of the maturing Anglo-French loan.

New Financing Imminent.

The great success of recent security offerings has had the natural result of greatly increasing the volume of applications for new funds, and in banking circles it is predicted that several new issues will be announced before the end of the current week. One of the largest being talked of is a block of Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 7 per cent. bonds, which is expected to aggregate $25,000,000. This, it was said last night, probably will be announced today. There are at least two other pieces of financing, one railroad and one industrial, which also are likely to come either today or tomorrow.

Railroad Mergers?

Speaking of railroad mergers, as most everybody is doing these days, the latest to be discussed in customers' rooms and the corridors of the Stock Exchange are the consolidation of Southern Railway and Southern Pacific, on the one hand, and Reading and New Haven, on the other. Stock market operators have it all figured out—and of course anything is possible—on the theory that the Southern Railway-Southern Pacific would give a great transcontinental system, while the Reading and New Haven would present a fine North and South combine. This latter is at variance with one of Wall Street's oldest and most favored rumors, which has had the Pennsylvania absorbing the New Haven these last fifteen years. But, it now is pointed out, the turning of New Haven into Pennsylvania would end the former as a "Morgan road," whereas turning it into Reading would leave its status unchanged.

Prices Irregular.

There was further evidence yesterday of the line of demarkation which is being drawn between the industrials and the rails in stock market operations. Once again the industrials were uder pressure and the rails, while not buoyant, nevertheless showed a firmness that was worthy of serious note. Selling of the industrials may have checked the rise in the rails to some extent, for it is hard for one part of the general list to make big gains when heavy recessions in price rule elsewhere, but there is a steady demand for stocks of the carriers, which is decidedly at variance with the condition which ruled at this time a year ago. The industrials had a good opening yesterday, but after the initial advances, the weight of selling pressure was to heavy to be resisted successfully and substantial losses were recorded. In large part the selling was from out of town sources. In the afternoon this abated somewhat and there was cautious covering by shorts who have been rising the decline for several days. In the opinion of many the price decline in the stock market is being carried to extremes, even a prospective curtailment of business not warranting such drastic recessions as have taken place in the seasoned industrial stocks.

Steel Issues Under Pressure.

The steel shares were a particular target for the bears and some big declines were recorded when the raiding was at its height. Selling of the steel shares is apparently based on the belief that steel prices are coming down along with the reductions in price of other essential materials. There was one report yesterday that a large equipment company had purchased an order of plates at a recession of ¼ of a cent a pound from the high level. This, however, lacked confirmation. In the case of United States Steel, a falling off in urgent demand throughout the industry may result in [illegible] bookings. The independents in [illegible] have been receiving the surpl[illegible] that the steel corporation [illegible] to handle. With urgency [illegible] there will be more of a [illegible] to place orders with the [illegible] quoting the lower prices and wait a bit longer time for delivery. It is pretty clearly established that the steel coporation price level will not be cut and one prominent user of steel said yesterday that he would not be surprised to see an advance in quotations by that company.

The Short Interest.

It is reported that a big short interest has been piling up in several of the more active issues, but whether this back log against precipitate decline exists to a large extent in the general run of issues is to be doubted. Speculation has not been widespread, the professionals dominating the situation for the most part and their activities have been confined to a comparatively narrow range of stocks. The pressure that has been exerted against the list as a whole has been from liquidation of long stock.

Equipment Orders Held Back.

The amount of new equipment ordered by the railroads since they were returned to private operation has been far less than had been generally expected by the equipment manufacturers, and local railroad managers themselves admit that the orders placed have been only a small proportion of the amount of new business which should be under way at this time. This condition, according to the opinion of several conservative railroad men has been due to several causes. At first it was the belief among the railroad managers that the Interstate Commerce Commission would apportion the $300,000,000 loaning fund early in the Summer and while nothing definite has been said about it there was also the belief that the roads would then go before Congress with a petition for additional funds. However, the Interstate Commerce Commission in certifying equipment and betterment loans from the fund, failed to act as soon as had been expected, and apparently the Congressional idea was never developed to any great extent. In some quarters in the financial district the fact that this is a Presidential year has been considered as one reason why nothing visible has been done along such lines. A great flood of equipment business is being held back because of high interest rates, and some observers say that before long railroad business probably will form a majority of the work being done by the manufacturers of steel throughout the country. How soon the new orders will start to come out in volume no one has been found who will hazard a guess.

Checking Up Loadings.

One of the points being made by several of the big railroad companies in their campaign to increase the movement of freight throughout the country in spite of the fact that existing transportation facilities are considered as far from adequate is proper inspection and supervision at loading and unloading points. Many of the roads have special inspectors who make periodic trips over their lines and check up on the way cars are loaded and unloaded, the condition of cars that are being loaded and unloaded, and the condition and movement of equipment in transit. It has been suggested that an even closer inspection and a more rigid supervision of loading and unloading of cars will go a long way toward increasing the efficiency of each equipment item as a unit and will, of course, increase average efficiency.

Owners of sound bonds bought at a high level should increase their holdings at present low prices. Thus the average cost will be reduced and the yield increased.

RESERVE DIRECTORS TO DISCUSS CREDITS

NEW LIGHT IS LOOKED FOR

Officials Will Exchange Views on Rediscount Rates for Commercial Paper.

The meeting of Governors and Chairmen of the Boards of Directors of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks at Washington on Oct. 13, next, is expected to throw much new light on the administration of the credit situation by the Reserve system. This will be the first regular periodic meeting at which officials of the system from various parts of the country will be able to exchange definite notes and experiences under the present methods.

Of the twelve banks, four have established a 7 per cent. rediscount rate for commercial paper; four have maintained a 6 per cent. rediscount rate for this class of borrowing, and the remaining four have adopted the sliding scale system, whereby a member bank is given a definite line of credit at the central institution and is subjected to a penalty rate, on an advancing scale, if it exceeds its normal line of accommodation.

The banks in the 7 per cent. class are New York, Boston, Chicago, and Minneapolis. Those which adhere to the 6 per cent. rate are Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond and San Francisco, while Atlanta, St. Louis, Kansas City and Dallas have put into operation the sliding scale system which was made possible by amendment to the Federal Reserve act early in the year.

At the meeting next month the Governors and the Chairmen of the boards will be able to discuss the operations of these three rate arrangements, and it will be the first time that concrete results will be presented for consideration. Whether the result of the conference will be to cause any alteration in rates among all the banks cannot, of course, be predicted by bankers at this time, but there is a feeling that no changes of consequence will be made, unless one or two of the banks which have not as yet adopted the sliding scale do so. There is small likelihood that the New York bank will do this.

The advance in rediscount rates on loans secured by Government securities which the Kansas City bank announced yesterday was not regarded as especially significant here. The new rate, 6 per cent., is charged by a majority of Reserve Banks now. Similarly, the announcement that the loaning basis on Liberty bonds had been reduced from par to 85 and that of Victory notes from par to 95 was not regarded as unusual, for several other Reserve Banks did this some time ago.

CZECHS WANT U. S. CAPITAL.

Most Investors Now Are British and French, Says Banker.

This is an opportune time for the participation of American capital in the reconstruction of Czechoslovakia, according to Paul Berka, representative of the Bohemian Central Bank, of Prague. Most of the foreign capital which has gone into his country, Mr. Berka said, has been British and French, with only a very small amount of American capital represented. Also, he said, few American financiers have visited Czechoslovakia, the proportion being about one American to twenty British and French bankers.

Mr. Berka is in this country attempting to arrange for the floating of bond issues of the City of Prague, which issue will approximate 100,000,000 crowns; bonds of the City of Pilsen and bonds of the City of Bratislava. Mr. Berka is very optimistic about the future of the country, for he said: "We have passed through the white heat of the political fires. Public opinion is crystalizing and indicates that we shall enjoy a long period of political quietude and harmonious cooperation in the upbuilding of the State. However, we are very much deterred in our industry through disorders in adjacent countries, upon which we are dependent for a market for most of our industrial products. The formation of the little entente was a great forward step, which will assure a limited market for our products."

MICHIGAN CENTRAL INCOME SHRINKS

The report of the Michigan Central Railroad Company— a New York Central subsidiary—for last year showed a net corporate income of but $67,230 as compared with $201,598 in the preceding years due to a charge against income of $2,248,203 in connection with lapover revenues and expenses which applied to the period before the Government assumed control of the road. The Federal income account as contained in the report showed net at the close of 1919 amounting to $19,397,213 as compared with $15,711,942 in 1918.

"While throughout the country there is a general shortage of equipment your officers feel that your company has reasonably fulfilled its obligations to the public. During the years 1914-1919, inclusive, the company purchased 84 new locomotives, 65 new passenger-train cars and 13,192 new freight-train cars at an aggregate cost of $26,086,900. Today this equipment would cost approximately $51,691,800, or $25,604,900 more than was paid for it.

"Of the 2,000 freight cars and 30 locomotives allotted by the Director General of Railroads to this company there were delivered in 1919, 1,173 freight cars; these, together with the equipment delivered in 1918, complete the entire allotment of freight cars but leave 10 locomotives still to be delivered. Arrangements have been made by which the Director General is to take at par the 6 per cent. equipment trust notes of the company, maturing in equal annual installments over a period of fifteen years, in payment for approximately 75 per cent. of the cost of this equipment, and by which the remainder is to be paid to him by deducting the amount from the equipment depreciation and retirement credits arising in the company's favor under its standard contract with him."

SAYS WILSON WANTS SHIPPING BUILT UP

But Colby Declares That He Opposes Doing So by Violating Treaties.

NOT OPPOSED TO JONES ACT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Secretary Colby in the course of an informal discussion of President Wilson's action in refusing to be bound by the direction of Congress, given in Section 34 of the Jones Merchant Marine act, to serve notice of termination of any provision in treaties with foreign nations which restricted the right of the United States to impose discriminatory tonnage dues and discriminatory customs duties on exports, declared today that there had been no collision between Congress and the President in the sense of diversity of purpose with respect to the upbuilding of the American merchant marine.

"No man," said Secretary Colby, "has done more than President Wilson in recent years for the development and upbuilding of the American merchant marine; but the President does not think we should pamper our shipping by international duplicity or treaty violation. The action taken by the President means that a matter, which is by no means a simple one, simply goes back to Congress, when the legislative branch of the Government meets again, for re-examination and an effort to try and find a way out of the situation without violation of any of our treaties."

It was pointed out by the Secretary, in reply to a question, that the fact that a treaty provision might stand in the way of a desire to dispose of conventional obstacles to the imposition of discriminatory dues constituted no reason for a breach of treaties. Secretary Colby recalled today that, in the final stages of the consideration of the Jones bill in Congress, he had written a letter to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee calling the attention of that committee to the effect that the passage of the bill would have on American treaties of peace and commerce, thirty-two in number, with other countries.

It was pointed out today in an official quarter that the Jones act did not provide for the abrogation of the treaties involved, but that the section of the law which the President regarded as encroaching on Presidential prerogatives had called for partial abrogation. But even partial abrogation of a treaty is regarded by officials of the department as a breach which would give the other party to the treaty the right to denounce the agreement in its entirety.

"The action of the President," said Mr. Colby today, "does not mean that the President is averse to the upbuilding of the American merchant marine, but it does mean that he is opposed to doing it except in the most honorable and upright fashion. I still think that the action taken by the President was a very great act on the part of the President, and that years after the fever of this campaign is over this will stand out as one of the most valuable acts of his Administration for the people of this nation."

American treaties of peace and commerce, it is emphasized by Administration officials, involve a multitude of interests. The treaty with China provides for extraterritorial rights in China, and should this Government serve notice of its intention to strike out any part of that treaty, without the assent of China, China would have the right to regard this as a breach of treaty contract and to abrogate the entire treaty, it is asserted, which would mean the withdrawal of vast American interests from China.

In the opinion of such officials, the result of the absolute enforcement of Section 34 would be a war of retaliation against this country which it would be ill-equipped to fight because of the Governmental system of checks and balances which would make it difficult to engage in prompt reprisals.

The Administration's contention is that there are many ways in which the upbuilding of the American merchant marine can be effected without resort to breach of treaties—legal, honest and intelligent ways—and it is understood to be the hope of the President that this is the manner in which the matter will be dealt with by Congress.

MUNICIPAL BONDS ACTIVE.

Five Bids Received for $5,200,000 Milwaukee Issue.

Public utility and municipal bonds have been enjoying an unusually active market during the past few weeks and prices have been advancing substantially. It is said in the bond market that the demand for these securities has been surprisingly broad, and that new offerings are more eagerly sought at the present time than for several years.

An instance of the keen desire of bankers to secure new offerings was presented yesterday, when on an issue of $5,200,000 of City of Milwaukee bonds of varying maturity, and bearing from 5 to 6 per cent., five bids were made by syndicates representing some forty-eight different banks and bond houses. The successful bidders were the syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust Company and Halsey, Stuart & Co., who bid 102.10 for the entire lot. Two other local syndicates had in bids of 101.62 and 101.42, respectively.

Stacy & Braun are heading a syndicate including Eldredge & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., which is offering $2,000,000 State of Oregon 4½ per cent. highway bonds, maturing annually from 1925 to 1945, inclusive, at prices to yield 5.15 per cent. to 5.50 per cent.

Edward B. Smith & Co. are offering at 99½ and accrued interest $1,000,000 Scranton Electric Company ten-year 8 per cent. secured gold bonds, and Halsey, Stuart & Co. and A. B. Leach & Co. are offering $1,000,000 Public Service Company of Northern Illinois ten-year 8 per cent. collateral gold notes at par.

Public Utility Shares Active.

There was a sudden increase in activity in some of the public utility shares in the late trading, such issues as Philadelphia Company and Interborough Consolidated both closing with substantial gains. The former, which has been particularly inactive for many months as compared with the activity formerly displayed, gained more than 1 point within a comparatively short time and both the common and preferred shares of the latter moved forward easily on an increased volume of business. Accompanying the advance in Philadelphia Company were persistent rumors of an increase in the dividend rate within a comparatively short time.

THE UTILITIES
Bulwark of Business

Public Service Corporations supply indispensable services. Upon them devolves in no small measure our industrial progress.

Factory wheels must be turned, mines operated, homes lighted, workers must be carried to and from their places of employment. Gas, telegraph and telephone services are no longer conveniences—they are necessities of every day living.

Halsey, Stuart & Co.'s recent contribution to this all-important industry is represented by the bond and note issues of public utility properties illustrated herewith. These offerings comprise a partial list of public utility issues, sponsored and distributed in the present year by our organization, alone or jointly with associates.

Circulars descriptive of any of these or other public utility offerings will be furnished upon request.

TO MAKE AMERICAN RAZORS IN ENGLAND

CONTROL IS RETAINED HERE

The British-American Safety Razor Company, Limited, will be launched within the next few weeks in England to take over nearly all of the foreign business of the American Safty Razor Corporation. George L. Storm, Chairman of the board of the latter company, will said for England on Oct. 12 to organize the British concern. The British-American Company will take over all patents, trademarks and rights to use automatic machinery from the American Safety Razor Corporation and will operate throughout the world except in North and South America, the Philippine Islands, Japan and China. A company similar to the British company will be formed to handle the Canadian business. This company will be underwritten by the same interests underwriting the British-American Company.

The new British company will have a capital of 400,000 ordinary shares of £1 par value. This total will, however, be divided so that there will be 225,000 Class A shares, each five shares of which will be entitled to one vote, and 175,000 B shares which will have one vote per share. The two classes of stock will participate equally in earnings. The American Safety Razor Corporation will take for its assets 25,000 shares of A stock and cash for all assets in excess of what the 25,000 shares represent, leaving the balance of the stock to be underwritten by London bankers. The Class A stock will be listed on the London Stock Exchange. The American Safety Razor Corporation will also take 140,000 shares of B stock, so that it will have absolute control of the British company. George L. Storm will be Chairman of the British-American Company, and Sir Conup Guthrie will be Vice Chairman.

DOUBLE IN THREE YEARS

Holders of the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation numbered 90,952 when the books closed for the last quarterly dividend on Aug. 30. This is the highest mark ever touched in the history of the corporation. At the closing of the books for the previous quarter the total number of common stockholders was 87,229, and in the quarter of 1919 corresponding to the August closing of this year 73,456 persons received dividend checks from the Steel Corporation, so that the increase in holders of common stock in the course of a year has been 17,496. On the basis of the figures just reported the common stock of the corporation is now so well distributed that the average holdings per person amount to less than 56 shares.

The increase in the number of holders of the common stock has been going on steadily for a number of years, the speculative holdings declining as the investment holdings increased. It has always been said that a falling price for steel common brings an increase in the number of stockholders, and this has been held by some to indicate that the public, in the case of steel common at least, buys at or near the bottom and sells at the top. In the last three years the number of common stockholders has more than doubled. In August, 1917, the common stockholders numbered 44,789, compared with the 90,952 reported in August of this year.

The preferred stock also shows an expansion in number of holders. The August 30 figures of this year showed 80,089 owners of the shares, whereas the total was 79,282 three months earlier.

NEWS OF GULF STORM AIDS COTTON RALLY

EXPORTS ENCOURAGE BULLS

Cotton had another irregular day yesterday. There was weakness early in the session, thanks to an unexpected break in Liverpool futures and some unfavorable trade reports from abroad, but later in the day, when it appeared that the tropical storm in the gulf had reached the Florida coasts and promised to be much more real than the much-heralded one of a week ago, prices rallied and went up about 100 points from the early lows. The Weather Bureau also reported the probabilities of frost in the Western part of the belt last night, and this helped the bulls considerably, as did also the continuation of good export clearances.

The break at Liverpool was just the reverse of what that market should have done to be in line with our market of Tuesday, but it was explained on the ground that there is a general liquidating movement among the spinners, the same as prevails in many lines of commodities throughout the British markets just now. Spots at Liverpool recovered 11 points from Tuesday's extreme low, and recorded sales totaled only 5,000 bales, indicating that that department of the market was not much affected. But futures, after a rather unsettled day, closed down 14 to 44 points from Tuesday's low levels.

Exports from the United States yesterday were 9,512 bales, off considerably from the preceding days of the week, but the total of clearances since last Friday now is 128,382 bales, which is by far the greatest for any similar number of days this season, and greatly encourages the bulls. Just what is the significance of this sudden spurt is not known, but the bulls, inclined to be more or less demoralized by the break of last week and Monday, eagerly clutched at the export news yesterday.

Southern spot markets were somewhat firmer. Business yesterday was not heavy, but there were fractional advances in prices at Savannah, Augusta, Dallas and Fort Worth. Mobile was slightly lower than on the previous day.

The Government's final crop condition report, which was scheduled for publication Saturday, will not be issued until noon, New York time, on Monday. In the trade there has been an average guess on this report of about 60 per cent., as against 67.5 on Aug. 25 and 54.4 at this time last year.

Closes with Prices 1¼ to 3 Cents Per Bushel Higher.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Moderate buying for the seaboard sufficed to give an upturn to the wheat market today after an easy opening. The rally was helped by strength which developed in coarse grain. First prices, unchanged to 1c lower, with December $2.22½ to $2.23 and March $2.16, were followed by a decided gain all around.

Gossip of a probable scarcity of wheat at domestic milling points between now and next June tended somewhat to stimulate demand. The close was strong, 1¼ to 3c net higher, with December $2.24½ to $2.24¾ and March $2.20.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—General W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, addressing the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce today, said that in his opinion, the "nationalization of the railroads through national agreements and national boards of adjustment" was one of the most important questions now before the public. Labor leaders, he added, did not deny that they had it in mind.

After asserting that the efficiency of employes during Federal control and the subsequent six months transition period had fallen to 75 per cent., measured by production per hour, and urging a return to pre-war efficiency, General Atterbury said there were many thousands of older men still on the payrolls of the railroads who took their old-time pride and satisfaction in their work and that it was the task of the roads to educate the younger men.

General Atterbury urged that the sure way to bring about a "saner and more American view of life and duty" was to carry out the spirit of the Transportation act and restore each railroad system completely to the status of an individual operating unit, dealing with its own men independently and free from interference by political influence.

"If we have national boards of adjustment," General Atterbury said, "we shall inevitably return to political domination in railroad labor matters, permanently impair the disciplinary powers of the officers and force the closed shop on all railroads."

Partial Payment!

Just as many investors find the partial payment plan of purchasing securities a practical method, so, many financial houses find that they can build their business by the most stable and best known partial payment plan—Advertising.

Estimate how much you can invest in advertising for a period of one year. Then—month by month—your payments for the advertising work for you in creating new business. If you will analyze carefully what you have to offer; plan your appeal and copy along sound and common sense lines; and keep your publicity going continuously your advertising investment will pay.

For many years, this agency has aided in producing more business for financial advertisers. Our Service Department will be pleased to submit plans and suggestions on how you can make your publicity a more important factor in business building. Consult with us. No obligation.

Committees representing (1) the merchandise and (2) the banking creditors of the Maxwell Company and (3) the stockholders of the Maxwell and the Chalmers Companies, have agreed upon a Plan and Agreement of Reorganization bearing date September 1, 1920, and to carry it out they have organized the undersigned Committee, composed of representatives and the counsel of the three committees.

The Plan and Agreement to which reference is made for a full and accurate statement of the contents thereof, provides for:

1: A union of the Maxwell and the Chalmers properties in a New Company with an authorized capital of 1,000,000 shares of which 200,000 shares is to be Class A stock and 800,000 shares is to be Class B stock, of which it is estimated that there will be presently issued 153,000 shares of Class A stock and 620,179 shares of Class B stock. The Class A stock is to have priority over the Class B stock both as to assets and non-cumulative dividends up to $8 per share, and with the right to participate with Class B stock in dividends in any fiscal year after dividends of $8 per share shall have been paid on Class A stock and Class B stock.

2: The provision of $15,000,000 of new money, through a Syndicate which has agreed to purchase Class A stock and Class B stock of the New Company, with the right on the part of depositing stockholders of the existing companies to purchase all or any part of the new stock which the Syndicate has agreed to purchase, on exactly the terms offered to the underwriters. There is to be no commission or other compensation in any form payable to the Syndicate Underwriters.

3: The payment in cash upon the consummation of the Plan of one-third of unsecured claims and giving for the balance 7% notes of the New Company payable in one, two and three years in equal instalments.

" Second "	2½ " " "
" Common	1 " " "
Chalmers Preferred	6 " " "
" Common	1 " " "

To accomplish the consummation of the Plan the cooperation of creditors and stockholders is necessary. To a large extent this has already been assured. Prompt action looking to the acceptance of the Plan by all concerned is most important.

Copies of the Plan and Agreement may be obtained from Central Union Trust Company of New York, Depositary, 80 Broadway, or from the members of the Committee or its secretary.

In order to obtain the benefits of the Plan, holders of stock of the various classes of the Maxwell Company and the Chalmers Company and of Trust Certificates representative thereof, and the holders of Notes of or claims against the Maxwell Company, must deposit their securities with CENTRAL UNION TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Depositary, at its office, 80 Broadway, New York City, before the close of business on OCTOBER 15, 1920. Stock and Trust Certificates must be endorsed in blank for transfer and bear all transfer stamps. Notes must be endorsed in blank without recourse. Claims must be accompanied by assignments thereof executed in the form prescribed by the Committee. Such forms of assignment may be obtained on application at the office of Central Union Trust Company of New York or from the secretary of the Committee. Certificates of Deposit will be issued against all deposits. Stock and Trust Certificates now on deposit under the Plan and Agreement of August 30, 1919, need not be redeposited as the same if not withdrawn within the time limited by that Plan and Agreement will be entitled to the benefits of the Plan and Agreement dated September 1, 1920, and will be irrevocably bound thereby.

In order to avail of the rights of purchase given to assenting stockholders under the Plan, holders of Certificates of deposit for stock or trust certificates must before the close of business on OCTOBER 15, 1920, present their certificates of deposit for proper stamping to Central Union Trust Company of New York as Depositary, at its office, 80 Broadway, New York City, and must make payment of 10% of the purchase price of the minimum amounts of Class A and Class B stock they are entitled to acquire under the Plan and which they elect to purchase. Upon such payment Subscription Warrants and Application Certificates will be issued as provided in the Plan. The following table gives the minimum rights of purchase under the Plan to depositing stockholders in respect of each share of stock deposited and the initial cash payment of 10% of the purchase price:

For 1 share of existing Stock Deposited	New Stock Class A	New Stock Class B	Cash Payment of 10% of Price
Maxwell 1st Preferred	.45	1.2	$4.50
" 2nd Preferred	.225	.6	2.25
" Common	.09	.24	.90
" Common	.09	.24	.90

Failure to so present certificates of deposit and to make said cash payment will forfeit all rights of depositing stockholders to make purchases of new stock under the Plan, but they will, notwithstanding any such failure, be entitled as and to the extent provided in the Plan to receive, upon its consummation, New Class B stock in exchange for existing stock.

Holders of certificates of deposit for stock or trust certificates stamped as assenting to the Plan who desire to purchase new stock in addition to the minimum rights of purchase given under the Plan, must file their application therefor on the form attached to the Application Certificates with Central Union Trust Company of New York, as Depositary, at its office, 80 Broadway, New York City, on or before the close of business on NOVEMBER 1, 1920. They may apply for any amount of stock at the specified price and in the fixed proportions as between Class A stock and Class B stock, but at the time of filing application must pay on account of the purchase price of Class A and Class B stock applied for, $10 in cash in respect of each and every share of Class A stock applied for. Any cash payment made on account of the purchase price of Class A and Class B stock applied for but not allotted, will be returned as provided in the Plan. It is expected that notice of allotment will be given on or about the 3rd day of November, 1920.

SAYS EUROPE CAN'T RESTORE EXCHANGE

BOYDEN'S VIEW CRITICISED

BRUSSELS, Sept. 29 (Associated Press)—The World Financial Conference today took up the currency and exchange questions. The arguments developed, however differed little from those already advanced in the speeches on general public finance.

The remarkable unanimity of thought expressed in the speeches raises the hope in conference circles that in the committee work, which will really decide the success or failure of the conference, it will be easy for the delegates to agree upon a line of action.

Dr. G. Vissering of the Netherlands Bank, who opened the discussion on currency and exchange this morning, replied to yesterday's statement of Roland W. Boyden, the unofficial representative of the United States at the conference, with a veiled but unmistakable warning to the United States that if financial disaster came to Europe through the failure of general co-operation by all the leading countries of the world the United States would suffer as well as Europe.

Dr. Vissering held that governments and individuals were responsible for the depreciation of money, and consequently for the high cost of living. He prescribed the same remedies as were proposed by preceding speakers—less spending, more work and greater production.

He charged individuals with diminishing production by shortening the hours of labor and decreasing the yield of labor. He also said individuals were wasting too much money on gasoline, alcohol, tobacco and other commodities, consumption of which did not contribute to the production of other commodities. He recommended the gradual reduction of paper circulation, and, in conclusion, dealt with the position of the United States, which, he said, "came out of the war more powerful than any other country."

In addition to the American Government's claims upon other countries, totaling $10,000,000,000, he pointed out that individuals in America hold additional claims amounting to $4,000,000,000 for supplies furnished to Europe. He declared that the United States posseses four-ninths of the world's gold stock.

Europe Unable to Restore Balance.

The ways and means of meeting these claims against Europe, he said, were absolutely insufficient, Europe still being unable to force up production and exports to a point where equilibrium could be restored. Even the exportation of gold to the United States from Europe would fail absolutely to make up the deficiency.

Debtors and buyers must continue to bid against each other in the open market for whatever dollars were available for remittances, consequently no reasonable limit could be placed on the rise of the dollar.

"Would not a situation arise fatal to the debtor countries and eventually unfavorable to the United States if the United States insisted upon the payment of what is due from Europe?" he asked.

A new equilibrium of the world might in the long run be established, he said, but only after enormous trouble and misery, encouraging a revolutionary and Bolshevist spirit. The United States, he declared, would not be able to escape the recoil of this.

"If the course of affairs, therefore, is left to its fate," continued Dr. Vissering, "a fresh economic equilibrium will be obtained in the end. But in the meantime the home of the old civilization will have become a hell, and the new order of things in the world will be created only at the cost of more victims than the war has already sacrificed."

"Boyden wants to found a United States of Europe," was the most general comment on Mr. Boyden's speech. Some of the delegates, particularly the French, expressed the thought that he went too far in asking the victorious Allies "to go more than half way" in order to harmonize the interests of their former enemies.

"If America could, seen an advance toward economic union among the different States of Europe, if it could see gradually coming about a decrease in the hostility which reigns to a large extent among these different States, you would then find the psychology of the American business man much changed as to conditions over here.

"I congratulate the League on having invited here the representatives of the nations that were vanquished in the war. This will help Americans to appreciate that there is a chance that Europe may get together. When a struggle like this has ended it is for the victors to go more than half way."

Mr. Boyden recalled the civil war in America and the fact that the passions it caused had disappeared. The United States was as united today as any country in the world, and he looked forward to something of that kind in Europe.

Kogo Mori, the Japanese representative, said that freedom of world trade was the most essential condition for economic restoration.

During yesterday's session Herr Bergmann, representing Germany, summarized the official statement from Berlin which had been laid before the conference. He expressed the thanks of his Government to the League of Nations for having extended an invitation to be represented at the conference, and concluded by saying:

"In spite of the present difficult situation, we do not consider the financial prospects of Germany desperate. The people there are gradually finding their way back to order, and willingness to work is reviving everywhere in the country."

French Not Encouraged.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The address of Mr. Boyden at the Brussels conference, is attracting much attention. The newspaper comment generally tends toward resignation, although there is a touch of bitterness in it. The Temps, without mentioning the speech of Mr. Boyden specifically, in a leading editorial article on the financial conference at Brussels remarks:

"Evidently the attitude of the United States and the recriminations of neutrals tend to prove that the principle of international solidarity in financial and economic matters is not understood by all in the same manner."

L'Intransigeant expresses the belief that Mr. Boyden "has rendered a great service to the French, though he has taught us nothing in telling us that the United States will lend us no more money."

"But we know now why we do not understand the American attitude," this newspaper continues. "The misunderstanding arises from the fact that for them the war is over, while for us it will last until Germany has fulfilled the obligations under which she has put her signature."

La Liberté, referring to Mr. Boyden's remark on Europe's political instability, inquires: "Whose fault is it? We might reply: 'Are there not "the Fourteen Points," which came from the other side of the Atlantic and which have aggravated the international anarchy and chaos.'"

SAYS HE OWNS AMSTEA.

H. W. McAteer Denies German Company Is a Steel Subsidiary.

A cable dispatch from London on Monday stated on the authority of The Observer that there had been established in Germany the Amstea, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Products Corporation, to obtain German business. Howard W. McAteer, President of the American Steel Export Company, denied yesterday that the Steel Products Corporation had control of the Amstea. He sent this letter to THE TIMES:

"With reference to the article appearing in the daily papers relative to the control of 'Amsted' by the United States Steel Products Corporation, I wish to say that this company has no connection whatever with 'Amstea'; that 'Amstea' is a German corporation organized by the writer last December. The stock is owned by American and German interests, the writer, however, owning the control of the stock.

"This company was organized for the purpose of doing a trading business between Germany and the United States. Its principal office is at 14 Bellevue Strasse, Berlin, Germany, and it owns subsidiary companies in Hamburg, Bremen, Munich, Vienna, Reval and Danzig. It has already done considerable trading business with the United States, both import and export, its principal business being in steel and steel products, hardware, cutlery, machinery, &c., its American representatives being the American Steel Export Company and the East European Trading Company, of both of which the writer is President."

MOVES IN RACE-FIXING SUIT.

Billings Seeks to Force Spear to Reply in $100,000 Action.

The alleged fixing of a trotting race at Memphis, Tenn., in 1904, when C. K. G. Billings charged that his horse, Lou Dillon, was tampered with to insure the winning of Major Delmar, owned by E. E. Smathers, was recalled yesterday by a move in the suit in the Supreme Court against Mr. Billings by George W. Spear, who was the trainer of Major Delmar, to recover $100,000 damages. The suit is to be tried soon, and in preparing his defense Mr. Billings filed an application to compel the plaintiff to reply to his answer in order that he may know whether or not Spear will attempt to refute it.

Spear made an affidavit some years ago in support of Mr. Billings's charges of a conspiracy against his horse, and as a result he was suspended from the National Trotting Association and was not reinstated until ten years later. Spear alleged that Mr. Billings agreed to pay him money for his disclosures, to bring about his reinstatement and to pay all expenses incidental thereto, but did not keep his agreement. Mr. Billings's defense is that his agreement was not in writing, and for that reason cannot be enforced. Mr. Billings wants a reply from the plaintiff as to whether this contention is true.

ELLIS ISLAND RID OF REDS.

Thirty-four alien disturbers were removed from Ellis Island to Deer Island, Boston Harbor, yesterday because of cramped conditions in the immigration station here. Before departing the radicals smashed their cots and tore up their bedding. The bus in which they were transported from the Battery to the Grand Central Terminal attracted much attention from the crowds on Broadway. The radicals sang the "Internationale" all the way up the street.

Charles Recht, a lawyer at 47 West Forty-second Street, later announced that he would go to Boston and endeavor to have certain of the aliens either deported or liberated.

Alfred Nagel, recalled Latvian emissary, and his wife will be admitted to the country for four months under bond of $1,000, Ellis Island officials announced. The decision to permit Nagel to remain here was due to the poor health of his wife.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—To meet the rush of work at Ellis Island caused by the influx of immigrants, Assistant Secretary Post of the Labor Department today directed that 133 additional employes be added to the force.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—Thirty-four alleged radicals who are awaiting deportation arrived late today from Ellis Island, New York, and were transferred to Deer Island. The group offered no protest and made no demonstration as they were taken from the train. They were housed in a building formerly used as a women's prison, under guard of six officers.

DAUGHTER'S, TILL SHE WEDS

Husband Will "Help Out"; Then Will Orders Division with Brother.

By the will, filed here yesterday, of Mary C. Martin Casey, who died on July 22 last at 13 East Thirtieth Street, all of her property goes to her daughter, Fanny C. H., who lives at home, but stipulates that if she marries she shall divide equally with her brother Kellogg C. H., who also lives at the Thirtieth Street home.

"I don't wish," Mrs. Casey wrote in the will, "to wrong Kellogg or keep anything from him, and it hurts me to do it, but Fanny must have a little income until she has some one to help her out. Why I leave all I possess to Fanny is that my husband cannot hold property and that when he retires from his business he will have an income of $1,500 per year for life from the Board of Education."

The will directs Mr. Casey to keep on paying $75 per month for rent of the home, but he is to have the use of the library for life.

The Uptown Club, composed of business men in the Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street district, has secured an option from the National City Company of the entire fourteenth floor of its new building at the northwest corner of Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue, formerly the Hotel Manhattan.

The club has been temporarily located over Pierre's Restaurant at 11 East Forty-fifth Street, and now has a membership of about 400. It is the intention of the club to increase its membership, with the additional facilities which will be available, to about 1,000 members.

McKim, Mead & White are making the plans for the club, which will provide an unusually attractive layout and will consist of a very large lounge, large dining room, which will accommodate the members for luncheon, and if found desirable also for breakfast and dinner. There will also be private dining rooms and a very attractive ladies' dining room.

The fourteenth floor of the old Manhattan Hotel building, which is now undergoing extensive alterations, will give the Uptown Club the facilities which have long been desired of an attractive and convenient location and accommodations similar to those enjoyed by the many leading business clubs downtown.

Among the Governors of the Uptown Club are John H. Towne of Yale & Towne; Ancell H. Ball of Best & Co.; Henry J. Cochran, Vice President, Bankers Trust Company; Harris A. Dunn, Vice President, Columbia Trust Company; Dr. John A. Harriss, Deputy Police Commissioner; Thomas B. Clarke, Jr., Vice President, Harriman National Bank; Lawrence B. Move In Oct. 1st or Before

Our home for sale; wonderful opportunity for those whom Oct. 1 will find homeless. We are purchasing a larger home in our immediate vicinity; ours is for sale with the garage for $4,500 cash, balance on very easy terms to right party; eight rooms, bath; garage; wide porch and tree covered plot 150 ft. x 189 ft.; all go to make one of the daintiest, most practical and comfortable homes for a small family, with one or no servants, to be found anywhere. It is hardly a year old and in perfect condition. House could not be built today for what we ask for entire property. My husband and I have spent much time and money in creating our ideal home. Any woman and most men will appreciate it on sight. Decorations were put in under personal direction of an artist. Can give occupancy on one week's notice. Yes, it's just a few minutes' walk to the railroad station, and the commuting to New York is unusually convenient. The neighborhood is purely residential, very beautiful and wonderfully healthy. OPEN WINTER TERM OF JEWISH COURT

SUITS ARE SEMI-RELIGIOUS

Four Heard Involving Disputes of Congregations and Like Organizations.

When the Jewish Court of Arbitration was called to order late yesterday afternoon for its Winter term the small grand jury room of the Criminal Courts building was comfortably filled with litigants while ten cases were ready for trial. The court came into existence last February to settle disputes among Jews that ordinarily would fill the civil courts and require months for adjudication. Most of its cases are of a semi-religious character.

The litigants agree to abide by the decisions and each case must first be presented to Louis Richman, executive secretary of the court, at 38 Park Row. There are three judges, a member of the judiciary, a rabbi and a business man. The last two must of necessity be Jews. The judges who presided yesterday were County Judge Louis D. Gibbs of the Bronx, the Rev. Aaron A. Yudelovitch, chief rabbi in the United States, and Joseph Smolensky, a business man.

The first case yesterday was that of Moses Platzman of 591 East 140th Street, against the Congregation Israel Inshe Stard, 490 East 140th Street. Platzman was expelled from the congregation and this, he charged, not only removed him from spiritual benefits, but caused him to be ostracized by some of his friends. He asked the court for reinstatement and that an apology be made. The defense alleged that Platzman had withheld his books as secretary.

The court decided that the congregation was within its rights in removing the complainant from membership. Judge Gibbs said, however, that there was no reflection on Platzman's character and the action of the congregation was not excommunication, the complainant being free to join some other congregation.

Joseph Kreisberg of 908 Kelly Street, the Bronx, demanded that the First Kirol Owker Benevolent Association, 115 East 104th Street, pay him a death benefit of $150 for the death of his wife. It was the contention of the association that no death benefit for $150 could be paid unless there was $1,000 in the treasury. The books showed $860 there. Under the rules, it was said the complainant was entitled to $75 and the court so decided.

The court ruled that Jacob Liebkind, a teacher of Hebrew, was entitled to $112 salary from the Talmud Torah Machzike of Harlem, because he was discharged before his contract expired.

Sam Fenchel, of 2,140 Dean Street, Brooklyn, complained that the Congregation Bikur Chorim B'nai Jacob, 2,134 Dean Street, had fined him $50 without cause and expelled him. Officers of the congregation said he stirred up trouble and was insubordinate. The court remitted Fenchel's fine, but ordered that he should not re-enter the synagogue.

The court was adjourned until next Wednesday night.

Stedman to Brave Kentucky Law.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Seymour Stedman, Socialist nominee for the Vice Presidency, will speak in Covington, Ky., Friday night "to test out the Kentucky sedition law," which "Socialists and radicals throughout the country consider the most drastic and unconstitutional of the various State anti-radical laws," the Socialist national headquarters here announced today.

INTERBOROUGH DEFICIT LESS

Road Carried 10,808,822 More Passengers in August Than a Year Ago.

During August the Interborough Rapid Transit Company carried 74,797,650 revenue passengers, 10,809,822 more than were carried in the same month last year, and during July and August the increase was 19,236,772. In reporting this improved condition on its lines yesterday the company also stated that, during August, the deficit in the net corporate income, exclusive of accrusals and other payments provided for in the dual contracts with the city, had decreased $25,505. During July and August the decrease was $162,452. The deficit was given as $658,481.91.

The gross operating revenue amounted to $4,032,388.80 in August as against $3,482,684.60 in 1919, an increase of $549,704.20, and that in July and August the total increase in the revenue was $993,942.05. Operating expenses for August grew to $2,812,625.66, as against $2,285,581.77 for the preceding year, an increase of $527,043.89, and for the two months, July and August, the increase amounted to $1,057,805.33.

The net operating income for August increased to $1,219,763.14 from $1,197,102.63 in August, 1919, but for the two months it declined $63,863.28. Total taxes increased $4,637.33 in August over the preceding year and $8,696 in the two months over the same period in 1919.

VALOR LEGION FOR LEAGUE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 29.—The Army and Navy Legion of Valor, composed of medal of honor men of the United States, conspicuous heroes of three wars, went on record for a League of Nations of restricted jurisdiction at their convention today. A resolution offered by Dr. George W. Brush of Brooklyn, retiring National Commander, which was adopted, declared:

"It is the sense of this legion that the civilized nations of the world should enter upon an organization which should make impossible henceforth such a terrible war as the one just closed." The declaration continues:

"We, nevertheless, are unalterably opposed to the approval of any League of Nations which would give such a league the power to call on this nation to furnish troops to carry on a foreign war."

Patrick J. Kyle, a medal of honor veteran of the navy, was elected National Commander for the ensuing term. Benjamin D. Levy of New York was made Senior Vice Commander.

A Lawyer's Testimonial

An attorney with a large practice said the other day:

"I have become convinced, after experience, that Guaranteed First Mortgages are the most suitable of all investments for the busy lawyer, because they do not shrink in value, and they require no watching. I buy them and feel safe in forgetting them, for they take care of themselves, leaving my mind free for the daily problems of an active practice. I would be better off today if all my holdings were in Guaranteed Mortgages."

He stands at his window for hours at a time, and is in need of a shoe that can give him comfort while he stands.

My cushion sole provides an easy and comfortable resting place for his foot and relieves him of that tired and worn-out feeling that he has when wearing other shoes.

How to Make the Curl Stay in Your Hair

Just get a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine at your druggist's and apply a little with a clean tooth brush before doing up the hair in curlers, drawing the brush down one strand at a time from root to tip. In a few hours your hair will be as beautifully wavy and curly as though Mother Nature did it, and it will be quite manageable, no matter what style of coiffure you adopt. The effect will be all that you could desire, will last quite a considerable time, and the health of your hair will not suffer. Silmerine is not sticky or greasy, but is quite pleasant to use.

If You Can Duplicate These Values Anywhere Else We Will Refund Your Money.

Despite the solid front made by all clothing manufacturers and the positive conviction of clothiers generally that prices for Fall would remain firm, we held to the belief that prices would come down before the last of September—and they have!

That is why today, this great 2nd floor shop is filled with new Fall and Winter stocks purchased in the past two weeks at enormous savings and why we are able to give you values absolutely unduplicated in all New York. Don't miss this money-saving opportunity!

Note:—Due to our extremely small margin of profit on these Suits and Overcoats alterations will be charged for at actual cost of time involved in making them.
